Three-Nation Parley Slated Friday on Europe Aid

Russian Acceptance Of British-French Bid Lifts Hope for Economic Recovery

Paris, June 23 (AP).—Hopes for a revival of Europe's economy soared tonight as the Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and Russia made a date to meet in Paris next Friday to discuss the American offer of aid in continental reconstruction.

The French government expressed "lively satisfaction" with Russia's agreement to examine the Marshall program. British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told Commons in London that he "welcomed" Russia's acceptance of a British-French invitation to the conference, and that "I hope good results will follow."

Most diplomatic authorities in Washington adopted a wary "wait and see" attitude, but a spokesman for the United States State Department said Russia's acceptance was "encouraging."

[London dispatches to the United Press suggested that United States Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton, who is there for conferences with British leaders, might join in the conference, at least in the role of an observer and informant.]

The French Foreign Ministry said sessions would be held in the spacious, ornate "Salon de l'Horloge" of the Qual d'Orsay. It was here that the Kellogg-Briand pact was signed after the First World War, and the treaties with Italy and other Nazi satellites after World War II.

Russians Suggest Date

The date was suggested by Russia in her reply today to notes from France and Britain. The French then made the date official by sending out invitations for the opening of discussions Friday.

The Soviet reply said it was "self-evident" that the task of rehabilitating Europe's economy would be expedited if assistance "were rendered by the United States of America, whose production potentialities, far from declining, increased during the war."

The office of French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault declared France would be "happy on this occasion to welcome Messrs. Bevin and Molotov."

This was an indication that Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov himself would attend the meeting. Soviet sources in London also said Molotov "almost certainly" would lead the Russian delegation.

Authoritative informants in Moscow said they were pleased that Russia had decided to attend, but cautioned that this acceptance did not mean necessarily that Russia would participate in a Europe-wide recovery program.

Plan Was Attacked

Official Russian publications attacked the Marshall plan last week as "dollar diplomacy" and an extension of the Truman policy of aid to Greece and Turkey.

Foreign Ministry sources cited these as "key passages" in the Soviet note:

1. "The Soviet government equally considers that the primordial task of European countries is

Roller Coaster Car Kills Employe, 76, At Glen Echo Park

Almost a dozen joyriders on a Glen Echo coaster dip yesterday were horrified spectators as the car in which they were riding struck and killed a park employe.

The victim, August Kulle, 76, of 706 11th st. nw., had been employed as a ticket taker on the Coaster Dip for the past two seasons, according to Joseph McCarthy, office manager at the amusement park.

McCarthy said the elderly employe had left his post and wandered back into the area through which the roller coaster winds. He said Kulle may have been attracted by something on the tracks and when he attempted to retrieve it, was struck by the oncoming car.

U. S. Rights ...o Oil Off Coast Upheld by High Court Decision

Decisions by the U. S. Supreme Court:

HELD THAT SUBMERGED oil lands from low tide to the three-mile limit belong to the Federal Government and not the States.

UPHELD CONSTITUTIONALITY of the so-called "anti-Petrillo act."

OVERRULED AN ATTACK on New York's "Blue Ribbon Jury" system.

UPHELD A FINDING that E. L. Dupont de Nemours and Co., Inc., National Lead Co. and Titan Co., Inc., had violated the anti-trust act.

AGREED TO REVIEW at the next term an anti-trust decree against a group of leading motion picture companies.

N. Y. 'Blue Ribbon Jury' System Backed

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld the Government's claim to "paramount" rights over thousands of acres of oil-rich tidelands off the coast of California.

The court ruled, 6 to 2, that California does not own the 3-mile-wide belt of tidelands, some of which it already has leased to oil concerns.

Closing its 1946-47 term, the court also upheld the constitutionality of the so-called "Anti-Petrillo law." The law makes it unlawful for the AFL Musicians Union or others to force broadcasters to hire more workers than they need.

The 5-to-3 decision simply held the law constitutional "on its face." The court did not pass on specific application of the law. The case was sent back to the trial court for new proceedings. This left the way open for a direct test of the law's validity in operation.

In nearly a score of other decisions, the high court ruled:

1. That a New York "blue ribbon jury" conviction of Joseph S. Fay and James Bove, labor union officials, on charges of extorting money from construction contractors, was valid. Fay and Bove protested they were tried by an "upper economic strata" jury.

2. That California laws which permit a trial court to comment on a defendant's failure to testify are constitutional.

3. That two Jehovah's witnesses convicted for refusing to submit to induction in the armed forces should have been allowed to attack their draft classifications at time of trial. The two unsuccessfully sought release from prison under a habeas corpus order. The time for appeal has passed.

In overturning California's claim to coastal tidelands the Supreme Court touched off new moves in Congress to enact legislation ceding back to the States Federal interest in submerged oil lands.

Only last year Congress passed legislation giving title to the dis-

Night Deposit Of $26,000 Disappears

Insurance Inquiry Is Started on Mystery At Alexandria Bank

Mysterious disappearance of a $26,000 bank deposit, reportedly placed in the night depository of the First National Bank in Alexandria last Wednesday, was confirmed by officials of the bank yesterday.

An investigation has been started by its insurance representatives, the bank announced.

The funds, which officials of the J. C. Penney Co. store in Alexandria said were deposited at about 6:20 p. m., were not found among other deposits when the night vault was opened at 8 a. m. Thursday, according to Gardner L. Booth, president of the bank.

Boothe said the vault was opened by an official of the bank in the presence of a teller.

Although the loss has been confirmed by both the bank and the department store, Alexandria police have not been called into the case, according to Lieut. Russell A. Hawes, chief of the city's detective bureau.

The missing deposit, representing the day's receipts plus some funds held over from the previous day, was taken to the bank by three employes normally charged with making deposits, William Duke, manager of the 615 King st. store, said. The bank is at 507 King st.

Duke said he accompanied the trio halfway to the bank, only a block from the store. He rejoined them after getting his auto from a nearby parking place, he said, and drove them to their respective homes.

Duke said he was away from the trio no more than five minutes. He added he was confident the deposit had been made.

Although Penny officials are taking no action pending completion of the bank's investigation, Henry Stone, a member of the legal staff at the company's main office in New York, has been called to Alexandria in connection with the loss.

Bank officials said the reported loss is being investigated by the Indemnity Insurance Co. of North America.

An official of the bank said the depository from which the funds reportedly disappeared is a cylin-

Makes It a Felony

Senate Approves Stiffer Bill On Gun-Toting in District

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Stiff new penalties for carrying concealed guns and other dangerous weapons without a permit in Washington were approved by the Senate late yesterday.

Without debate, the Senate backed up the earlier demand of Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) to go after gun-toting in a way that he said would still protect civil rights.

Cooper feared a House-approved antigun-toting bill would threaten civil rights. It left the offense a misdemeanor, but gave police a new special authority to search for weapons without a warrant. Cooper said it might lead to similar police powers in such minor offenses as traffic violations.

He won Senate approval for a substitute bill making the offense a felony. That way police get the same power the House gave to search for weapons. They have general power to arrest and search on probable cause and without warrants in felonies.

The bill now goes back to the House for settlement of conflicting proposals.

Cooper pointed out the Senate bill calls for a minimum $500 fine or a year in jail for conviction on a gut-toting charge. The maximum penalty would be a $2000 fine and three years in jail.

He said the present law carries no minimum penalty, and the top is a $1000 fine and a year in jail. The House did not change the present penalties.

Navy Budget Increased by Senate Group

3.4 Billions Voted Will Give Nation Powerful Fleet, Saltonstall Says

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Heeding pleas of top-ranking admirals against providing a mere "shell of a Navy," the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday boosted the 1948 naval supply bill by $176,500,000.

The group voted $3,462,000,000 in new money for the Navy next year—a sum which Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, said would give the Nation "a powerful, well-balanced fighting fleet."

Keeping a weather eye toward GOP budget-balancing, the committee largely offset the increase—money wise—by rescinding 161 millions of carryover Navy funds.

Old Projects Affected

This will cancel a large number of projects for which funds were appropriated last year and earlier for actual expenditure in 1948. They include plans for repair and modernization of ships, reworking ammunition, and maintenance of air stations.

Naval officials declared these cutbacks will hurt the efficiency of the fleet, but far less so than the reductions in the operating forces voted by the House.

The committee also ordered another 242 million dollars in 1948 and 1947 appropriations rescinded. This money, however, would not have been spent anyway.

Besides actual 176½ millions in cash added to the House total, the committee authorized the Navy to contract for 53 land-based reconnaissance and antisubmarine planes costing 78 million dollars.

"Turtle Type" Planes

They are big craft similar to the P2V Truculent Turtle, which set a world's record in flying from Australia to Ohio some months ago. Funds for such craft had been refused by the Bureau of the Budget on the ground that the Navy was duplicating Army Air Forces long-range, land-based aircraft.

Under the Army-Navy unification agreement, the Navy was allowed its own land-based reconnaissance craft, but the House upheld the Budget Bureau in refusing funds for the "turtles." Martin and Lockheed aircraft companies will divide the plane order.

Testimony made public yesterday revealed that Senator Saltonstall asked the Navy what additional money it needed: (1) As "must" items; (2) additional sums essential to avoid reducing the Navy to a mere "shell"; (3) still further amount required to provide "a reasonable and well-balanced and efficient" naval force.

The Navy asked for $108,967,000 as "must" funds—largely for restoring personnel cuts—and $67,597,300 to give them more than

Senate Passes Deficiency Bill Of $72,236,257

The Senate yesterday voted $72,236,257 to meet deficiencies of a score of Federal agencies for the year ending June 30.

The bill now goes to a conference with the House, which had voted $1,380,000 less.

Principal items in the measure are $28,400,000 for the Veterans' Administration, and $33,377,000 for the Postoffice Department.

The Senate added $1,500,000, in addition to nine million dollars previously made available, to combat foot and mouth disease in Mexico.

Mine Blast Kills 11; 40 Are Revived

Santiago, Chile, June 23 (U.P.).—Telephone reports from mine officials at Lota, 21 miles south of Conception, said today that 11 men were killed, 10 were injured and 7 missing in a coal mine explosion that trapped 68 men beneath the surface at 2:30 a. m.

The remaining 40 men caught in the blast were saved from death by a new European rescue apparatus which brought them back to consciousness after they had been partly asphyxiated, the officials said.

GOP Asks Fair Handling; West Coast CIO Urges 24-Hour Walkout

By The Associated Press

William Green, president of the AFL, announced a campaign to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Act as soon as the Senate had passed it yesterday.

Republicans called upon the President and his aides to administer it fairly.

And President Truman, who had called it "unworkable" in his veto message and "dangerous" in a new appeal yesterday, had no further comment. A secretary told him of the Senate's action as he worked on other matters in his office.

Representative Halleck of Indiana, House Republican leader, appealed to the President to cooperate with Congress, declaring in a statement:

"The country now expects the new labor-management law to be administered fairly and effectively, and with a will to settle industrial disputes amicably under the reasonal procedures provided."

President's Responsibility

Halleck said that although Mr. Truman fought the bill, "it is his responsibility to see that only persons with a will to make the law work be chosen to administer it."

"The new law must not be sabotaged," he continued. "Congress will be watching, and so will the people, to see that there is no hamstringing of the act through failures in the executive branch."

Senator Jenner (R., Ind.) also issued a statement asserting that "the greatest danger now is that New Deal administrators will sabotage the law."

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), co-author of the act, previously had expressed confidence that Mr. Truman will do his best with it.

CIO President Phillip Murray called the CIO executive board to meet here Friday to "assess" the situation "which now confronts American labor." Murray also

Protest Walkouts Close 12 Mines in Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., June 23 (AP).—At least a dozen Alabama coal mines, including the two largest in the State, were shut down today by walkouts within three hours of the Senate vote overriding President Truman's veto of the labor bill. They normally employ more than 6000 of Alabama's 20,000 coal miners.

Most commercial mines here do not operate a night shift, and there was no indication whether they would run tomorrow.

3000 Quit 3 Pa. Mines

Pittsburgh, June 23 (U.P.).—Some 3000 miners struck three captive mines of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. late today, protesting the Taft-Hartley labor bill.

Industry spokesmen and observers predicted the strike would spread tomorrow, but believed it would be disorganized. They said the miners were angry about the bill, but were also restless because of the closeness of the 10-day vacation which begins at midnight Friday.

Most Important Provisions Of Taft-Hartley Labor Act

Below are set forth the most important provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, all of them changes from labor law as it previously existed:

1. National Emergencies. A threatened strike of such proportions as to endanger the national health or safety may be enjoined for a period of 80 days, during which a board of inquiry will investigate the facts and the workers will be polled on acceptance of their employer "last offer" for settlement. This provision waives the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction law.

2. Conciliation Service. The Conciliation Service's functions are removed from the Labor Department and vested in a new independent agency, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

3. Suits Against Unions. Unions may be sued for breach of contract and for damages they inflicted in jurisdictional strikes and boycotts.

4. Closed Shop. The closed shop is forbidden. Any employer who countenances one would be subject to charges by the National Labor Relations Board on the complaint of a nonunion job applicant.

5. Union Security. The union shop and other compulsory union membership devices are permitted only if the majority of workers vote in favor of them in a secret ballot. But State laws, which forbid even these devices, supersede the Federal law.

6. Illegal Strikes. Jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts are outlawed. Injunctions against them must be sought by the NLRB. Again the Norris-LaGuardia Act provisions are waived.

7. Unfair Labor Practices. A new series of unfair practices—those which unions have committed—are outlawed. These include refusal to bargain, attempts to coerce workers, excessive union fees, "featherbedding," and coercion of employers into industry-wide bargaining.

8. Foremen. Foremen's unions are made extra-legal, i.e. they are denied the rights of Government protection under the law. Plant guards may have NLRB assistance in bargaining through their unions, but these must be separate from unions of the rank and file workers.

9. Craft Employes. Professional and craft workers may, if a majority favor it, bargain through their own separate unions, even though they have been in a plant where the workers all bargained through a plant-wide organization.

10. Federal Workers. Strikes by Federal employes are forbidden under severe penalties to the individual violator.

11. Communists. No union may be certified or enjoy NLRB assistance until all its officers swear they are not Communists or Communist sympathizers.

12. Welfare Funds. Welfare funds may be set up, with employer contributions, only if the employer has an equal voice with the union in their management.

13. Political Expenditures. Neither unions nor corporations may make expenditures in connection with political campaigns. Previous law, prohibiting them from making political contributions, is continued in effect.

14. Procedures. New procedures are prescribed for the NLRB, providing for five additional types of elections, and for handling complaints, decisions on jurisdictional strikes, court procedings, etc. Unions, meantime, are obliged to file detailed financial and organizational statements with the Labor Department and their members.

15. NLRB. The NLRB is expanded by two members, to a total of five. Its review division is abolished. Its general counsel becomes autonomous and is in charge of all field work, such as investigating complaints and initiating prosecutions. He alone decides what cases are taken up.

Public Wants Labor Curbs, Gallup Finds

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 23.—Although President Truman expressed strong disapproval of the Taft-Hartley bill, many of the bill's provisions meet with wide public favor.

The Nation's voters have long expressed dissatisfaction with strikes, and at the time of the 1946 election campaign the public listed strike-control legislation as the most important issue before the country.

At least five of the major provisions of the Taft-Hartley measure are closely in line with public thinking. They are:

1. The ban on the closed shop. The closed shop principle has never been popular with the American people outside labor unions. The majority feel that a worker should be free to join a union if he wants to, but that he should not be compelled to join a union in order to get a job.

A poll in January of this year, in which the closed shop, union shop and open shop were each described to voters, found that 8 per cent favored the closed shop, 18 per cent the union shop, while 66 per cent favored the open shop, and 8 per cent expressed no opinion. The general sentiment is reflected in the fact that some half-dozen States have passed laws banning the closed shop.

2. Financial reporting by union. The idea of making unions financially accountable, by requiring all of them to report money they collect and spend, has wide public support. A poll last December found 84 per cent of the general public in favor of such a requirement, and 80 per cent of the union members included in the poll.

3. Control of "featherbedding" or make-work policies. The practice whereby employers are required by unions to take on extra workers for a job, whether they are needed or not, is unpopular with the general public. A poll in

British Protest to U. S. On Jap Whaling Trip

London, June 23 (U.P.).—A Foreign Office spokesman said today that the British government sent a note to Washington protesting "General MacArthur's decision to authorize a second Japanese whaling expedition to the Antarctic."

The British objected that Japanese methods were wasteful and that the Japanese whaling fleet might become a nucleus for a Japanese navy in the future.

U. S. Reimposes Wartime Controls On Oil Exports

By the United Press

The Government reimposed wartime controls on exports of petroleum products last night in a move apparently aimed at quieting congressional criticism of American oil shipments to Russia while a shortage here was forecast.

The controls will not halt all shipments of oil to the Soviet Union, but will make them subject to the discretion of the Commerce Department. They will become effective June 30, just 24 hours before the emergency law authorizing such export regulation is slated to expire.

The move was announced after a series of conferences among officials of the Commerce, State and Interior Departments.

"Export control is necessary if the limited domestic supply is to be proctected and United States petroleum exports are to be used most effectively," an Office of International Trade statement said.

"There has been a great increase in domestic civilian requirements for gasoline, fuel oil, and other petroleum products. There are as well substantially unfilled Army, Navy and other State and Federal needs."

Truman's Final Appeal Rejected; 6 Votes to Spare In Showdown

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Taft-Hartley bill became law yesterday afternoon when the Senate voted, 68 to 25, to override President Truman's veto.

The vote for enactment was even stronger than the "safe margin" which supporters of the momentous labor relations reform bill had anticipated. With 93 Senators voting, the majority had six more ballots than it needed to achieve the two thirds mark which overrides a veto.

Calculated in another way, the total showed that opponents of the bill lacked seven votes to sustain the veto.

In voting, the Senate rejected a final desperate appeal from Mr. Truman, read by the Democratic leader, Senator Barkley (Ky.), just a few moments before the roll-call.

The Chief Executive wrote Barkley that he felt "so strongly" about the bill that he wished to reaffirm his "sincere belief that it will do serious harm to our country."

Critical Period, He Warns

"This is a critical period in our history," he went on, "and any measure which will adversely affect our national unity will render a distinct disservice not only to this Nation but to the world.

"I am convinced that such would be the result if the veto of this bill should be overriden."

Mr. Truman vetoed the bill on Friday, June 20, and sent a blistering, point-by-point criticism of it to the House of Representatives. That body promptly voted to override, 331 to 83, one vote short of a four-to-one proportion.

Senate Republican leaders had been eager to make their decision known the next day. A small group of Senators, however, mostly Democrats but led by a Republican, Senator Morse (Oreg.), were determined to block a vote until the Nation had an opportunity to digest the veto message and a Friday night radio appeal by the President.

Their filibuster, carried on principally by Morse and Senator Taylor (D., Idaho), succeeded in this objective. But the reaction they had hoped for failed to materalize and they lost yesterday by as great, if not greater, margin than they would have encountered on Saturday.

Yesterday's vote contained few surprises. On May 13, when the Senate had originally passed its version of labor legislation, the vote was 68 to 24. Taking into account the announced position of absentees, the presumed totals were 70 to 25.

Yesterday, only two of that initial 70 changed their votes to support the veto. They were Lucas (D., Ill.), and Sparkman (D., Ala.) and their switches had been long since assured. Two other Senators, who had been thought of as likely to change, did not. They were Aiken (R., Vt.) and Tobey (R., N. H.).

There were two Senators ab-

Senate Overrides Veto 68-25, Enacts Labor Control Law

sent, both of whom would have supported the veto. They were Wagner (D., N. Y.), the author of the Labor Relations Act which the new law so thoroughly amends, and Thomas (D., Utah), a former chairman of the Senate Labor Committee.

Wagner, suffering from high blood pressure in New York, was constrained by his physicians not to come, for fear of mortal consequences. Thomas, at an International Labor Organization conference in Geneva, Switzerland, had been importuned by no less than seven transatlantic phone calls to return to vote. But he, as Wagner, correctly concluded that his vote could not affect the outcome, and hence declined.

The National Labor Relations Board, most affected of all agencies by the new law since it must administer it and assume vast new duties, made no immediate comment. Its three members, however, are expected to remain and to give assurances that they will administer it in good faith and with all their ability.

The NLRB General Counsel, however, pron.ptly resigned. He is Gerhard Van Arkel, one of the authors of the NLRB analysis of the legislation which held it to be unworkable.

Agrees with Truman

Van Arkel had the option of seeking reappointment to the post of the General Counsel, which the new law endows with much greater power and independence. He said, however, that he agreed with Mr. Truman's veto message and that the Congress was entitled to see the job filled by someone "who would not start, as I should, with grave doubts concerning both the workability and the fairness" of the act.

Gerard V. Reilly, former member of the NLRB, who has been prominently mentioned as a likely candidate for the new General Counsel, told The Post yesterday he was quite sure that he would not be interested in taking the job. Reilly had served with the Senate Labor Committee as an expert consultant in drafting the measure.

In addition to naming an appointee for this job, to be confirmed by the Senate, the President is obliged by the law to send up the nominations of two more board members. The law now provides for a five-member NLRB.

Congress itself must make some appointments—seven members of the Senate Labor Committee and seven of the House Labor Committee—to form a joint study group. Its obligations are to watch the administration of the new law and to formulate amendments and additions to it if they are found to be necessary. Senator Ball (R., Minn.) is reported as most likely choice for chairman.

Most of the provisions of the act—those amending the Wagner Act and transferring the functions of the Conciliation Service from the Labor Department into a new independent agency—do not take effect for 60 days. But the section permitting Federal injunctions to hold off a "national emergency" strike for 80 days is now operative.

Last Hours Tense

The last hours of Senate consideration of the veto yesterday assumed a dramatic tenseness scarcely warranted in view of the assured outcome. For at least two hours before the vote the galleries were jammed; at the agreed upon voting hour of 3 p. m., the spectators were standing three or four deep against the gallery walls. Two thousand would-be listeners were unable to obtain admission.

Some 250 visitors, mostly Representatives and congressional committee attaches, availed themselves of the privilege of attending on the Senate floor itself. They, too, were lined against the walls four deep. For most of the debate all but a handful of the 93 Senators in Washington attended. What is more, they listened earnestly—in marked contrast to the usually diffident attention accorded Senate debate.

With almost every Senator present, the formal suggestion of "no quorum," preceding the vote—made by Senator Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the bill and its floor manager—provoked the only element of humor in the session.

Galleries Are Warned

Before the vote the presiding officer, President of the Senate Pro Tempore Vandenberg (R., Mich.) sternly warned the galleries against any demonstration. Accordingly, there was no noise when the result was announced, except for a kind of universal sigh—that of a supercompressed steam chamber when the tension is suddenly removed.

The vote was a tremendous personal victory for Taft. He had deliberately chosen the chairmanship of the Senate Labor Committee this year, knowing that the legislation it produced would have the most controversial history and momentous results of any in this session.

President Truman's sharp opposition to the measure served to throw Taft into an even sharper position of antagonism to the Administration. It puts Taft, as a Republican Presidential candidate, in clear-cut opposition to the President on the country's most important domestic issue.

Demonstartes Ives' Strength

The passage of the bill was also by way of a demonstration of the personal and political strength of Senator Ives (R., N. Y.), closely associated with Presidential Aspirant Thomas E. Dewey, Governor of New York.

Throughout the history of the bill it was Ives, with the block of votes which in effect he controlled, who was decisive on close issues. Amendments he opposed were defeated; those he favored carried by large majorities. A group of New England Republicans voted almost solidly with him—Aiken, Tobey, Saltonstall (Mass.), Lodge (Mass.), Baldwin (Conn.), Flanders (Vt.).

His position usually carried as well when the bill was first in the Senate Labor Committee and later in the joint conference committee.

Share Major Role

Yesterday, Ives shared with Taft the major role in last-minute appeals to override. Ives repeated points he had made in debate on other days: the bill is not perfect, but the nearest to perfect that could be obtained at this time; its success will depend upon the administration it receives at the hands of the NLRB and the appropriation it gets from the Congress. Finally, he declared that the defects of the bill could be remedied, as they were uncovered by the Joint Congressional Committee.

He was deeply critical of Mr. Truman's veto message, finding it "utterly extreme in an uncalled for manner," filled with "exaggeration after exaggeration" and assuming the "worst possible construction of every section under the worst possible administration."

This caused him to wonder if there was going to be "a definite intent to sabotage" the law by the NLRB. But he concluded there would not be, because of his faith in Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the board, and a longtime fellow worker with Ives on labor relations matters in New York.

Will Do His Utmost

"He is of the type who will do his utmost to see to it that the law is carried out fairly," Ives said. "There may be sabotage of it in other places . . . and this must be watched."

Morse declared that "before the bill is dry on the statute books, we are going to have to make substantial revisions in it."

He said the legislation would result in "industrial disharmony for many years to come until the law is stricken from the books."

In passing, he denounced what he termed "slanted editorials" of The Washington Post.

Taft, in appealing to the Senate to override, said the Republican Party would have been "delinquent" if it had failed to produce a reasonable bill. He said:

"If that is politics, there was politics to that extent."

He said Mr. Truman opposed so much of the bill he could only conclude that "if we had broken up the bill in little pieces, he would have vetoed every piece."

Twenty Democrats joined 48 Republicans to override the veto. Three Republicans and 22 Democrats voted to sustain the President.

Labor Veto Telegrams Put at More Than 100,000

By International News Service

Western Union officials estimated last night that well over 100,000 telegrams were delivered to Senators in connection with the vote to override or sustain President Truman's veto of the labor bill.

The messages continued to trickle in hours after the upper chamber voted at 3 p. m. (EDT) to pass the measure over the veto and about 200 were still awaiting delivery last night.

Weary Western Union officials, describing the load as "terrific," said every available employe was pressed into service to perform what they called a "herculean task."

U. S. Rights to Oil Off Coast Upheld by Supreme Court

puted land to the States. The President vetoed it, saying it was for the Supreme Court to decide.

Two California Republicans—Representatives Willis W. Bradley and Norris Poulson—predicted veto-proof measures surrendering Government interest in the lands will shortly be introduced.

Said Paulson: "It will be a bill that Congress will pass over the President's veto and which the Supreme Court will understand."

Advised Not to Worry

Warren W. Gardner, Assistant Secretary of Interior meanwhile told operators leasing California tideland "not to get too worried" and to "go ahead with their work." Gardner cited possible oil shortages next winter.

He said assurances have been given by Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug that operators will not be held accountable for oil already taken from the lands held under lease from the State.

Attorney General Tom Clark likewise predicted producers will continue the wells in operation "in view of the current shortage of oil."

"I am confident that satisfactory arrangements will be reached so that producers who carry on will not be adversely affected."

"No Desire to Destroy"

Clark said the President has consistently made it clear that there was no desire "to destroy or confiscate any honest or bona fide investment, or to deprive the State of its subdivisions of any reasonable expectation of return from the areas that have been developed."

The Attorney General added that possible legislation is being studied in the light of the decision. He said, "it may be necessary to have congressional action looking toward the future operation of resources in the tideland area.

President Truman, meanwhile, was expected to ask Congress to set a policy. Whether he would recommend a system of Federal leases to private operators, or conservation of the tidal belt as a naval oil reserve could not be learned.

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) "will be inclined" to take the same view it took last year. He said the President did not foreclose such action in his veto, but objected mainly to Congress acting while the issue was before the court.

Opinion by Justice Black

In his majority opinion, Justice Black did not specifically rule that the Federal government owns the land. He ruled rather that California "is not the owner." He said the Federal government, rather than the State, "has paramount rights in and power over that belt, an incident to which is full dominion over the resources of the soil under that water area, including oil."

Leading up to his finding, he said that the ocean, even its three-mile belt, is "of vital consequence to the Nation in its desire to engage in commerce and to live in peace with the world; it also becomes of crucial importance should it ever again become impossible to preserve the peace. And as peace and world commerce are the paramount responsibilities of the Nation, rather than an individual state, so, if wars come, they must be fought by the Nation."

In dissenting, Justice Felix Frankfurter said "national dominion" is merely a way of saying the Government as against nations is the sovereign.

"If it mmeans more than that, it implies that the Government has some proprietary interest," he said. "That has not been remotely established except by sliding from the absence of ownership by California to ownership by the United States."

Justice Reed Dissents

Justice Stanley F. Reed, who also dissented, argued California had the same right to adjacent submerged land as the original 13 "sovereign" States. He said California ownership would not interfere with the needs or rights of the Government in war or peace.

Justice Robert H. Jackson did not participate in consideration or decision of the case.

Justice Black also handed down the decision upholding the "Anti-Petrillo law." Justice Reed dissented, joined by Justices Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge. Justice William O. Douglas took no part.

Petrillo, musicians union "czar," was accused of violating the act by trying to force Chicago Radio Station WAAF to hire three additional record librarians. WAAF said the extra employes were not needed. The charge of "coercion" involved withdrawal of three regularly employed musicians and picketing of the station.

Petrillo contested the charges in a Chicago District Court. Judge Walter J. Labuy ruled the act unconstitutional and the Government appealed directly to the Supreme Court.

D. C. Court Overruled

Black for the majority overruled the District court finding that the law violates the fifth amendment because its words, "number of employed needed," are too vague. Black ruled the language Congress used "provides an adequate warning as to what conduct falls under its ban, and marks boundaries sufficiently distinct for judges and juries fairly to administer the law . . ."

The court declined to rule on constitutional questions growing out of the law, until it has been further tested in the lower courts.

"We do not decide whether the allegations . . . , whatever shape they might eventually take, would constitute an application of the statute in such manner as to contravene the first amendment," said Black. "We only pass on the statute on its face; it is not in conflict with the first amendment.

In a concurring opinion, Justice Frankfurter said:

"It would be a usurpation of the legislative authority for us to find that there was no basis in reason for the judgment of Congress that the public interests called for legislation to deal with what is colloquially called 'featherbedding' in connection with the broadcasting business."

In his dissenting opinion Justice Reed said the language of the law "is too indefinite in its description of the prohibited acts to support an information or indictment for violation of its provisions."

The case now goes back to the lower court to determine in new hearings whether the law has been properly applied to Petrillo.

Other Actions Decided

In other actions the court:

Agreed to review a Federal anti-trust decree against a group of major motion picture producers, distributors and exhibitors, including Paramount Pictures, Loew's, R-K-O, Warner Brothers, 20th Century Fox, Columbia Pictures, Universal and United Artists. The decree was handed down last December 31, by a three-judge District Court in New York.

Decided 5 to 3 that the Federal District Court at Chicago improperly dismissed two charges of Sherman anti-trust violations against the Yellow Cab Co. and five affiliated concerns.

Upheld 4 to 3 a Federal District Court ruling that E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co., Inc., National Lead Co. and Titan Co. had violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Agreed to decide the validity of real estate owners' agreements designed to exclude Negroes from "white" neighborhoods.

Upheld the appointment of a conservator to take over management of the Long Beach (Calif.) Federal Savings & Loan Association. The court rejected contentions that a section of the Federal Home Owners Loan Act, under which the conservator was appointed, is unconstitutional.

Affirmed conviction of Admiral Dewey Adamson, Los Angeles Negro, for murder in the first degree in the killing of Mrs. Stella Blauvelt, 64-year-old widow, in Los Angeles, July 25, 1944.

Texas Roars Protest On Tidelands Ruling

Austin, Tex., June 23 (AP).—Loud roars of protest including talk of secession came from Texas officials today when they learned the United States Supreme Court had held with the Federal Government in its claim to valuable submerged lands off the California coast.

Land Commissioner Bascom Giles gave voice to the secession talk, Attorney General Price Daniel pledged a "last ditch" legal fight for Texas' claims, and Gov. Beauford H. Jester expressed surprise and chagrin over the decision regarded as casting a dark cloud over Texas' claims.

GOP Calls on Truman for Fair Labor Law Administration

called a meeting of CIO legal representatives for Thursday.

In San Francisco, the CIO council in a telegram to Murray urged a Nation-wide 24-hour work stoppage to protest the bill.

Harry Bridges, West Coast CIO longshore leader, characterized the labor law as "Fascist legislation borrowed from the Fascist dictators and tailored to fit the American industrial scene."

He said labor would fight for its rights and "if we have to swing into action, we will show them action."

In New York, Jacob Potofsky, president of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers, served notice the CIO Political Action Committee would "extend its activities into every ward and precinct" to defeat legislators who voted for the bill.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, general president of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, said his union would "fight the law through every legitimate means."

Officials of the Furriers Joint Council of New York, urging workers to vote in union elections this week, said their votes would "signify your determination . . . to fight . . . until this shameful and Fascist Taft-Hartley law is repealed and wiped off the statute books."

Called Tragic Mistake

Green said the AFL will launch an immediate campaign "for the prompt repeal" of the act.

"Congress has made a tragic mistake," Green said in a statement.

"The new law will not promote industrial peace . . . the consequences are likely to be heavy and costly in terms of reduced production. The chaotic conditions produced by the Taft-Hartley Act will endanger our national economy."

Earl Bunting, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, hailed the Senate's action and called on management to "take the initiative" in smoothing the way for industrial peace.

"No law in itself will guarantee industrial harmony," Bunting said in a statement. "A fair law such as we now have will provide fertile soil, but industrial peace will flourish only if it is nourished by complete sincerity and good will on the part of both management and labor."

Saved Truman, Says Hoey

Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) declared that the Senate's action had "saved" President Truman if he seeks reelection as expected.

If the veto had been sustained, he said, Mr. Truman "wouldn't have had a Chinaman's chance in '48."

Earl O. Shreve, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement congratulating Congress for a "courageous and statesmanlike job, particularly in view of the vociferous opposition . . . designed to appeal to the popular emotions by raising misleading outcries about the potential destruction of unions."

A statement of the Progressive Citizens of America said that "the failure of the Democratic Party to defeat the Taft-Hartley bill may well mark a turning point . . . in the history of American political parties."

"President Truman's veto will be recorded as the most tragic in a long list of failures of the President to carry forward into the Democratic Party the fighting liberal program of his predecessor."

New Act Another Milestone In Long History of Labor Law

The labor bill enacted yesterday marks another milestone in the long history of American labor law as it has developed since the days of the famous Philadelphia cordwainers' strike in 1806, when such action was considered by the courts to be an unlawful conspiracy.

Later decisions allowed unions to organize and strike, but as they grew stronger the law still permitted their repression by injunction. Private employers, as well as the Government, could and did, through a 50-year period, block effective strike action, by invoking the power of the law on their side.

When the Sherman Anti-Trust Law was passed in 1890, employes had another legal level, for the law appeared to sanction attacks on unions as conspiracies in restraint of trade. The Clayton Act, passed in 1914, was supposed to exempt unions from such charges, but early Supreme Court decisions such as in the Duplex and the Bedford Cut Stone cases, denied that act any real substance.

Not until the Norris-LaGuardia Act of 1932 were unions freed from abuses of injunctions against their wage and organizing strikes. The law, as a tool of the employer, had been removed. It was a case of both sides being free to exercise their economic strength against each other, with the Government more or less standing aside.

Section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act marked the first time the Government actively intervened, by law, in behalf of labor.

'Peril' a Mystery

Russians Halt U. S. Officers On Danube

Budapest, Hungary, June 23 (AP).—An urgent message from Russian Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, acting head of the Allied Control Commission, checked a party of American officers, including two generals, from venturing today into the "perilous waters" of the Danube.

The message was deemed so important it was delivered personally by Zoltan Vas, Communist chief of the Supreme Economic Council.

The Americans were riding on a pleasure craft as guests of Hungarian Finance Minister Miklos Nyaraddy. Vas stopped the boat at a pontoon bridge near the center of Budapest, asserting that Sviridov had ruled the boat could not proceed because it had not been "demagnetized."

The peril in the water ahead was not explained. Possibly it was magnetic mines, although this section of the river was supposed to have been cleared at least a year ago.

The cruise, for the purpose of inspecting the Csepel Island docks, was canceled after a hurried conversation between Vas and Nyraddy. The Americans said they assumed that Sviridov had not had prior notification about the trip.

Members of the American Party included Maj. Gen. Daniel C. Noce of the War Department, Brig. Gen. George H. Weems, commander of the United States Military Mission in Budapest; Col. William Harris, traveling companion of General Noce; Lieut. Col. Steven Veda and Capt. Allan J. Hackner.

"Push To Left" Demanded

Budapest, Hungary, June 23 (AP). Hungarian President Zoltan Tildy said today in an interview published by the Social Democratic newspaper Vilagossag that the people of Hungary must be pushed to the left in a program of cooperation with the Soviet Union.

"It is our duty to secure the confidence of the Soviet Union," the President was quoted as saying. "Those who hope for a new war do not know how strong the Soviet Union is."

According to Tildy, former Premier Ferenc Nagy, who was forced to flee and resign by the Communist coup in Hungary, was not capable of handling his job.

Protest Economy Plan as Ramadier Wins First Test

Paris, June 23 (U.P.).—Nearly 6000 angry, yelling workers demonstrated before the National Assembly building today while Premier Paul Ramadier pleaded with the assembly to pass his new 135 billion franc ($1,134,000,000) economy program and pull France back from the "brink of bankruptcy."

Ramadier won a partial victory. The assembly's finance commission approved the plan, 24 to 18, with four abstentions. In doing so, it reversed its 15-to-13 decision on Saturday to reject it.

The demonstrators came in from the suburbs in trucks. Most of them were from the Renault and Citroen automobile plants.

When Communist deputies (who oppose the program), came out of the assembly, and told the demonstrators there was no further reason to continue the demonstration, men and women who had been milling around outside police barricades began to leave immediately. Several hours before, police had had the greatest difficulty getting 300 demonstrators to go on the outside of the barricades.

Nearly 1000 police were on duty.

As Foreign Minister Bidault left the Assembly today, he looked at the crowd and remarked: "They don't even know what they want themselves. This is intolerable for a democratic government."

Ramadier told the assembly:

"The government considers it its duty to demand passage of the bill with the shortest possible delay," he said. "The needs of the treasury are urgent.

"It is a question of preventing the gangrene of inflation from creeping through the whole of our social body. We are here to fight inflation.

"Overthrow us if you will, but do not ask us to pursue a policy which would lead France into disaster."

3 Are Indicted For Shooting Of Policemen

Three men were indicted here yesterday for shooting policemen.

Raymond E. Sutton, 28, 1636 Gales st. ne., a parole violator, was indicted for assault with intent to kill Pvt. Ralmond D. Padgett, 54, 5237 N. Carlyn st., Arlington. Padgett lost his right eye as a result of the shooting.

In another indictment, Matthew McIntosh, 22, 408 K st. nw., and Robert Simmons, 27, no fixed address, were charged with assault with intent to kill Pvt. Francis C. Fenwick of the Third Precinct.

Padgett was shot March 16, when he approached Sutton who was in the midst of an argument over a woman. Sutton was subsequently charged with four burglaries here.

Fenwick arrested McIntosh and Simmons May 30 for breaking into automobiles. He testified that he held the two men at pistol point and asked a woman in an apartment nearby to call for a patrol car. She replied in a few minutes that she had done so. Fenwick said he turned to thank her, and at that moment McIntosh shot him and the two men escaped.

Three men who have left this country were charged in indictments with violating provisions of the Selective Service and Training Act by failing to register or report for induction into the Army. The defendants are Homer S. Babbitt, jr., now in Mexico; Sidney Feldman, in Palestine, and James B. McAleenan, in Ireland.

Floyd Gilliam, 22, 1320 Corcoran st. nw., was charged with fatally shooting his girl friend, wounding his mother and clubbing his sister over the head with a pistol butt, all on June 2. Gilliam told police he shot Mrs. Alberta Boyd, 30, 3101 Garfield st. nw., because she refused to let him leave her. He said he shot his mother, Mrs. Bessie Gaston, because she had been crued to him when he was a child. He said he beat his sister because she was "running around" with men.

Senate Confirms Johnson for Customs Court

The Senate yesterday confirmed President Truman's nomination of former Representative Jed Johnson (D., Okla.) to be judge of the United States Customs Court.

Johnson, chairman of the Interior Department Appropriations Subcommittee when he served in the House, had a long feud with the then Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes. When Johnson was nominated April 7, Ickes protested and hearings were held.

Little moved by Ickes' opposition, the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee was preparing to report favorably on the nomination when further opposition sprang up because Johnson had not paid his dues to the Oklahoma Bar Association. The delinquent dues, $23.50, were paid and the nomination quickly cleared through committee.

Man Tells Policeman Where to Find Body

Baltimore, June 28 (AP).—Patrolman Charles Krein reported today that a man approached him in the Roland Park residential section, handed over a pistol and gave him instructions on where to find the body of a woman.

The woman was identified as Fatuna Balentine, 40, employed as a maid in a Roland Park home. The man was taken into custody for questioning.

to hasten as quickly as possible the revival and development of their national economies. . . ."

This, they said, indicated the Russians concur with British and French views on the necessity for quick, cooperative action if the Marshall plan is to work.

2. "The Soviet government does not possess at the present time any information concerning the nature and the terms of possible economic assistance to European countries by the United States . . . nor measures discussed by the French and British governments."

The Russians apparently feel, these quarters said, that the Marshall problem has some strings that they might not be willing to accept. They may also suspect that France and Britain already have evolved a proposal that might be unacceptable to the Soviet Union.

Italy Feels "Satisfaction"

Rome, June 23 (AP).—A Foreign Ministry official said today that Italy viewed the Marshall plan for American aid in reconstructing Europe with "profound satisfaction" and would help make it work.

Dr. Umberto Grazzi, economic director of the Ministry, said however, that Italy would insist on participating on "a footing of parity" with other nations and not with a feeling that "we are beggars." He said notes had been sent to the United States, Britain, Russia and France setting forth demands for equal treatment and that replies had been "favorable to the Italian position."

Two District Men Get Year and Day In Draft Violation

Two Washington men were sentenced to a year and a day in Federal prison yesterday on charges of Selective Service violation by a Federal court now sitting in Alexandria.

Charles N. Montgomery, 314 50th st. ne., and John J. Hunter, 1124 Columbia rd. nw., both pleaded guilty to charges that they had wilfully disqualified themselves for military service by forcing up their blood pressure with benzedrine.

A grand jury returned indictments against them three years ago. They have been out on bond awaiting trial since then. They came under the jurisdiction of the Virginia court because they reported to the induction center at Fort Myer.

Court officials said that these were only the first 2 of a group of 15 who will be tried later this week on similar charges.

U. N. Group Hit for Acting In Irgun Case

Jerusalem, Palestine, June 23 (U.P.).—The British government of Palestine sharply criticized the United States Special Commission today for acting prematurely in the case of three members of the Jewish Irgun Zvai Leumi who are under death sentence.

Sir Henry Gurney, chief secretary of the Palestine government, informed the commission by letter that the government would "avoid public comment" on its resolution. He pointed out that the death sentences of the Irgunists had not been confirmed by the high commissioner, and without such confirmation the sentences have "no legal force or effect."

The men had been sentenced to death on June 16 in the May 4 attack on Acre prison, in which more than 200 prisoners were freed and 15 men killed.

The commission adopted a resolution that it was legally unable to intervene in internal Palestine affairs. But it went on to say that the majority had expressed concern over the possible unfavorable repercussions the executions would cause. A copy of the resolution and a letter from relatives of the condemned men were sent to Trygve Lie, secretary general of the U. N., and to the British government.

Gurney's answer was described as the strongest ever to come from the government. He noted that the U. N. commission had mentioned in its resolution that the men were sentenced on the same day the commission opened its hearings.

"It presumably was not suggested that the court pronounced sentence on this day otherwise than in the ordinary course of judicial process. There would, of course, be no truth in any such suggestion," Gurney said.

Stage Set For Test

Lake Success, N. Y., June 23 (U.P.). U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie helped set the stage for the first real test of strength of the U. N. Special Committee on Palestine today when he relayed to the British government its appeal for the lives of three young Jewish extremists sentenced to death in Palestine.

The committee asked Britain what could be done about the trio, sentenced to death for their part in the Acre prison raid.

2500 Koreans Protest U. S., Russian Rule

Seoul, Korea, June 23 (U.P.).—An estimated 2500 members of the anti-Communist Independent Party held a demonstration and sitdown strike in front of Duk Soo Palace today against interim Russian and American trusteeship of Korea.

High American authorities said the strike and demonstration had disqualified the Independence Party for consultation by the joint Russian American Commission on the future shape of Korea's government. One of the prerequisites for consultation was that a party agree to the trusteeship.

Before marching to Duk Soo palace, the Independence Party distributed pamphlets, calling up Koreans to oppose trusteeship to "the last drop of their blood." The pamphlets added, however, that "we will work without violence and not oppose the United States-Soviet joint commission."

Brown Sees Spokesmen

The demonstration was started at noon by some 40 men who marched from Chongno Square, scene of the famous Sam Il Samil rebellion of 1919, to the palace. The palace gates were locked, and police reinforcements held the growing crowd in order.

By 1:30, some 2500 Koreans gathered and they refused to leave until Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, chief of the American delegation, consented to see three spokesmen. Brown conferred with them two hours, with the previous understanding that the crowd would disperse when the conference was over. No incidents were reported.

The leader of the demonstration was Kim Koo, former president of the Korean provisional government of Chungking, China, a bitter anti-Communist and head of the Independence Party. The demonstration violated an ordinance against meetings either for or against trusteeship.

But the question of whether to take action against Koo posed a dilemma for American authorities. They realized that if they took no action, Koo might be encouraged to undertake larger and more serious demonstrations. Leftists also would agitate on the ground that the United States Army was sanctioning the violation of a military ordinance.

On the other hand, if the Army arrested Koo, he would be martyrized to an extent and pro-Russian elements among the Koreans would consider his punishment a moral victory.

Another Missouri River Flood Menaces 400 Miles of Crops

Kansas City, June 23 (U.P.).—Another great flood developed today on the Missouri River and a United States Weather Bureau engineer warned that it would wipe out crops along a 400-mile stretch of the valley, heart of the Nation's "breadbasket."

The new flood came as the Nation counted 19 known dead from flash floods, blizzards and tornadoes that disrupted communications and crippled railroad service between Chicago and the West.

Five persons still were missing at Cambridge, Nebr., where a flash flood killed eight persons and caused more than one million dollars damage Sunday.

The muddy Missouri was on the rise from Nebraska City, Nebr., to its confluence with the Mississippi. At least 17 farm levees in Missouri crumbled.

Verne Alexander, Weather Bureau engineer in Kansas City, said the new flood would "beat anything we have had so far this month."

"This will clean out the valley for this year as far as agriculture is concerned," he said.

Floods had left an estimated 20,000 persons homeless in Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska and Illinois. Additional evacuations were under way today in the Glasgow, Miami and Waverly areas of Missouri.

A survey showed that midwestern flood damage already had passed 160 million dollars. An estimated 3,500,000 acres of land had been flooded.

Flash floods in western and northwestern Iowa poured new flood waters into the Des Moines, Raccoon and Nisshabotna rivers, bringing additional flood threats to hard-hit central Iowa. Ottumwa, Iowa, ravaged by two floods in recent weeks, braced itself for another.

Flash floods caused damage at Fort Dodge, Cherokee, Meriden, Onaway and Audbon.

At Cambridge, Nebr., rescuers searched for bodies, after a 12-foot wall of water roared down from Medicine Creek, flooding the town. Eight persons were known dead. In addtiion, two persons were drowned in a flash flood north of Cambridge.

Washouts crippled traffic on several railroad lines, in Iowa and Nebraska, including the Chicago & Northwestern, the Burlington, the Milwaukee and the Rock Island.

Tornadoes in northwestern Kansas and southwestern Nebraska Saturday night and Sunday killed one woman and injured at least nine persons. Three men were suffocated Saturday night when their truck was buried in a six-foot snow drift piled by a sudden blizzard in the Rocky Mountains in Montana. Four men drowned on Lake St. Mary's in Ohio when a windstorm capsized two boats.

15-Foot Drifts Cleared

Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., June 23 (AP).—Two-mile-high Beartooth Pass was reopened to tourists today in the wake of a freak weekend blizzard which brought death to three persons and marooned some 70 travelers in their automobiles.

Most of the vacationists, some of whom were trapped for more than 24 hours when a snowstorm and 75-mile-an-hour gusts of wind formed 15-foot drifts Saturday, have continued their journeys.

Mine Blast Kills 11; 40 Are Revived

Santiago, Chile, June 23 (U.P.).—Telephone reports from mine officials at Lota, 21 miles south of Conception, said today that 11 men were killed, 10 were injured and 7 missing in a coal mine explosion that trapped 68 men beneath the surface at 2:30 a. m.

The remaining 40 men caught in the blast were saved from death by a new European rescue apparatus which brought them back to consciousness after they had been partly asphyxiated, the officials said.

Two More Bodies Recovered From Smoldering Tanker Hull

Wilmington, Calif., June 23 (AP).—Recovery of two bodies from the smoldering hulk of the SS Markay today brought to four the toll of known dead in Los Angeles harbor's 10 million dollar explosion and fire.

Coroner Ben Brown said the bodies were burned beyond recognition. Two other bodies were pulled from the water near the Markay yesterday.

What appeared to be a fifth cremated body was sighted through a porthole by members of the boarding party.

Ten persons believed to have been aboard the ship at the time of the explosion early yesterday are still missing.

Coast Guard officers predicted a full scale investigation would be made soon by a "major disaster" board of the merchant marine.

L. L. Llahman, port captain for the Union Oil Co. and a veteran tanker man, said "it is readily evident the explosion was touched off far inside the ship, from the manner in which it split the ship open."

The 11,083-ton tanker carried 2,940,000 gallons of aviation and automobile gasoline and Diesel and stove oil.

A large area of the harbor was a blackened and twisted mass of wreckage. Five shipping berths have been destroyed and another damaged.

Senate Passes Deficiency Bill Of $72,236,257

The Senate yesterday voted $72,236,257 to meet deficiencies of a score of Federal agencies for the year ending June 30.

The bill now goes to a conference with the House, which had voted $1,380,000 less.

Principal items in the measure are $28,400,000 for the Veterans' Administration, and $33,377,000 for the Postoffice Department.

The Senate added $1,500,000, in addition to nine million dollars previously made available, to combat foot and mouth disease in Mexico.

Magnuson Blocks Navy Measure For Calif. School

By The Associated Press

Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) blocked Senate approval yesterday of a bill to establish a Navy postgraduate school at Monterey, Calif.

The measure came up under procedure requiring unanimous consent for its passage.

Magnuson said he had serious objections to its passage, which he said would permit the Navy "to exercise an option on a summer resort in California."

Even if the option expires, Magnuson said, the price will not increase much.

Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Armed Services Committee served notice he will call the measure up again shortly.

Discrimination By Hospitals Charged Here

Charges of discrimination by District hospitals against Negro patients, doctors and medical students have been placed before the President's Committee on Civil Rights by four local organizations.

The situation is described in a report by the four groups as dangerous to the health of the Negro population, and therefore to the entire Washington community.

The report was submitted by the local American Veterans Committee's minorities affairs committee, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare's Health Committee, the District Medico-Chirurgical Society, an organization of Negro doctors, and the bi-racial Physicians' Forum.

The report to the committee asserted:

That Negro medical students at Howard University are barred from training opportunities at Gallinger Hospital, where an average of 75 per cent of the patients are Negroes.

That Negro doctors cannot enter Gallinger and St. Elizabeths Hospitals except as visitors or patients.

That Negro patients seeking private rooms must go to Northern hospitals to escape Washington's segregated wards.

Training of Howard University's medical students is seriously handicapped, the report says, because they are almost entirely dependent on the facilities of Freedmen's Hospital, where two important categories of disease—contagious and mental—are not admitted.

Robert Carr, secretary of the President's Committee on Civil Rights, said yesterday that the report "will receive the careful attention of the Committee."

Textile Strike Talks Held at Cumberland

Representatives of striking CIO textile workers met with officials of the Celanese Corporation of America and top Federal conciliators yesterday in an effort to end a 24-day shutdown at the firm's plant in Cumberland, Md.

The conference was called by Conciliation Director Edgar I. Warren. Sitting with him in an effort to mediate the dispute idling the plant's 10,000 workers were Conciliation Commisisoners Peter J. Manno and James Holden.

The strike was called by the union after disagreement with the company over "fringe" issues such as a paid lunch period for daylight workers, improved vacations, premium pay for Saturday and Sunday work and a clause in the contract providing for reopening on wages.

The union, which represents 8600 of the Cumberland workers, received a wage adjustment of 13 cents an hour in February.

Representing the company at today's conference were F. T. Small, vice president; Edward R. Allen, superintendent of personnel, and L. L. Helmer, assistant superintendent of personnel.

Representing the union were Herbert Payne, chairman of the rayon division, CIO Textile Workers; Wesley Cook, vice chairman, and William Boyd Coleman, president of the Cumberland local.

$26,000 Reported Missing

ALEXANDRIA MYSTERY—Chilton Raiford, clerk with the Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles, places a deposit in the night vault of the First National Bank in Alexandria, from which $26,000 was reported missing yesterday. Officials of the J. C. Penney Co. said they deposited the money in the night depository last Wednesday, but bank spokesmen said the fund was not found among other deposits when the vault was opened the following morning drical type, generally considered burglar-proof. It is so constructed that funds deposited are automatically dropped into a vault 5 feet below when the cylinder is closed.

The depository is in the front of the bank building, facing King st. in the heart of the Alexandria business district. According to police officials, foot patrolmen pass the building at least twice every hour during the night.

GOP Leaders Seek Change in Rule On Overriding

By The Associated Press

President Truman's decision to veto two major bills within a week brought Republican demands yesterday for a constitutional amendment making it easier for Congress to override a veto.

Accusing Mr. Truman of vetoing the tax and labor bills for "political purposes," House GOP Whip Leslie C. Arends said many Congressmen felt a simple majority of both House and Senate—rather than the two-thirds majority now required under the constitutional requirement. To become effective, it would need two thirds votes of approval in both House and Senate and ratification by three fourths of the States.

Had the simple majority rule prevailed, the House would have overridden the President's veto of the tax bill last week. As it was, the 268 to 137 vote to override was two short of the two-thirds requirement.

"Twice within the past week," Arends said, "we have witnessed the will of the people—as expressed by an overwhelming majority of their elected representatives—thwarted by the single objection of one man, the President."

Red Atom Plant Blew Up, He Says

Chico, Calif., June 23 (AP).—The Chico Record today published a copyrighted interview with Father Bernard Hubbard in which the noted geologist and explorer declared that Russia had an atomic energy plant a year ago, but tht it blew up becuse of the Russians' "lack of know-how."

Hubbard, head of the geological department of Santa Clara University, declined to disclose the source of his information.

He said the blast killed several scientists and caused devastation over a wide area.

He asserted his information was authoritative and added that if freedom of travel would be given outside newspapermen his story could be confirmed.

Murray Charges 'Secret Cabal' Exists in Newspaper Guild

Sioux City, Iowa, June 23 (AP).—The American Newspaper Guild (CIO) opened its fourteenth annual convention with an angry debate today as President Milton Murray made a speech denouncing his opponents.

Murray, blowing into the open the union's long-seething internal dissension, said there exists a "secret cabal" aimed at seizing control of the union.

He named these guild officers as "plotters": Sam Eubanks; Executive Vice Presidents W. A. Copeland, Gervase N. Love, and Dorothy Rockwell, and Director of Organization William J. Farson.

John Ryan, executive vice president of the guild's New York local, shouted, "I resent the use of the chair to make a political speech." He said Murray had only "disunited" the guild further and "made us look like fools in the press."

Paul Simmons, of Atlanta, told the delegates Murray's speech created "more disharmony than anything that could have happened."

Murray formally announced his willingness to continue in the office he has held for six years.

He also said:

1. The recent guild strikes against the Philadelphia Record and the Los Angeles Herald-Express should teach the guild that no local should be allowed to commit the union's national resources to any strike situation without "full consultation with the national officers."

2. Criticized Philip Connelly and Bill Brodie, Los Angeles guild officers, in these words: "Bill Brodie precipitated the Herald-Express strike against every advice given him by every faction of the national guild administration—after Slim Connelly had boasted that he was going to close a Hearst newspaper."

3. Said that the guild has not yet completely eliminated its Communists that they still have a "foothold" in the New York and Los Angeles locals, and that communism is "still a menace" to the union.

4. Urged that last year's goal of a $100-a-week minimum for experienced reporters be raised to allow for the rise in living costs since last June.

5. Said there has been a "shameless abuse" of Guild Reporter—the union's newspaper—as a "political propaganda medium."

The newspaper guild, which estimates its membership at 24,000 editorial and commercial newspaper employes, opened its convention in an air of considerable agitation.

The organization appeared to be approaching some sort of showdown in its leadership feuds, with President Murray and Secretary-Treasurer William Rodgers on one side and Executive Vice President Eubanks on the other. All three are anti-Communists.

In April, a majority of the 13-member executive board approved a resolution criticizing Murray's conduct as president.

Pepco Refunds Again Boost Hospital Fund

The Children's Hospital building fund got another shot in the arm yesterday.

It came from new groups of generous District residents, who turned in some 1508 refunds on electric bills to the hospital. The Potomac Electric Power Co. said the latest intake, largest recorded since the campaign got under way, boosted the over-all total to 6090.

In the event each participant contrbiutes the maximum refund of $3.60, the hospital's fund will be increased by more than $21,000. It is still $80,000 short of its $1,300,000 goal.

The refund drive, which provides that refunds of bills paid months ago be turned over to the hospital, ends at midnight tomorrow.

House Unit Coddles Nazis, Lawyer Says

14th Street Littered With Checks

All you had to do to pick up some money on 14th st. nw., yesterday was reach for it.

About $220 in signed and indorsed checks were wafted down the street during the lunch hour rush. The owner of the airborne wealth—Leonard Eskin, Bureau of Labor Statistics employe—was unaware his four checks were anyplace other than safely in the confines of the Union Trust Co., 14th and G sts nw.

Schiffman

Eskin had intrusted the checks, inserted in the proper page of his bankbook, to a fellow worker, Jacob Schiffman of 3445 38th st. nw., for deposit in the bank. When Schiffman checked the book outside the bank, he discovered, with a sinking feeling, that three checks were missing.

He and his companion, Sam Vernoff, another BLS employe, immediately began searching gutters and sidewalks, darting through the crowds, eyeing passersby. A few feet down 14th st., a man was spotted holding a green check in his hand.

At the corner of 14th and F sts., Pvt. R. Y. Hesse of the Traffic Division was waiting with another, turned in by another unidentified pedestrian. Then an elderly man walked up and said he had found a check reposing in the 14th st. gutter.

Schiffman quickly identified the checks and raced off to the bank, forgetting to get the names of his benefactors in his anxiety to finally get his friend's checks deposited.

Counsel for Dennis Hits Un-American Affairs Committee

The House Un-American Affairs Committee yesterday was denounced in District Court as an "infamous conspiracy" which "coddled known Nazis and Fascists."

The charges were made by Attorney Louis McCabe, Philadelphia, one of a battery of three lawyers defending Eugene Dennis, secretary of the American Communist Party, charged with contempt of Congress.

"The purpose of the Committee is to frighten people from taking their place with the progressive forces," McCabe asserted. He later identified the "known Fascists coddled by the committee" as Gerald L. K. Smith, James Smythe, William Dudley Pelley and George Sylvester Vierick.

Letter Attacks Rankin

McCabe's assertions came during the course of argument over the admissibility as evidence of a letter written by Dennis to the House committee last April 8.

The letter purported to explain Dennis' refusal to appear for a hearing on Communist activities, as supenaed on the grounds that the committee was unconstitutional.

The letter attacked a committee member, Representative James E. Rankin (D., Miss.), as representing a State in which Negroes are kept away from the polls under "threat of murder."

This was referred to by Prosecutor John W. Fihelly as "inflammatory in view of our jury situation" as he objected to inclusion of the letter as evidence. There are six Negroes on the jury, which was excused during argument on the letter.

Will Rule Today

Associate Justice David Pine said he would rule on admissibility of the letter today. The matter, he said, hinged around interpretation of the word "willfull" in conjunction with the contempt charge.

Those on the jury of nine men and three women are Harold W. Machall, 44, of 841 Howard rd. se., letter carrier; Paul B. Burke, 40, 1915 R st. se., Washington Planograph Co. employe; William O. Howard, 39, 1613 F st. ne., motorman; Mrs. Elizabeth Levine Holford, 35, 1314 Massachusetts ave. nw., statistician; James L. Lineberger, 48, 942 O st. nw., moving contractor; Frank E. Jones, 54, 138 Swann st. nw., postal clerk.

Mrs. Elizabeth M. Gingerich, 24, 1931 Biltmore st. nw., housewife; Stanley D. Grant, 53, 123 Adams st. nw., letter carrier; Mrs. Amanda E. Grigsby, 46, 720 Park rd. nw., Navy Department employe; Fred E. Neff, 41, 1317 44th pl. se., machinist; Percy Parham, 42, 2213 N st. nw., Government Printing Office employe; Arthur Hirsch, 48, 7440 Georgia ave. nw., plumbing supply shop proprietor.

Alternates are John M. Scott, 60, 1515 Swann st. nw., Treasury Department employe; and Lloyd J. Streifuss, 35, 4019 Foote st. ne., Capital Airlines employe.

Britons Fight Frog Army With Salt

Waltham, England, June 23 (U.P.). Residents here laid barricades of salt around their homes today to turn back an invasion of frogs which emerged from nearby ponds after recent heavy rainfalls.

Thousands of the frogs, most of them the size of an American quarter, have been swarming into houses, theaters and pubs for the past week. Owners blocked house ventilators and city officials ordered ponds sprayed with kerosene. But today it is still hard to walk on Waltham streets without squashing frogs underfoot.

Residents erected salt barricades when it was alleged that salt will kill a frog in 5 seconds.

Navigational Aids Seen Guiding Enemy Missiles to Cities

America's thriving navigational aids "could be the very means by which devastating missiles would be guided to our centers of population."

This blunt warning was made last night by Rear Admiral Alfred M. Pride, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

Admiral Pride, wartime commander of the aircraft carrier Belleau Wood, spoke before the Institute of Navigation's annual banquet at the Statler Hotel. The institute, founded in 1945 as a scientific and engineering society devoted to safety and accuracy in air and surface navigation, ends its two-day program this afternoon.

Urging use of our electronic navigation aids "for all they're worth in peacetime," Admiral Pride declared he would be "afraid of them in war, if they are not blacked out" on opening of hostilities."

The year's Thurlow Award, established for the institute by Sherman M. Fairchild, aviation manufacturer, and named for the Army Air Forces' famed navigator, Col. Thomas L. Thurlow, went to 31-year-old Dr. John C. Bellamy, University of Chicago physicist. He won the honor for his work in development of "pressure pattern flying," which sends aircraft around storms, rather than through them.

New Rocket Able to Zoom 235 Mi. Aloft

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—A small version of a new rocket which can zoom 235 miles into the earth's outer atmosphere will be tested this summer, it was disclosed today.

The big rockets are being manufactured for the Navy by Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co. in Baltimore. There will be ten of them to cost $1,850,000 and the first will be completed in 1948.

The Navy said, however, the test model will be sent out from White Sands, N. M., in a month or so.

The big five-ton "Neptune" is 45 feet long and a little less than a yard in diameter. Navy spokesmen said it is designed for launching from shipboard.

The "Neptune," which also will replace the rapidly dwindling supply of less efficient German V-2 rockets, reaches a maximum speed of 8500 feet a second at 38 miles from the surface, or 78 seconds after launching.

At 38 miles the liquid oxygen and alcohol fuel supply is exhausted but the Neptune will coast 197 miles further. The steering difficulties which hampered operations of the V-2 will be overcome by mounting the engine on gimbals, a universal device controlled by a gyroscope.

The new rocket will carry a load of from 100 to 1400 pounds. The V-2 range was limited by its load of 1800 pounds.

D. C. Man Named AVC Chairman

CHAT PATERSON of Washington, D. C., was elected chairman of the American Veterans Committee at its annual convention in Milwaukee

Reds' Foothold In AVC Gone, Paterson Says

Chat Paterson, 26-year-old linguist, flew home here last night with his freshly-won title, National Chairman of the American Veterans Committee, and jubilation that communism "has lost its foothold" in the AVC.

He was elected by the veterans' organization yesterday at the AVC national convention, Milwaukee, Wis., on an avowed anti-Communist slate.

Reluctant to discuss election issues, he said only that "Communists never did have control of AVC, and now they are completely eliminated from the national picture."

He preferred to talk more on AVC plans for the future: "to readjust veterans back to their communities so that they become active participants in local and national affairs."

Paterson, a native of Ottumwa, Iowa, studied public administration at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, and spent three years with the Friends Service Committee in Cuba and Mexico caring for European refugees during the early war years.

He enlisted in the Army in December 1942; was washed out in pilot training for poor eyesight and preempted by the Office of Strategic Services because he could speak Spanish, French, Russian and German as well as English.

He served overseas in England, France, Germany and Austria, specializing in rounding up and translating Nazi documents for OSS. The fruits of some of his labors was used in convicting Alfred Rosenberg, No. 3 Nazi, at the Nuremberg trials.

Discharged from the Army as a second lieutenant in December, 1945, he joined AVC immediately upon his return to civilian clothes. He worked then for a short time with the State Department (Exchange of Persons Division) before accepting a full-time job as National legislative chairman of AVC.

Patterson was married, but divorced, and lives with his son, Timothy, 3½, at 1725 17th st. nw.

Final Ultimatum Plea Sent Indonesians

Batavia, Java, June 23 (AP).—The Netherlands government sent a "final urgent appeal" to the Indonesian Republic today to accept all phases of a Dutch ultimatum issued May 27 on the makeup of an interim government for the United States of Indonesia.

With negotiations rapidly nearing an explosive showdown, Indonesian Premier Sutan Sjahrir unexpectedly canceled a scheduled trip to Jogjakarta, the Indonesian capital, shortly after the new note was handed to him by the Dutch governor general, Hupertus J. van Mook.

Security Called Watchword of Regimentation

"Nothing has done as much harm to the cause of freedom the world over as the slogan 'The Four Freedoms,'" Carlyle B. Haynes, secretary of the Seventh-day Adventist Council of Industrial Relations, declared yesterday.

Haynes told yesterday's session of the Seventh-day Adventist meeting at Takoma Park: "Security is not the watchword of a free society. It is the slogan of a regimented society. it belongs to communism, collectivism and tyranny.

"A free society provides for free men and liberty. The regimented society provides for slaves and security," he told the group attending the fifth day's sessions of the 10-day encampment.

During the day, leaders of the denomination at the world headquarters in Takoma Park were preparing to send a strongly worded resolution to Congress opposing the proposed world calendar.

The officials said the proposal is "anti-Protestant, anti-Catholic, anti-Jewish and anti-religious." They said its adoption would result in the death of Sunday observance of religion.

The resolution summons the entire church to campaign vigorously against such bills in Congress. The new calendar would be made effective in July, 1950, if adopted, the officials said.

Evangelist Philip Knox of Los Angeles began a series of four lectures last night

Lie Proposes U. N. Refugee Loan of Million

Lake Success, Long Island, June 23.—Secretary General Trygve Lie of the United Nations proposed today a one-million-dollar short-term loan by the world organization to launch the new International Refugee Organization.

The proposal was placed before the advisory committee on administrative and budgetary questions.

Lie reaffirmed his earlier declaration that the United Nations was prepared to assist in working out the Marshall plan. The U. N., however, would have to wait until asked to step in.

[International News Service reported that the 12-nation working committee of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission came within an eyelash tonight of reaching unanimous agreement to outlaw the veto for day-to-day operations of o world-wide atomic control agency, but split at the deciding moment.

[Andrei Gromyko, Soviet delegate, even went so far at one point as to offer an amendment in which he specified it was the sense of the committee that the veto shouldn't apply to day-to-day operations.

[However, Belgium's Fernand van Langenhove said he wanted time to think it over. So did France's Peter de Rose. Then Dr. John Vance, for the United States, said he didn't think it necessary to adopt any resolution at all. Everybody, he thought, agreed on the one point under discussion. Gromyko then retreated to his former position.]

WE BOUGHT OUR COAL EARLY!

And Wise Customers Are Buying Their Coal NOW!

● Coal is an important part of our business here at Griffith-Consumers. We have found that Spring and Summer are the best times to buy coal.

● This year it is especially true, because recent figures show that coal production fell off in April and May, which indicates the possibility of a coal shortage before Winter comes.

● Griffith-Consumers is fortunate in still having available a supply of coal for immediate delivery at present prices. This includes 'blue coal'—"America's Finest Anthracite" — which gives you more heat at less cost.

● For convenience and economy, ask about our Summer Budget Plan for the purchase of coal and the servicing of your furnace.

Punjab Assembly Votes, 91 to 77, For Partitioning

New Delhi, India, June 23 (U.P.).—The Legislature of the riot-torn Punjab, meeting at Lahore, voted today for the partition of the province into Moslem and Hindu areas.

At a joint session, 91 members voted to join the Constituent Assembly of Pakistan, the Moslem regime, and 77 to adhere to the existing Hindu-dominated assembly here.

Vallabhai Patel, home secretary in the interim government here, and a leading member of the Hindu-dominated Congress Party, demanded in an interview with Admiral Viscount Mountbatten, the Viceroy, that martial law be imposed on the Punjab to end riots.

Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, also saw Mountbatten and was understood to have asked him to take urgent measures to check the rioting in Lahore.

Youth Wins Judgment

UNIQUE CASE—James "Tippy" Edler, jr., yesterday won a default judgment of $50,000 in a suit brought against an English woman for stealing his father's love. He is pictured with his mother, Mrs. James Edler after ruling was made in District Court

Boy, 11, Wins $50,000 in Suit For Theft of Father's Love

In an unique case, 11-year-old James ("Tippy" Elder, jr., won a default judgment yesterday in a $50,000 suit brought against an English woman for stealing his father's love away.

The judgment was granted Tippy in District Court after the defendant, Miss Noral MacAlpine-Downie, failed to appear to contest the suit. Tippy, through his mother, charged that Miss MacAlpine-Downie met the father in England during the war. The father, Lieut. Col. James Edler, was reported responsible for smashing the cigaret black market in Paris while he was stationed there.

The next legal step is for the appointment of an inquisition jury to determine the amount of money that should be awarded as damages to the boy. Attorneys are to meet tomorrow before Justice James M. Curran to set a date for the jury hearing.

Tippy and his mother live in Chicago. The suit claimed that the father has failed to visit his son and insists on staying with Miss MacAlpine-Downie. She lived for a time here in the Dorchester Apartments.

Newspaper Verdict Affirmed

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed a decision ordering two Massachusetts newspapers to reinstate employes fired allegedly for union activity.

The newspapers expect to carry the case to the United States Supreme Court, their attorneys said. E. Anthony & Sons, Inc., own the papers.

Seven employes of the company's newspapers in New Bedford and Hyannis were fired after they had been questioned about union activity. They were members of the Newspaper and Radio Workers Protective Association of Southern Massachusetts.

This organization was formed principally by the general manager and the circulation director of the Anthony company. These two men were subsequently fired and convicted of plotting to engage in a business competing and conflicting with the interests of their employer.

The Anthony company objected to the association formed, but admitted it was technically a "company union." It was tainted, however, the company said, by being formed of a "unconscionable breach of trust by two supposedly loyal executives."

For this reason, the company said, the employes involved could not seek protection under the National Labor Relations Act. The company charged the NLRB had no right to interfere and the management had the right to fire employes for joining "illegal" labor union.

U. S. to Rest Anti-Fascist Case Today

The Government will rest its case today against Dr. Edward E. Barsky and 15 other leaders of the Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, charged with contempt of Congress, Prosecutor Charles Murray said yesterday.

Most of yesterday's session was taken up with the reading of testimony of Barsky and other defendants given before the House Un-American Affairs Committee.

Gist of the testimony was that the defendants failed to produce records of the anti-Fascist association as demanded by the committee because they did not have control of the records.

A mistrial motion by Defense Attorney O. John Rogge was objected to by Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech.

Rogge asserted that a newspaper story, which he said contained a number of inaccuracies, had linked one of the defendants with Gerhardt Eisler, alleged Communist ringleader. This story, he asserted, would prejudice the jury.

The defense announced that columnist Drew Pearson had offered to testify on behalf of the anti-Fascist group. Defense lawyers were undecided whether to accept his offer.

Illness of a juror raised the number of women on the panel to eight. Excused from further duty was Landon B. Holt, 1644 Fort Davis st. se., who complained of feeling ill. He was replaced by alternate juror Minnie E. Ogden, 5040 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Reds Plan to Free Most German Prisoners

oviet Reply Doesn't Suit, Say Chinese

Nanking, June 23 (U.P.).—A source close to the Foreign Ministry said today that Russia has replied to a Chinese note protesting the Outer Mongolian invasion of Sinkiang Province and that Chinese officials considered the reply "unsatisfactory."

The Russian note was said to be almost identical with a Soviet Tass News Agency report which denied that Russian planes participated in the attack on the Chinese city of Peitashan or that the Soviet Union was in any way connected with the incident.

The Chinese government is not satisfied with the Russian note and is considering further steps, the source said.

The semiofficial Central News Agency, in a dispatch from Urumchi, Sinkiang capital, reported the Sinkiang-Outer Mongolia border region was quiet today following an Outer Mongolian attack on Friday.

Reds Press Attack

Peiping, June 23 (AP).—Communists pressed a smashing new attack inside the battered Manchurian railway junction of Szepingkai today, Chinese press dispatches reported, with government defenders giving ground slowly.

A heavy artillery duel, now in its tenth day, made life precarious for the population of Szepingkai.

Public Favors Labor Curbs

1946 found 60 per cent in favor of prohibiting featherbedding.

4. Waiting period before a strike. The general principle of a "cooling off" or delaying period, during which issues in a labor dispute are investigated, has overwhelming public support.

When President Truman first proposed cooling-off periods and fact-finding boards to help avoid strikes, a large majority of the general public, and seven out of every 10 union members polled by the Institute, were in favor of the proposal, at a time when union heads were denouncing it.

5. Abolition of jurisdictional strikes. Voters familiar with the jurisdictional strike are more than 2-to-1 in favor of abolishing it by law, a poll in February found.

In one respect, public sentiment would go further than the Taft-Hartley bill in regulating unions.

The majority of voters favor a law to prohibit strikes in public utilities, such as electric power or gas companies. The bill does not go that far.

While wanting regulations of union practices, the public is not opposed to unions.

Many surveys have established the fact that a very substantial majority believe unions are desirable and beneficial, and that they are here to stay.

Moreover, there is widespread public sympathy for many of the wage demands of organized labor. In the recent telephone strike, an Institute poll found more public sympathy on the side of the workers than on the side of the company. The chief reason was a feeling on the part of the public that telephone workers do not receive sufficient pay.

Early this month a substantial vote was cast by the public in an Institute poll in favor of raising the minimum wage, under the Federal wage and hour law, from the present 40 cents an hour up to 65 cents an hour.

The average American has a lot of faults to find with the way employers and business managers handle their labor. A survey in April asked the public:

"What do you think are the chief faults of employers in this country?"

The four main faults in the opinion of the people are:

1. They lack human understanding of the workers' problems.
2. They don't pay enough wages but are greedy for profits.
3. They make work hours too long and production requirements too stiff.
4. They don't give enough recognition and reward of ability and hard work.

Dewey Urges That Women Take More Active Part in Politics

New York, June 23.—Increased participation of women in politics was urged by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in a message of welcome to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which opened its fifty-sixth convention at the Hotel Commodore tonight.

The Governor's message bore out a theme which had been stressed earlier in the day by Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of the Federation, in a luncheon address to members of the junior clubs, celebrating their twenty-fifth anniversary at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Meantime, hundreds of delegates were already demonstrating their interest in Government by visiting the United Nations at Lage Success.

Read By N. Y. President

The governor's letter was read by Mrs. Kenneth S. Strayer, president of the New York State Federation of Womens' Clubs, hostess to the General Federation. Mrs. Mrs. Dewey was guest of honor at the banquet.

"Public and legislative affairs," said the Governor, "are the No. 1 concern of responsible people today. If this uniquely productive two-party system of ours is to move forward on the precepts that made it great, it can use the informed intelligence of civically alert women."

Mrs. Dickinson, urging political activity upon 250 junior delegates suggested that they should "get in at the grassroots."

To Follow Own Precept

She then revealed that she intended to follow her own precept by devoting herself to local politics in her home town, Keene, N. H., when she retires from her three-year job as federation president the end of this week. This has involved passing most of her time in Washington.

The growing importance of the junior members, now 60,000 strong, was recognized by the older club leaders by a movement to include a junior as third vice president of the federation. Both Mrs. Dickinson and Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, vice president, scheduled to succeed her as president, said they favored this step which would involve a change in the federation constitution, as there are now only two vice presidents.

Stop Over-Par Gold Sales, Fund Asks

Snyder Says U. S. Council Is in Accord With World Monetary Organization

By The Associated Press

The World Monetary Fund has asked its 44 member countries to try to prevent international transactions in gold at prices above the parity rate, $35 an ounce, it was disclosed yesterday.

The fund's notice to its members was made public by the United States' National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Problems, headed by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder. The council declared itself "in full accord" with the fund's position.

The fund, in a statement sent out by Managing Director Camille Gutt, said action was necessary to prevent international exchanges at above parity because the practice otherwise "is likely to become extensive."

This, is said, "would fundamentally disturb the exchange relationships among the members of the fund."

But the Fund said it would not object "at this time" to premium-price transactions in gold within any one country unless:

1. "They have the effect of establishing new rates of exchange or undermining existing rates of other members, or

2. "Unless they result in a significant weakening of the international financial position of a member which might affect its utilization of the Fund's resources."

The Fund said it was making a statement on above-parity gold transactions "which have been taking place in various areas of the world" because of "the importance of this matter."

It did not specify the areas, but the transactions reportedly have been somewhat widespread involving Mexican and Peruvian gold and sales in the Middle East, Far East and some European countries.

Army's Files Dispute Word Of Garsson

By The Associated Press

The Government dug into Army files yesterday to dispute testimony by munitions maker Henry Garsson that he "never used" a letter of introduction which former Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.) obtained for him.

The letter, signed by Lieut. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, Army Ordnance chief, introduced Garsson to Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, Chicago ordnance district chief.

Garrson had acknowledged that May, wartime chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, got the letter for him but testified that he had never used it.

Federal attorneys yesterday introduced another letter—a reply from Hammond to Campbell acknowledging receipts from Garsson of the original letter.

Garsson and his brother, Murray, are on trial with the 72-year-old May on bribe conspiracy charges, involving $55,000 in alleged payments to May for favors he obtained for the 70 million dollar Garsson arms enterprises.

Court recessed early yesterday because of a conflict in medical opinion whether a new witness, Joseph F. Freeman, could appear in court. Freeman, Washington agent for the Garssons, was acquitted as a fourth defendant earlier in the case.

Freeman collapsed shortly after becoming ill while testifying last week. His physician reported to court that he is too ill to leave a hospital, but another doctor, selected by the prosecution, found him well enough to return to court.

Justice Henry A. Schweinhart decided to go himself with the trial attorneys to Freeman's bedside today to hear the balance of Freeman's testimony. It will be read to the jury this afternoon.

Greeks Condemn 700 Since 1944, Premier Asserts

Athens, June 23 (U.P.).—Premier Demetrios Maximos said today that 700 persons, including members of the leftist Elas, had been condemned to death as enemies of Greece since the 1944 uprising.

Maximos denied press reports that the government planned to execute 120 leftists. He said the cabinet would meet soon to review all death sentences and set dates for the executions of those condemned.

Other government sources reported that 1000 guerillas raided the town of Panagitsa, near the Yugoslav border, burned 30 houses and killed a soldier and four civilians before Greek troops came to the town's rescue. Thirty guerillas were reported killed.

ASCAP Charged With World Conspiracy

New York, June 23 (AP).—The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) was charged by the Government today in a Federal court action with engaging in a world-wide conspiracy to monopolize musical performing rights in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett, head of the Justice Department's anti-trust division, who filed the suit, said the Government sought "a directive from the court requiring ASCAP to withdraw from membership in illegal foreign societies."

There was no immediate comment on the suit from ASCAP officials here. The society includes nearly all prominent United States composers.

Sonnett said ASCAP had engaged in a conspiracy with La Confederation Internationale des Societes d'Auteurs et Compositeurs, in Paris, of which the American organization is a member.

This confederation, the complaint said, prohibits its 26 members from dealing with non-members and permits only ope society from each country or territory to hold membership.

The complaint charged that ASCAP was conspiring with similar societies through the Paris Confederation to cross-license each other and to prevent outside societies from having access to confederation music.

Sonnett said the Government asks that ASCAP be enjoined from accepting music rights in the United States from any foreign society that refuses to make its music available to other societies here.

Attorney General Tom Clark said in a statement released by Sonnett that the alleged cartel had prevented thousands of American commercial users from "getting music from abroad, except through ASCAP, and has hindered composers and authors of music in the United States, who are not members of ASCAP, from getting their music played abroad."

Clark said the suit did not question the right of ASCAP members "to band together for the joint protection of performing rights" and that the Government did not seek to hamper any "legitimate activity" of ASCAP.

What could you buy with the profit ON A TON OF STEEL?

THE ANSWER IS "a shirt, if it cost less than $4.00."
From 1939 through 1946, including the war years, the average profit of the steel industry was 4.4 cents on the sales dollar.
Average profit per ton of steel shipped during those war years was less than $4.00 per ton.

Navy Budget Is Increased

a "shell Navy." All were granted by the committee. They refused, however, the $125,025,500 proposed under "priority No. 3."

Two "riders" added to the bill by the House were stricken by the Senate group. One would limit to 1000 the number of enlisted men on duty at the Naval Academy. They heeded a plea by Rear Admiral James Holloway, Annapolis superintendent, that the 1600 men now there are needed to maintain ships, planes and facilities.

The other would ban employment of enlisted mess attendants, stewards, and cooks at bachelor officers quarters ashore or at the quarters of high ranking naval chiefs.

Other Changes Voted

Other changes voted by the committee:

(1) Increases the average number of enlisted men from 355,000 to 395,000, and the number of officers from 42,000 to 43,000. Marine Corps strength will be about 80,000 men and over 7000 officers.

(2) Increases the total number of ships in service from 933 to 1143. The funds will provide for 13 aircraft carriers, four battleships, 32 cruisers, 7 escort carriers, 135 destroyers, 24 destroyer escorts and 78 submarines. Twenty ships, including three of the battleships, will have "greatly reduced" crews.

Other vessels include: 149 amphibious craft, 55 mine vessels, 54 patrol ships, 275 auxiliaries and 24 floating dry-docks.

(3) Raises the number of planes in service from 5541 to 5793. They will be organized into 13 carrier groups, 3 antisubmarine (CVE) groups, 31 fleet air (land-based) squadrons and 21 Marine combat squadrons.

(4) Restores three million dollars to permit 3000 young men to begin Naval ROTC courses this fall under the "Holloway plan."

(5) Increases from $2,500,000 to $3,500,000 the funds for caring for the natives on Pacific islands handled by the Navy.

Elkton Man Held After Fatal Fight At Club Fish Fry

Elkton, Md., June 23 (AP).—George Whalen, heavy-set owner of the Elkton fish market, was held in Cecil County jail here today on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Michael L. Peterson, Elkton, barber, police said.

State's Attorney Henry Constable said Peterson died of injuries received in a fight last night at a fish fry given by the Elkton Moose Club at Hammond's Beach on the Elk River.

Cecil County Coroner R. C. Dodson said after completing an autopsy that Peterson was "apparently kicked on the left side of the jaw," and died as the result of "a hemorrhage at the base of the brain."

His death came the day after he had given his daughter Loretta in marriage to George Molitor of Elkton.

Bad Dream Caused Demise Of Teacher, Doctor Suggests

Margate, England, June 23 (U.P.) Dr. W. J. Purdy, a pathologist, suggested at the inquest of Miss Clarice Edith Wragg today that the 39-year-old school teacher died of a brain clot caused by an unpleasant dream. He did not elucidate.

Attention Drawer

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—Five-year-old Joseph Eck chose a new sleeping place last night—and thereby started his family and more than 100 policemen on a frantic search.

The hunt was halted after an uncle, Henry Cunningham, found Joe curled up in a sideboard drawer, bedded in table linens. The boy explained sleepily he just hadn't liked the idea of sleeping upstairs.

Wheel Chair Blamed

Los Angeles, June 23 (U.P.).—A runaway motorized wheel chair was blamed today for the death of Beth Pasko, 54.

Before her death in General Hospital yesterday she revealed that her brakes failed as she started the motor-driven chair down a steep grade. She said the chair was going possibly 50 miles an hour when she crashed into the side of a garage.

River Edge, N. J., June 23 (U.P.). John Seitz brushed aside congratulation today on his 100th birthday tomorrow. "I expect to live to be 105," he said.

Picklers Sticklers

Chicago, June 23 (U.P.).—A special pickle board decided today that a pickle that's not a pickle should be called a "quickle."

The National Association of Pickle Packers discovered a new product which looks like a pickle, tastes like a pickle and smells like a pickle. But it isn't a pickle.

"It's not a pickle," they said, "unless it's pickled. This is pasteurized."

It's a Dog's Life

Birmingham, Ala., June 23 (AP). The life of a hapless dog meant more than schedules of two Frisco freight trains.

Engineer Carl McCay saw a whimpering pup caught near the rails east of Amory, Miss. At Carbon Hill, Ala., he stopped and called the Amory dispatcher.

Later, another freight train ground to a halt near the hapless dog and Engineer Ed Thompson freed its leash from a spike.

"The little pooch licked my hands," said Thompson, at the end of his run, "in the only way he knew, I guess, of showing his thanks."

Parents Defended

Paris, June 23 (U.P.).—Emergency measures should be taken immediately to put an end to "domination" of children over the parents, the World Family Congress was told today.

"Parents don't listen to their children any more. I'm afraid it's the other way around."

So said Mrs. Colini Lombardi of the Italian family front.

However, the American delegate, Dr. M. M. Wood, sided with the children.

Little children have a personality and a dignity of their own. In America we give them all the freedom they want," Dr. Wood said.

N. C. Student Killed

Norfolk, Va., June 23 (AP).—Irwin Hughes Lankford, 20, a student at North Carolina State College, was killed early Sunday when an automobile in which he was riding overturned on a curve at the intersection of Virginia Beach Boulevard and Laskin Road in Princess Anne County. June Sperry of Norfolk, Vilma Taylor of Portsmouth and William D. Trent of Norfolk, passengers in the automobile, which Lankford was driving, were injured.

An ambulance from the Naval Air Station at Oceana took the injured persons to DePaul Hospital in Norfolk, where Miss Sperry was admitted as a patient. The other two were given first-aid treatment and released.

Kerosene Kills Child

Frederick, Md., June 21.—Barbara D. Fogle, 15-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robey Fogle, who live between Libertytown and Woodsboro, died at Frederick Memorial Hospital yesterday of kerosene poisoning. The mother said the child drank a small can kept under the kitchen stove to catch leaking oil. Mrs. Robey was outside the house at the time. Surviving are the child's parents, three sisters and two brothers. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Slayer to Die Aug. 1

Forrest City, Ark., June 23 (AP). An all-male jury of 10 white men and 2 Negroes today returned a death sentence for Lawrence Willie Dukes, 31-year-old Negro, in the slaying of Mrs. Ethel Ellis Boyd, 35-year-old taxicab operator, May 21. Judge Davis S. Plummer ordered the sentence carried out August 1.

Dame Fashion Snubbed

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 23.—West Virginia farm women were cautioned today to put Dame Fashion on the shelf in favor of "functional fashions." The State Extension Division advised women to pick clothes siutable for the job at hand, rather than selecting them for looks.

Frills, loose bows or ties on the front should be avoided, since they could catch fire when the wearer comes near an open blaze. The current popularity of long dresses and skirts was scored by the division, which said that the hems may catch shoe heels and cause falls.

11-Year Plan For D. C

Credit for initiating a long-range plan of public improvements for the District goes to Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young. His "Preliminary Six-Year Plan for Postwar Washington" gave civic leaders and officials alike a new understanding of the magnitude of the task of providing municipal service in keeping with the city's growth and importance. The Capital's requirements, as Commissioner Young outlined them, are enormous. Obviously any reasonable program of supplying these wants would have to be spread over a number of years. And it would need detailed study by experts and civic leaders before it could be properly adopted by the Commissioners or recommended to Congress for its approval. Now, fortunately, the 16-member Citizens Planning Committee appointed by the Commissioners nearly a year ago has brought in a revised version of the Young plan that may well guide the expenditure of District funds for civic improvements during the next 11 years.

Every project included in this study must be regarded as essential if Washington is to modernize its municipal service and overcome the existing critical deficiencies of its schools, health and welfare institutions, libraries, highway, water, and public safety systems. The total cost is estimated at $182,713,500 over a period of 11 years. The committee estimates that the District must have at least 10 million dollars a year from the general fund for capital improvements if the work is to be paid for directly from annual revenues. A capital improvements program of that size can be financed from current revenues, it believes, if Congress will vote the necessary taxes and an increased Federal payment to the District. But there is no indication that Congress intends to provide the needed revenue. The planning committee indicates that an increase of roughly 19 million dollars would be necessary to avoid a deficit, with a 10-million-dollar per year capital improvements program. The revenue bill now awaiting final action in Congress would raise only about 14 million dollars. This clearly suggests that the alternative outlined by the planners—that of borrowing funds for imperative municipal projects—will have to be invoked if the program is to be carried out.

Great difficulty is certain to be encountered in translating these plans into action. The best of plans made by the Commissioners may be discarded so long as Congress holds the District's purse strings. The strong tendency will be for Congress to continue cutting the local capital improvements budget to fit the pattern of inadequate revenue available, unless the community bestirs itself. This is not, of course, an argument against planning. But it does suggest that planning must also proceed along the front of political reform in order to avoid the constant negation of plans for civic improvements.

Crow's Nest

Evidently members of the House Veterans Committee have succumbed to witch-hunt pressures. In approving Representative William J. Crow's bill to bar Communists from veterans' benefits they have committed an atrocious invasion of the rights of citizens. The issue has nothing to do with the abhorrence which we, and most Americans, hold for Communist purposes and tactics; nor does it raise the question of whether members of the Communist Party are loyal to the United States. During the war Communists were accepted as soldiers. The issue is whether men who served on the same basis as any other soldier can now in conscience be deprived of the privileges accruing from that service. The Crow bill would pave the way for discrimination against any group that happens to be in disfavor.

That measure would deny benefits not only to Communist veterans, but also to veterans "in sympathy with the general aims of the Communist Party." This would present a nice problem in administration. Who would define what these aims are? If the Communist Party is against lynching, does that mean that all persons who oppose lynching would fall into this category? So far as we can see the bill would have no effect on Communist activity except to give the Communists a halo of martyrdom which they could exploit to good advantage. Clearly the members of the Veterans Committee need to have their faith in American liberties rejuvenated. Their action in this case is a frightening example of what can happen to any group that differs from the majority if we allow our aversion for communism to snowball into flagrant discriminations within our own country.

Help And Self-Help

Over the weekend Russia, after lambasting Secretary Marshall over the air as a trickster in dollar diplomacy, agreed to join with Britain and France in a Foreign Ministers' meeting. This meeting, which will take place Friday, will discuss continental aid before putting the experts to work. Great encouragement to European effort has been given by the White House. The President has set up three committees to assess our resources and our potentialities of aid. One of the committees is the bipartisan body that Senator Vandenberg suggested. It is full of good names, showing that in all branches of American life there are men of goodwill who see the advantage to everybody of this joint assault on European deterioration. It is no exaggeration to say that this may be Europe's last chance.

That is the reason that the work of organization in Europe is of surpassing importance. We have an idea that the Russians will seek to divert to the European Commission the task that Messrs. Bevin and Bidault have assumed. Already they are encouraged to do so by sundry comments in Britain. The London Times, for instance, says that the right body to respond to Mr. Marshall's initiative is the European Commission. We dissent from this view. It is, of course, a facile argument to say that instead of setting up new groups we should take advantage of existing machinery. But the record of the European Commission so far gives little hope that any project or program would be forthcoming worthy of American aid. Those who make the suggestion, it seems to us, are not aware of what has been going on within the commission. Otherwise they would be backing other means for responding concretely to Mr. Marshall's initiative.

The commission was set up by the United Nations after long and patient pressure upon the Russians. It looks as if the Russians capitulated only after their satellites, faced with the liquidation of UNRRA, forced their hands. The satellites doubtless felt they could not wait forever for the American slump on which the Russians appeared to be counting. They need to set their economic systems in order, and this can be done only by repairing ties with other trading nations, and uniting in a program of rehabilitation. Hence, they welcomed the European Commission, even though its mandate was merely to study Europe's needs, not to exercise any powers of operation. It revived hope in Europe that it would result in a frontal attack on European problems. In that expectation the delegates met at Geneva on May 5.

However, it became evident from the first day that the Russians were determined to block all progress. They wanted an indirect veto power. They called for the liquidation of the European Coal Organization and the European Inland Transport Organization. They wanted to restrict the agenda. They insisted on the exclusion of any economic issue touching Germany. These tactics were so disheartening that after an adjournment to take stock of no-progress, the Swedish chairman of the commission decided to fly to Moscow and try to melt Russian intransigence. The outcome still has to be seen. To be sure, a dulcet tone is to be noted in last-minute Russian comment on the fresh line being pursued by America and western Europe. An example was the extraordinary tribute to America which Ambassador Novikov paid last Thursday in his speech in Chicago. But, as Secretary Byrnes said about Argentina, words can no longer take the place of deeds. The sands are running out, and, if the present opportunity is lost, we shall allow Russia to create the thing she contemplates by hamstringing action, namely, a world slump.

If the Europeans want to take time by the forelock, they will reject any diversion of the Marshall idea into the European Commission. The commission is too cumbrous for the purposes intended by the Marshall initiative. It is a debating society. It includes Americans, though Secretary Marshall wants to keep hands off the new proposition, on the premise that only a European get-together can promote a scheme or schemes for American consideration. To be sure, a liaison with the European Commission should be maintained, so that projects could be submitted to the commission as well as to Washington. But what is required are more of the functional bodies for Europe that Russia has been trying to ditch in the European Commission—all working under a steering committee composed of top level men armed with authority. This ought to be made clear to Mr. Molotov as the fixed and immediate goal of Britain and France.

"Mission To Moscow"

Mr. Joseph E. Davies has denied with much heat and bitterness a published allegation that the movie called Mission to Moscow, adapted from his book, was made as the result of pressures applied by Washington on a reluctant Hollywood. This allegation was said to have been based on testimony purported to have been given by Mr. Jack Warner, of the well-known Warner Brothers, to a secret session of Representative Thomas' Committee on Un-American Activities.

Mr. Davies' book, if you remember, was a mild sensation at the time of its publication, mainly because it defended the official Soviet version of the purge trials of 1936-37, including the putative Trotskyite-Nazi conspiracy, and of the Hitler-Molotov pact. Thus Mr. Davies asserts that, so far from needing to have official pressure exerted, he was being supplicated by various movie companies competing for the rights to the book.

Apparently, Warner Brothers was not one of them; for Mr. Davies asserts that he telephoned Mr. Warner and "told him frankly that I would prefer his company should do it, and they could have the film rights if his company wanted them . . . As far as the terms were concerned, he could write his own ticket . . . That is how Warner Brothers became interested in producing Mission to Moscow."

What interests us most, however, are the reasons given by Mr. Davies for wanting to have the movie produced. After reciting in some detail the unhappy situation of the Allied military fortunes early in 1942, Mr. Davies observes that the "disaster would have been catastrophic if Hitler smashed Russia . . . The Allied leaderships and their armies and their peoples were doing everything possible to help Russia and to sustain their morale and courage . . . The book, Mission to Moscow, was written for that purpose, and to bring better understanding and confidence between fighting allies."

Here, then, is a frank admission that what purported to be a serious historical testimony, was written from motives that had nothing to do with historical accuracy. The "better understanding and confidence" was to be promoted by seeking to propagate historical fictions. The same purpose inspired the production of the movie. In discussing it on this page, at the time of its release in 1943, we observed that it would afford a good test whether Hollywood could exert the same influence on popular belief and opinion in matters of history that it has exerted on "such things as dress, language and manners."

It is comforting to recall that the picture was a failure both as propaganda and as a theatrical venture, which may or may not explain why the producers might desire to disclaim responsibility for it. It aroused a good deal of indignation in some quarters, as we said it would, "by representing the international policy of Russia in relation to the German menace as having been consistently right, and that of France, Poland and Britain as having been disingenuous or misguided or both." But Mission to Moscow aroused very little applause in any quarter, including even the extreme Left. In Russia, where, according to Mr. Davies, it was expected to "sustain morale and courage," the picture, if we remember correctly, was never publicly shown at all. For the Russian leaders, who know considerably more about the arts of propaganda than Hollywood, understood what response might be expected from those who had experienced in person or through their families the terrors of the purges.

New Labor Act

Now that the Taft-Hartley bill is the law of the land the great obligation of the Government is to put it into operation with as little friction as possible. The overriding of the President's veto in both the House and Senate, by substantially more than the two-thirds vote required in each instance, leaves no doubt that the bill reflects in general policy the will of the people. We think it should be accepted in that spirit.

The clash between President Truman and the Republican majorities in the Senate and House has undoubtedly dragged the issue into politics. Yet the bill can scarcely be said to be a partisan measure. In the House 60 per cent of the Democrats voting were for it even when it carried the mark of a presidential veto. In the Senate 20 Democrats voted to override the veto and 22 to sustain it. Such liberal and fair-minded men as Senators Hatch, Fulbright and Holland were among those who cast the winning votes on the Democratic side. It is a pity that, in spite of this opposition from his own party and in the face of certain defeat, the President did not have better judgment than to imply that enactment of the measure will "adversely affect our national unity." As for Senator Morse's comment that organized labor "is going to dig in along a united front to prevent the application of this bill," we think that is a gross insult to labor. It implies that labor does not believe in democratic government and is not willing to abide by the will of the majority in matters of broad public policy.

The Administration's last-ditch attitude in fighting the bill puts it under an especially heavy obligation to take a thoughtful view now that the measure has become law. For purposes of argument the President had put the most unreasonable and extreme interpretation on many provisions. Now it becomes necessary to administer the act with fairness and temperate regard for the policy that Congress is seeking to effectuate. It will not be a pleasant task for the Administration or for the National Labor Relations Board. But it is an obligation that must be faced with sincerity, good temper and diligence if the strength of our democratic system is to be maintained in this critical period.

Congress, too, has acquired a heavy obligation. It has written this act into the books without removing all of its defects. Modification of some of the more harsh and doubtful provisions will undoubtedly be needed. Congress can unquestionably ease the problem of making the new law effective by studying its operation. To this task it ought to assign its most skilled and experienced members. We think that the appointment of Senator Ives to head the joint committee "to study and report on basic problems affecting friendly labor relations and productivity" would go a long way toward assuring labor that legitimate grievances against the new act will be carefully weighed and that corrections found to be warranted will be promptly recommended. The very nature of the task calls for a man of Senator Ives' background and temperament. It is especially important to name a chairman with whom organized labor will freely cooperate. For the committee's first task will be to smooth out the friction points of the present legislation and to adjust its operation in the light of experience.

Aid To Satellites

If the thinking of our Congressmen in the past has been of the caliber illustrated by Congressman Dayton Phillips recently on the radio, I have been sadly remiss in my civic duty. Heretofore, I have been under the impression that our legislators were far better informed than I. Now I know the paucity of correct information existing in the minds of some is a potential weapon in the hands of the Communist parties of eastern Europe.

My reason for saying this is that the aid any country sends to the satellite nations is just so much sand in the machinery of their attempt to pauperize, disrupt and bleed the people to the point where they are utterly helpless. Either that or they will be driven to revolt. Russia will come in and take over lock, stock and barrel in either event. Russia needs time for this. When aid comes from abroad, Russia is set back just that much further. Witness the howl that Pravda put up when the Greek-Turkish aid program was announced by the President.

Representative Phillips is under the impression that our GIs were our ambassadors of good will. But he completely fails to realize that millions of people from the Baltic to the Black Sea have never seen a GI.

He talks about letting our magazines and newspapers tell those countries all about America. The only places they are seen are in the libraries maintained by the State Department. He talks about the Associated Press and the United Press carrying our message to them. But what papers are allowed to print foreign news dispatches wholly and completely without excision?

Mr. Phillips would confidently rest on his laurels in the belief that the overpowering might of our weapons and equipment has made all the impression that's necessary in Europe. The only American equipment seen in eastern Europe is the obsolete Army 6x6 truck and the jeep—all driven by Russians or their collaborators, the Communists in government jobs.

Having spent almost a year on the Russian-Polish and Russian-Romanian frontiers, I can assure him he's way off the beam and that by taking the stand he now does he's playing right into the Kremlin's hands. I have seen at first hand the technique used to reduce these people to the lowest ebb of human existence and my ears still ring with the ardent pleas to send everything and anything that will help prevent them from being squeezed out of existence by the Russian bear's claws.

Scientific Information

Does Russia spend huge sums on spies in our governmental agencies to secure knowledge of our developments along technical lines? If she does, she is nuts, when all she has to do is to wait for us to hand her the information on a silver platter.

If a fellow traveler in one of our technical laboratories wants to transmit to an enemy country information about developments in that laboratory, all he has to do is to publish the information as an article of news in our newspapers and the law cannot touch him. We seldom pick up a newspaper without running across a description of technical developments arrived at after an expenditure of thousands of dollars by the American taxpayers.

As I write I have before me an article stating that during the late war about 70 per cent of the aluminum ore used in our war machine had to be imported through submarine infested waters of the Carribean. The article goes on to say that the Bureau of Standards has discovered a way of making aluminum from native clays. The article describes the process in detail, naming the acids employed, the temperatures of roasting, etc.

There has been enough material published in the newspapers concerning uranium, plutonium and the methods of making and utilizing the same to give the enemies of this country a good start toward the acquisition of the atomic bomb. Our scientists seem to feel that if the data can be found in known publications there is no reason why it should not be discussed. But why give an enemy the short cut by collating for him data which he might or might not discover for himself after long and painstaking effort?

Congress should prohibit the publication of the results of governmental research until a board of censorship composed of the officials charged with national defense approves such publication.

If Russia and the German scientists in her pay cannot put two and two together in the use of the material we hand them they must be dumb indeed, but no dumber than we are in handing it to them.

Poor Quality

There are many figures presented on the cost of living, but all of them are predicated upon a so-called base price or base year. The resulting figures can prove anything, dependent upon the year or price used as 100 per cent.

Aside from the figures, which show an enormous increase in the cost of living, no allowance is made for "what was" and "what is." In 1936 you could buy a pair of winter rubber shoes for $2, and this pair usually lasted 10 years. Now you pay $3, a 50 per cent increase, but that pair of rubbers will now only serve you two years because they are of inferior quality or made of a cheap substitute for rubber. Here we have a 250 per cent increase instead of 50.

The same thing is true of clothing, tools and many other articles. For these articles you pay more, get less, and they do not last as long. Let us look at another way of cheating the public. Besides getting inferior synthetic substitutes for natural products, we get smaller packages and pay considerable more for them. Liquid articles formerly sold in quart bottles are now reduced to fifths at a much higher price. Cans are reduced in size. In butter they add oat flour to make bulk. In chili powder they add rye flour.

Summing this all up, we are fools, are being fooled and will continue to be fooled unless we appoint and elect men in the Government service with brains to help us poor suckers.

Communism In North Africa

The "escape" of Abd el Krim can be expected to add to the political unrest in French North Africa, reports of which have been appearing in our press. These events emphasize a significant problem for our American foreign policy-makers. Thousands of American lives were lost and a tremendous expenditure of military resources was made to bring this area to our side in the recent struggle. With the eastern Mediterranean countries as our new frontier, our policy must include preventing French North Africa from falling into unfriendly hands. If political changes are developing on the south shore of the Mediterranean, we should not remain indifferent to the nature of these changes.

From Casablanca reports have been received that Communists have organized an anti-American campaign and are creating sentiment against nonexistent American expansion in that region. The significance of these activities should not be overlooked, nor the assumption made that this is merely another example of a Russian organized war of nerves against us. It would also be dangerous to dismiss the reported Communist support of the Arab nationalist movement with the generalization that the Moslem religion and communism are incompatible.

By themselves, the Moroccan nationalists are not strong enough to achieve independence. With the help of French and native Communists, and with international pressure from the Arab League countries, they might loosen the ties sufficiently to prevent effective control by a divided metropolitan France. A nationalist-Communist united front in North Africa would result as elsewhere in ultimate Communist control because of their superior organization and their virtual monopoly of the press in these countries.

Their efforts are further facilitated by the old technique of keeping a foot in both camps, as the Communists operate two parties in Morocco, one for the French and another for the natives. While the nationalists have no political life or press, practically the entire Moroccan press is in Communist hands.

The Communist effort to smash the French Union is based on their opposition to political stabilization or economic improvement in Western Europe. Since American assistance is the main hope of such stabilization, an anti-American campaign must be organized simultaneously with an alliance with the Arab nationalists. The French have grandiose plans for political and economic improvements in North Africa, but they also have insufficient capital. Only American investment can develop the economic potential of the region and raise the standard of living.

In France, two conflicting programs for meeting the problem in North Africa are gradually emerging. One group would grant the natives a large measure of political and economic liberty within the French Union, develop the national resources, and invite American capital to participate in the development. They believe that the empire can be saved for France only by following such a progressive program. Supporting this viewpoint is the largest part of the Socialists and non-Communist liberals in French politics.

The other group is composed of the die-hard colonists and ex-Vichyists who were anti-American before and during the North African invasion. They oppose American capital because they fear losing their economic privileges. Their policy is to sit tight, give no ground to native aspirations, and parade troops and tanks at any sign of trouble. The Communists find themselves allied with this group in opposition to American economic assistance, but are astute enough to seek a mass base in the colonies by an alliance with the native nationalists. If they can turn them against America, they believe the future is theirs.

The "escape" of Abd el Krim presents these problems in a sharper form. If he can reach Morocco—and there is no reason to assume that he cannot—we will be confronted with a new trouble zone for our foreign policy planners.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Over The Barrel

IN SENDING the Taft-Hartley labor bill to the White House, the Republicans in Congress were in effect saying to Mr. Truman: Heads I win, tails you lose. From the point of view of 1948 politics they stood to gain whether the bill became law or whether it was rejected.

A little background, plus a glance ahead, makes clear why this was so. There was hardly a chance, once the measure was given the proper turn of moderation and reasonableness, that the end result for the Truman Administration would be anything but a red ensign in the political balance sheet.

One of the most persuasive arguments for a veto came from Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug. In a letter to the President, he analyzed the labor bill in relation to the coal situation—and since coal means John L. Lewis, Krug undertook to measure the effects of the legislation against his guess as to Lewis' intentions.

THE STRONG possibility, as Krug outlined it to the President, is for a coal strike. It may not come next week, when Krug surrenders the coal mines to private ownership. The Northern operators may settle with the United Mine Workers' chieftain, leaving him free to crack down on the Southern operators.

But Lewis is almost certain to throw his weight around shortly after the June 30 deadline. In his struggle to become head of the whole labor movement, he has to demonstrate that he can get more than the other leaders, who have settled for so-called cost-of-living increases without strikes.

Under the terms of the bill passed by Congress, the President could get an injunction on the ground that a coal strike would constitute a national emergency. This would serve to delay a strike for from 60 to 80 days.

But the law could not prevent Lewis from striking in the fall. There are those who believe that the door may have been deliberately left open for Lewis. In any event, a coal strike is possible under the Taft-Hartley bill, and if it comes in the fall, the timing will be far more advantageous for the UMW boss.

In the face of such a situation, if the law is finally on the statute books, the President can point to the same weakness that he called attention to in his veto message. He can say that there is nothing in the law to stop a coal strike.

THE REPUBLICANS, however, will have a very powerful political comeback. You can almost write today the kind of speech that Senator Taft will make. He will say that obviously the President never wanted the law to work. Didn't he veto it? Didn't he make it clear that he was not in sympathy with the objectives of the overwhelming majorities in both houses of Congress?

A great many variations can be played on that theme. The kicker at the end is obvious—why the only way to get labor peace is to elect a Republican President who will honestly and sincerely try to enforce the law passed by a Republican Congress. If those kinds of speeches are made against the background of a prolonged coal shutdown, with all of its dire consequences at home and abroad, the effect in my opinion would be devastating.

This political line will be underscored by another important fact. The officials who must try to enforce the law all believed it unworkable and said so in memoranda urging a veto.

From the point of view of Republican strategy, the consequences of rejection and no law at all were obvious. Then, of course, they could say that the Democrats had destroyed the measure intended to bring about labor peace.

When the powers of Government are divided, with one party in control in Congress and another party in the White House, it is the President who almost always loses. That was the lesson of Herbert Hoover in 1931 and '32.

The tragedy is that these years of the great divide should come when there are so many crucial issues up for decision. One of them is free collective bargaining and the role of the labor union in our society. The politics of a pre-election year will not help much in the solution.

Children's Hospital

Need for the vital services of Children's Hospital grows apace with population in this metropolitan area. The hospital management struggles with problems of depreciation and obsolescence of plant and equipment, with the need of additional facilities and with rising costs and lower investment income. However, restoration of stricken children to health and activity justifies the effort, which, the board of directors here acknowledges, would be unavailing without the help of the newspapers. They tell their always responsive readers of the work and needs of the hospital.

The Post's part in promoting the plan for giving Children's Hospital refunds to be credited to its customers by the Potomac Electric Power Co. is only one of that fine paper's many services to the hospital. We hope that the response will be so general as to make it possible to replace a 75-year-old building long since condemned for patient occupation—space urgently needed if the hospital is to fulfill its purpose.

Children's Hospital and the thousnads of children who will benefit thank you for your part in a splendid demonstration of community effort.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The New European Policy

ON FRIDAY of this week for the first time since the war there will be a meeting of Foreign Ministers of the great powers in which the United States is not a leading participant. Mr. Molotov is coming to Paris at the invitation of Mr. Bevin and M. Bidault, who acted promptly as soon as they understood the controlling idea of Secretary Marshall's Harvard speech—that the United States would henceforth be able to assist in the recovery of Europe only if the leading nations of Europe could agree on how Europe was to use our help effectively.

Lippmann

This is the beginning of a new chapter in the work of settling the war. All the previous conferences have been dominated and determined by a political and an ideological contest between America and Russia. The result has been to compel the European nations, including Great Britain, to choose sides. For Russia and America are non-European powers. Though both have vital interests in Europe, neither is by tradition and instinct primarily European, and their predominance in all the discussions has interfered with the natural tendency of the European peoples to come together.

Yet the unity of Europe, at least in the form of economic arrangements, is necessary to peace and recovery. That unity cannot be achieved if the Europeans must always look first to Washington or to Moscow before they talk out their differences with one another. The family life of Europe is not likely to be restored if mother-in-law Russia and Uncle Sam are all over the house all the time.

SO WE are retiring to a discreet distance, and we are supposing that as a consequence the Russians will begin to draw back also. What reasons are there to think that if we relax our grip on the details of the European settlement that the Russians may eventually follow suit?

There are a number of reasons which may be expected to reinforce each other. For one thing, in offering to assist a united Europe, rather than to go on making bilateral agreements of aid with separate governments, we are destroying the whole idea, mostly though not entirely a propagandist's fable, that we have been trying to control Europe with American dollars.

To invite Europe to unite in order that we may assist it is the surest proof that we do not seek to rule Europe. The principle of aggression and domination is to divide and rule—never, a in Mr. Marhall's Harvard spech, to unite those who need help.

SECOND, we are not only offering to help on the very terms to which no European can take exception—namely that Europe shall control its own destiny—but we are in a position to make that help substantial and decisive. On what grounds can the Kremlin now forbid Poland and Czechoslovakia to participate in the benefits of a program of European recovery? If the Kremlin does forbid them to participate, it will teach its Slavic friends that an alliance with Russia is incompatible with reasonably prompt rehabilitation. Unless, therefore, Moscow is looking for trouble in its own orbit, it cannot afford to deny to its allies the benefits of participation.

Yet if Poland and Czechoslovakia, the two strongest economic powers in eatern Europe, join with Great Britain and France is formulating a program, a framework of European unity into which the German states can be fitted, will exist.

THIRD, in western Europe—primarily France, and then Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy—the Communist parties and their near allies cannot oppose or obstruct a European economic agreement without taking the blame for prolonging and aggravating the misery of the people. They cannot say that they are objecting to the new policy because they are against a "Western bloc." A policy in which Poland and Czechoslovakia participate is not a Western bloc, and French or Italian Communists can hardly continue to be more pro-Soviet than the governments which are more closely allied with the Soviet Union.

Fourth, under this policy Great Britain must in order to solve its own economic difficulties play its full part in Europe. As long as we took the initiative in every European discussion, British statesmanship was so preoccupied with us that it could not and did not focus on Europe.

AND WHAT if these hopes are dashed, if as we withdraw from the forefront of the conferences about Europe, the Russians take the opposite line, and begin to throw their weight around more than ever? If they do that, which we may hope they will not, they will demonstrate to the peoples of Europe that it is not America, and the Truman doctrine, and our getting "tough with Russia," which provoke them but their own decision to rule Europe or to ruin it.

If they take this line, we shall, after the experiment in retirement, come back into Europe with a clearer mandate, a clearer conception of the problem, and a new strategical method. It will not then be a question of arguing, or of elaborate indirect devices, as in Greece, for halting the advance of Soviet imperialism, but of positive measures and positive penalties—in the orthodox tradition of diplomacy and power politics—at those critical points where power, not merely influence, will exert its maximum effect.

Union Fires Red-Tinge Officer

Philadelphia, June 23 (AP).—The Upholsterers International Union (AFL) today dismissed Peter J. Warhol, 36-year-old Minneapolis local officer, from union membership on charges he violated a union bylaw forbidding adherence to Communist principles.

The executive board of the union affirmed unanimously the findings of a three-man trial board which heard Warhol's case in Minneapolis last April 15, 16 and 17.

The union bylaw states that no Communist, Fascist or Nazi, or a believer in their principles, practices or theories may hold office.

A union spokesman said it was rst time in the annals of American labor that a local official was tried by a union, found to have Communist leanings, and expelled from office and the union.

At the Minneapolis trial, International President Sal B. Hoffman, who acted as prosecutor, declared the union bylaw barred Communists from office "because we know that American Communists are agents of the Soviet government."

Warhol, who was business agent for Minneapolis Local 61 for 10 years, cited 20 months Army service in World War II as proof of his loyalty.

The trial records showed he acknowledged that at one time he was a Communist Party member and that he believed in the principles of Communism.

The Price Of Veto

By Mark Sullivan

What Has It Cost Mr. Truman?

FEW PRESIDENTS have ever, by one action, incurred so many detriments as President Truman took on himself by his veto of the labor bill. In the eyes of Congress certainly, and probably much of the country, he threw away precious assets. Some of them he had built up for himself during the latter part of his administration.

Sullivan

In the first year and a half of Mr. Truman's presidency, he had identified himself mainly with the wing of his party in which CIO was a spearhead and Mr. Henry A. Wallace a spokesman and symbol. This association came to an end last fall. Mr. Truman, as an act of his own, dismissed Mr. Wallace from his cabinet. The country, in the November election, checked any hope of CIO and its Political Action Committee to dominate the Democratic Party. Mr. Truman became thought of, by conservative Democrats and the country, as no longer identified with the school of thought symbolized by CIO.

This impression Mr. Truman largely destroyed by his veto of the labor bill. The bill had been supported by the conservative wing of the Democrats, as well as practically all the Republicans. Veto of it has been stridently demanded by CIO. By the veto Mr. Truman seemed, whether the seeming was actual or not, to be back with the associations of the early part of his presidency.

ONE OF THE ASSETS Mr. Truman had acquired came to him as a result of the spirit of good sportsmanship with which he accepted the results of the November election. In a formal statement, immediately after the election, he accepted its results and pledged himself to cooperate with Congress and with the Republicans as the party newly endowed with control. The pledge was not reluctant, it was generously willing in spirit and was carried out by Mr. Truman in the same spirit of cheerful amity. The country was pleased. Congress was pleased and reciprocal. There was a kind of era of good feeling. But there is little good feeling today.

The things Mr. Truman has thrown away or damaged by his veto are concrete and very important. He has gone counter to cooperation, and the damage to this is serious. Bipartisanship in foreign relations is still safe, but Mr. Truman will find Congress much less willing to give consideration to him in domestic matters.

Mr. Truman's veto went counter to a spirit that came in with the new Congress, a spirit of emphasis on the prerogative of the legislative branch of government, after several years of defense or subserviency to the executive department under the Presidency of Roosevelt.

Congress really feels that veto of the labor bill if not technically a trespass on the legislative function, had the spirit of intrusion upon it. Any President has power to veto any measure. But most vetos are of measures that have been passed by a simple majority of Congress. The circumstances of the labor bill make it an extreme case. Here was a measure which, before it went to Mr. Truman, had been voted for by more than two-thirds of both branches of Congress. In the House by more than three-fourths. That fact is justly a reason why the President might have hesitated about vetoing. By his veto he said in effect that one-third of Congress plus one man, the President, should frustrate the will of two-thirds of the legislative body. That is inherent in every veto. But here was a case in which more than two-thirds of the legislative body had actually spoken its will, and on which the immense majority supporting the bill had deep and dynamic convictions.

IF IN THIS CONDITION the President felt he should nevertheless veto the bill, he might at least have stopped with the act of veto. His efforts to make the veto stick, his having to lunch Democratic Senators who might possibly be susceptible to persuasion to vote in support of the veto, his broadcast appeal to the country, went beyond simple exercise of the right to veto. The rather emotional spirit of his address to the country and of his veto message added to the resentment in Congress.

Another reason made Congress feels its prerogative had not been fully respected. Congress knew that it and the committees who had drafted the original form of the labor bill in the two branches, really knew the measure and were equipped to pass judgment on it. The bill had been written and debated with minute discussion attending every provision, every phrase and word Congress felt that the President had no comparable equipment for judgment. If Congress could not write a good bill, after the care that had been put into the labor bill, the very ability of Congress to legislate was impugned.

And Congress knew that its committees had asked every important labor leader in the country to make suggestions about the labor bill and that the committees had been eager to give consideration to such suggestions. Congress knew that the attitude maintained by the labor leaders was one of opposition to any labor legislation whatever. Congress, after painstakingly writing the most careful bill it could, saw the attitude of the labor leaders served by Mr. Truman's veto.

The Kremlin Agrees

By Barnet Nover

Russia And The Marshall Plan

IT REMAINS to be seen whether Russia's decision to participate in the forthcoming talks on the Marshall plan represents a change of heart or only a shift in tactics.

NOVER

Only a few days ago, Pravda, organ of the Russian Communist Party, let go with all barrels at the American proposal. It saw no good in it whatever.

The Marshall plan, said Pravda, was only another name for the Truman doctrine. It was only a scheme "to unite and create some semblance of a system of collective responsibility of the European tributaries of Wall Street." Its purpose, Russian readers were told, was wholly selfish, namely, "to avert the economic crisis closing in upon America."

IN VIEW of this comment by one of the Kremlin's principal journalistic mouthpieces, the general assumption was that Russia would not touch the Marshall plan with a 10-foot pole.

But that was before sentiment in favor of the plan as a means, possibly as the only means, of saving Europe, began to manifest itself all over the continent, particularly in western Europe.

That was before Bevin's talk with Ramadier and Bidault. That was before the British Foreign Secretary, in words that may have frightened Henry Wallace by their bluntness but which probably left a deep impression on Moscow, made it clear that Great Britain would go ahead with Russia, if possible, without her, if necessary.

THE ONE UNCHANGEABLE aspect of Soviet foreign policy since the war has been under no circumstances to be left out of discussions which, whatever their purpose, may lead to the creation of a bloc from which Russia is excluded.

It happens that the Marshall plan is not political but wholly economic in its motivation.

"Our policy," said the American Secretary of State," is not directed against any country or doctrine, but against hunger, poverty, desperation and chaos."

It is for this very reason and because Europe's economic plight is desperate that the Marshall plan has aroused such great enthusiasm.

The men in the Kremlin realize that it would be fatal for Russia to take a stand directly counter to this rising tide of sentiment.

They also realize that it is quite feasible, given British and French leadership, for western Europe to be organized as an economic entity regardless of Russia's desires. And if western Europe is organized economically the end result, inevitably, would be precisely that western bloc which Moscow fears beyond everything.

IT WAS PRECISELY because of this fear of a western bloc that Moscow's affection for General de Gaulle, then provisional President of France, went down to zero in 1944 when he offered a vague suggestion that the countries of western Europe draw closer together.

For proposing a similar grouping, Winston Churchill has been, in Moscow's eyes, one of the archvillians of the world. And the Communist Parties in France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway and elsewhere have made opposition to a western bloc the No. 1 plank in their platforms.

UP TO NOW the European federation plan, whether involving all the countries of the continent or only those outside the Soviet sphere, has remained an academic abstraction, a pious hope.

The Kremlin realizes, however, that the Marshall plan, if carried out, can have such a west European federation as its inevitable by-product.

No wonder, then, that despite initial suspicions, Russia has now decided to take part in the forthcoming discussions with Great Britain and France. But whether her role in these talks will be cooperative or obstructionist is not yet clear.

CERTAINLY it is of the utmost importance that, in the desire to win over the Soviet, Great Britain and France do not allow the talks at Paris to degenerate into embittered and useless verbal exchanges such as have marked so many international conferences.

If Russia is really sincere in her professed intention to help in the task of European reconstruction her presence at the forthcoming three-power talks is to be welcomed.

She stands to gain a great deal if the purpose behind the Marshall plan is fully carried out. But if she tries to subvert that purpose to achieve her own particular political and economic ends, the wisest thing which the western powers could do would be to call off the talks and proceed on their own.

Boy Empties Pistol At Two Policemen

Boston, June 23 (AP).—An undersized schoolboy who had been hiding out from police four days emptied a pistol at two policemen today, then seized another youth at gunpoint to serve as a human shield, while for more than 10 minutes he held off a growing force of riot squad reserves.

The 15-year-old gunman finally was overpowered.

Greek Poor Welcome Relief Despite Full Store Windows

By M. W. Fodor

(Post reporter, authority on the Balkans and Near East, author of "Plot and Counterplot in Central Europe," "South of Hitler" and other works.)

Athens, June 23.—The poor are very poor in Grece, despite the luxurious shopwindows which are full of goods and despite the restaurants which have menus as elaborate as their American counterparts. The overwhelming majority of Greeks cannot afford these luxuries, nor the ordinary food sold on the markets, because the prices are prohibitive with incomes such as theirs.

Under these circumstances, packages from relatives or friends in the United States are most welcome. There are at present three chief ways of assistance: First, person-to-person aid, sent by ordiary mail from the United States to relatives in Greece; secondly, the Greek War Relief Association is selling 11-pound packages; and, thirdly, groups and associations in the United States are sending to sister groups packages of food and clothing. For example, Cretan-Americans or Americans from Lemnos are sending parcels to the homefolks in Crete or Lemnos. No clothing can be sold to individuals or to groups, yet such goods can be sent by individuals from the States to their friends.

Relatives in the United States are probably interested in the condition in which these parcels arrive. According to the director of the Greek War Relief, there are only a few areas in the north where there is difficulty in obtaining such parcels. By the director's account, there is little pilfering of parcels here.

Your correspondent tried to find, at random a few people who were receiving parcels from the United States. From three persons with whom I have talked, one received the parcels intact; two others complained that part of the parcel, especially valuable contents such as sugar, coffee and stockings, were removed en route.

The names of those who sent the pilfered packages are: Nick Treantis, 504 S. Halstead, Chicago, Ill., and Spiros Calles, 178 E. 2d st., Fond du Lac, Wis.

The sender of the package which reached its destination safely is: Pete Treantis, 2635 W. Highland ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

It appears to be essential that parcels be safely packed, wrapped with strong paper and tied with good-quality string.

Food Packages From Greece To United States Forbidden

New York, June 23 (AP).—Packages containing foodstuffs sent from Greece to this country have been banned and seamen have been forbidde nto bring such parcels into the country, Harry M. Durning, Collector of Customs for the Port of New York, announced today.

Durning announced last Saturday that thousands of food packages, most of them containing meats, had been coming into the United States, most of them from Greece. It was reported that between 100,000 and 160,000 pounds of food had arrived in recent months from the Mediterranean area.

In Athens, Greek officials said they had no knowledge of any campaign to misinform Greeks to the effect that food was lacking in the United States and Prime Minister Constantin Tsaldaris cabled Greek consular officials here to provide him with full details of the shipments.

Durning said the food shipments might have gone unnoticed but for the fact that the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture apparently traced an outbreak of hoof and mouth disease to 1539 cases of foodstuffs which arrived here on the S. S. Examiner last November.

In Washington, Mark Ethridge, United States representative of the United Nation's Balkan commission, said the shipment of food parcels from Greece to the United States "sounds like a first-class racket."

Ethridge told reporters after a call on President Truman that he could shed no light on the shipments, saying the matter had not come to the attention of his commission. He added:

"I don't know if there are any political implications involved."

Gambler Gets 20-40 Years in N. Y. Swindle

New York, June 23 (U.P.).—Jimmy Collins, playboy and gambler convicted in the sensational Merganthaler swindle, gambled today and was sentenced to 20 to 40 years' imprisonment by a judge who described him an as associate of the murdered West Coast mobster, Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel.

Collins, 44, refused to disclose what became of $350,000 unaccounted for in the $804,000 theft, despite a warning last week he would never "live a day outside prison" unless he talked.

Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz, who said Collins' connection with Siegel still was under investigation, told the Broadway and Hollywood playboy his silence was a "gamble on a long shot" in hope of having the conviction set aside.

"Some people in the underworld may have handcuffed him," Leibowitz said, implying that Collins may have taken Siegel's slaying in Beverley Hills, Calif., last week as a warning not to talk.

Collins was reported here to have been associated with Siegel in Hollywood and other night club interests. Collins recently spent most of his time on the West Coast.

Irving (Izzy the Eel) Cohen, co-defendant with Collins in the swindle case received a sentence of 7½ to 20 years imprisonment.

Siegel Slaying Baffles

Beverly Hills, Calif., June 23 (AP).—A district attorney's aide suggested today that the job of finding the slayer of Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, man-about-Hollywood, gambler and onetime public enemy, might be a tough one.

Said S. Ernest Roll, chief deputy district attorney, following a conference with police:

"There might have been a hundred different people who wanted Siegel out of the way."

Police Chief C. H. Anderson said he had information indicating Siegel was involved in a jewel racket operating between here and New York.

Police noted other signs of unrest in the Southwest's underworld.

From Calexico, on the Mexican border, came a police report of the assassination of Police Chief Juan Menesen of the adjoining Mexican city of Mexicali. Menesen was a key figure in United States-Mexican efforts to halt illegal narcotics traffic.

And in Los Angeles, Sol Turkin, 39, produce merchant with a long police record and string of aliases, was shot and killed by bullets on his wedding day.

4000 Nondiggers Strike, Close 200 Welsh Coal Mines

London, June 23 (U.P.).—Four thousand nondigging workers at more than 200 coal mines in South Wales struck today in an attempt to force the National Coal Board to recognize their union.

Miners reported to work as usual, but mine officials said coal production could not be maintained for long without administrative workers.

Strikers charged that despite the recently inaugurated five-day week in British mines, they still were working six and seven days.

Arthur Horner, Communist leader and secretary-general of the Mine Workers Union, described the strike as "foolish."

Rail Reorganization Bill Passed by House

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—Rains and floods over several States in the Midwest provided the background today for advancing feed grain prices on the Board of Trade. Both corn and oats finished at or only slightly under their day's highs.

Wheat displayed a tendency to lag behind feed grains, but advanced toward the close and ended with fractional gains. Hedging pressure from the Southwest served to check wheat advances at times, although the grain always had a steady undertone.

Wheat finished ½-¾c higher, July 2.18@2.18½; corn was 2¼-2¾c higher, July 1.93@1.94; and oats were 1 cent to 1⅛c higher, July 99⅞@93.

The Government made its initial purchase of 80 per cent extraction flour, the quantity taken being estimated at between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 pounds. This flour is wanted by the Army for feeding occupied zones of Europe. Private cables estimated the French wheat crop at 184,000,000 bushels, an improvement on earlier estimates of 144,000,000 bushels.

Stores Geared To Meet Slump; Profits Lower

By S. Oliver Goodman

Department stores generally have put their houses in order to the point where they can expect to weather any economic storm in the immediate future, it was indicated yesterday.

Prices have been cut ruthlessly where necessary to move "cat-and-dog" items, as post-Easter advertisements show. Outstanding orders, as indicated by Federal Reserve reports, have been drastically reduced. As of April 30, outstanding orders of Washington stores had been slashed 59 per cent as compared with those on the same date last year.

The readjustment process has not been entirely painless for the stores. Quarterly statements indicate that this year's profits are far below last year, even though most sales have been greater.

"In addition," one observer pointed out, "stores have built up reserves to take care of possible inventory depreciation but in view of the success of current operations, it seems less and less likely that the retailers will have to dig into those inventory reserves."

Inventories of local stores on April 30 were 33 per cent larger than on the same date last year, latest Federal Reserve report showed.

E Street Personality

Walk into Munsey Trust Co. and first person you ordinarily see is Christopher H. Pope, the bank's president. Behind a highly shined railing, he's in center with other bank officers on each side.

Pope

Ultra-conservative, he dresses and talks like you think a banker should. Rarely smiles but beams when you mention sulky racing. That's his favorite spectator sport. Likes to attend races at Goshen, N. Y. Plays fair game of golf, but hastens to add he never wins prizes—even at D. C. bankers' tournament where competition is never too expert.

Has been Munsey Trust president since 1938. Associated with that bank since 1913 when it was established. Helped guide institution from deposits of $1,429,823 at end of first year to present stature of more than 22 million dollars. Born October 28, 1879, in New York City, has been with Munsey interests for 52 years.

Md. Bond Issue Awarded

The Maryland Board of Public Works accepted yesterday a bid from the Harris Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago on $9,525,000 worth of general construction bonds.

The bank, representing a syndicate of eight buyers, bid $101.0227 for the par value $100 bonds and a premium of $98,434.88. This will make the net cost to the State on the 1.4 per cent bonds amount to 1.15 per cent.

The issue was divided into two loans, $4,625,000 representing the postwar construction program drafted last year and a five million dollar emergency construction program approved by the 1947 Legislature.

Used Car Sales Gain 25%

Washington sales of used autos are estimated about 25 per cent heavier in the first five months than in the like period last year.

Actual title transfers numbered 23,875 this year through May, but of this total it was estimated that about 20,000 were bona fide sales. The rest were said to be transfers from out-State licenses to District of Columbia tags.

225 Loan Aides at Outing

More than 225 local loan officials put aside their dignity for the day and frolicked yesterday at the Prince Georges Country Club. It was the sixth annual outing of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League.

Golfing was the principal serious event on the program with competition sharp for the District Title Cup.

Safeway Sales Up 42%

Safeway Stores, Inc., yesterday reported sales for four weeks ended June 14 of $86,138,238, an increase of 42.1 per cent over $60,606,519 in the same 1946 period. Sales of $494,370,657 for the 24 weeks ended June 14 were up 35.5 per cent from $364,788,330 in that period a year ago.

Chopped Beef Dividend

A meat dividend to stockholders was announced yesterday by Thomas Wilson, chairman of Wilson & Co., meat packers.

Wilson said the company was mailing to each of its 18,000 stockholders a 12-ounce can of chopped beef, a new product of the company. Stockholders received a deviled ham dividend in 1938 and a pork dividend in 1941.

Revised Report Issued

Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday issued a revised report on May kilowatt hour sales. The figures show sales last month in the metropolitan area totaled 139,274,665 kilowatt hours, a gain of 9.84 per cent over the same month last year. This was 300,000 more kilowatt hours than reported previously.

Short Interest Heavier

A prop for the bullish side was seen in the latest New York Stock Exchange compilation showing that the short interest in the month ended June 17 increased 226,102 shares to 1,540,493, largest aggregate since November, 1945. It was the fifth successive expanding "short" month. The optimistic angle here was that all these "sold out" shares must be repurchased some time or another. One of the oldest Wall Street adages is: "He who sells what ain't his'n, must buy it back or go to prison."

Million Words Per Minute Sent by Radio

By The Associated Press

A new radio communication system that can send one million words a minute means many broadcasters will become "electronic" newspaper publishers, Niles Trammell, president of the National Broadcasting Co., said yesterday.

For this reason and other reasons, he told a Senate Commerce subcommittee, radio should enjoy freedom of speech equal to the freedom of the press.

The new radio bill by Chairman White (R., Me.) does not assure this freedom, Trammell testified.

Debating a provision of the bill requiring that both sides be given the opportunity for radio time to discuss important public and political issues, members of the committee pointed to the broadcasts on the labor bill veto over the weekend.

Senator Johnson (D., Colo.) said President Truman's speech was carried on all the networks while that of Senator Taft (R., Ohio) did not receive such wide dissemination Friday night.

Trammell explained that Taft was given more time on Sunday night and he said he believed the Senator was satisfied.

"You can't regulate fairness," Trammell added.

Trammell explained the new radio communications system:

"It is known as Ultrafax. It was developed by Radio Corp. of America. It will be ready for a public showing some time this summer."

Each page is handled as a picture and these pictures are sent in rapid order. The pages are reproduced at the receiving end by a new high-speed process of photography.

Thus, he said, broadcasts might send an "electronic" newspaper into homes by this radio process.

"Radio newspapers will become commonplace," he said. "Practically every form of artistic expression will become available to the people direct from studio to home. . . .

Radio-Mail System

"In effect it is a radio-mail system which will surpass radio-telegraphy, wire telegraphy, cables and air mail in speed of operation. Here, television is used for communications.

"Where is the line to be drawn between a newspaper and publisher who delivers news, information, opinion and public discussion by truck and a news broadcaster who puts the same material into the home via the electronic delivery route?

"If present restraints are retained or new ones imposed, an autocratic or dictatorial government could determine what the people shall see as well as what they shall hear when television becomes an established service.

"No agency should ever be permitted by the threat of revocation of a license or denial of renewal to intimidate broadcasters as to the kind of program service they must render to the public."

Secondary Censorship

He said a provision of the bill requiring stations to identify the sources of all their news used in broadcasts, and labeling of news as distinguished from analysis and comment, is a "secondary censorship" of the kind used by the Nazis.

He said the radio rules were set up many years ago, when there appeared to be a scarcity of radio channels for broadcasts. But scientific and other developments have removed this scarcity, he added. He said there now are more than 5000 available in frequency modulation alone. So, he argued, even these controls over channels no longer are as vital as they were and the reason for government control has diminished.

Roxas tonight welcomed a group of globe-girdling newspaper publishers and editors with a state dinner in Malacanan Palace at which he awarded the Military Merit Medal to Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, former director of the Women's Army Corps, for wartime WAC services in the Philippines.

Mrs. Hobby, executive vice president of the Houston (Tex.) Post, thanked Roxas for the medal "on behalf of myself and the women of America."

The dinner was attended by distinguished Filipino and American officials as well as local editors and publishers.

The group arrived in Manila at 12:20 a. m. Manila time (10:20 a. m. EDT Sunday), from Bangkok. They will leave early Tuesday for Shanghai, arriving there at noon for a two-day round of events.

The group will meet Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and other high Chinese government officials in Nanking. They will take off from Shanghai for Tokyo on Thursday on the last leg of the Pan American world airways trail-blazing commercial flight around the world.

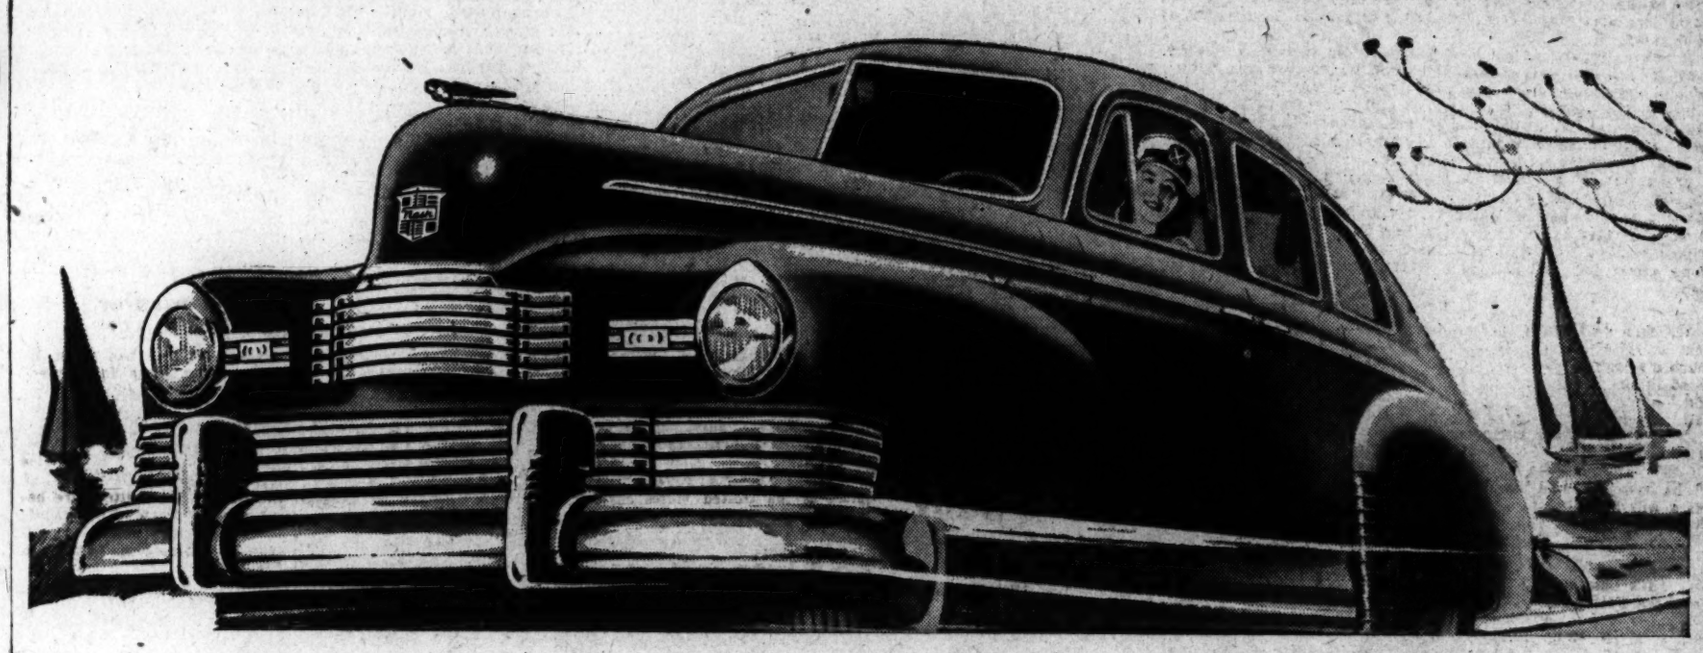
What's Back of the Big Swing to Nash?



Everywhere today, the swing is to the new Nash.

You see it on the highway. Car after car is a sparkling new Nash.

You see it in your neighborhood. Family after family has switched to Nash.

You see it in city after city. The outstanding dealers are handling Nash.

And listen to the "talk" about new cars. It's about Nash, too!

It's about the power of the Nash Ambassador. It's about the performance of the Nash "600"—the never-before-equalled big car economy of 25 to 30 miles on a gallon, at moderate highway speed.

The talk is about Nash "Conditioned Air"—the wonderful new system of automatic fresh air heat and ventilation . . . that banishes cold, dust, drafts and smoke from motoring forever!

The talk is about the amazing new Nash "600" construction. The single-unit body-and-frame that's all-welded, immeasurably stronger and quieter.

The talk is about the room in a Nash—the wider doors, the extra head-room, seat-room, leg-room. The back seat that can be made into a big comfortable double-bed.

The talk is about the new, easy handling of a Nash . . . and the wonderful ride of coil-springing on all four wheels.

Yes—and the talk is about value. For with all of these grand new developments, the 1947 Nash "600" is in the low price field.

This, then—is why Nash popularity is breaking all records. . . . Why, despite our best efforts, there are still not enough to meet the demand.

Maybe you can get other cars sooner than you can get a Nash "600" or a Nash Ambassador—but you won't get the thrill of a Nash. See your dealer now, and take the ride that you'll always remember.

The Unitized Body-and-Frame

Product of Nash research and engineering, new Unitized body-frame construction sets the pattern for cars of tomorrow. Built a new way, with frame and body welded into a single steel-girdered unit, useless dead weight is eliminated. You get better performance, yet sensational economy. 8000 spot welds eliminate weak body bolts and noise-making joints. Immeasurably safer and stronger.

Battered Tigers Lose 10th Straight

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

UNLESS HE IS AN INGRATE, Clark Griffith is now blessing one of the war-born rules of baseball to which he was taking violent exception last March with the complaint that it was unfair. Because of the ruling, the Nats have a third baseman who is a hot article, and it's plain we're talking about Young Eddie Yost who could be the rookie infielder of the year.

POVICH

Yost is giving the Nats a tremendous lift with his .277 batting average, and for the first time in five years the club is not weak at third base. It's all very acceptable to Griffith, of course, but surprising, too, inasmuch as Yost did not figure in the Washington owner's 1947 plans three months ago. Indeed, Griffith was attempting to get Yost off the Washington club last March.

That's when Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler said it couldn't be done. Despite Mr. Griffith's assertions that Yost needed minor league seasoning; that he had never played a minute of high school, college or minor league ball, Chandler was adamant. Chandler was upholding the rule guaranteeing returning war veterans a year's protection at their prewar jobs, and when he joined the Coast Guard in 1944, Yost was with the Nats.

TRUE ENOUGH, Yost wasn't cutting much of a figure with the Nats in those days. He was just a 17-year-old kid signed by Joe Cambria from the Long Island, N. Y., sandlots, and the Washington club was looking for a spot to farm him out when he joined the service. But Chandler refused to waive the rule, even when Griffith tried to build up a case to justify Yost's release.

"It's unfair," Griffith said at the time. "The rule does the boy an injustice. He's not ready for the big leagues, and sitting on our bench will retard his advancement. He needs minor league experience, and this rule that is supposed to protect him is working against him. I'm trying to do the right thing for the boy. It's for his benefit to be farmed out."

Yost himself recognized the logic of it all, and he, too, wrote Chandler a letter pleading that he be given a break, but it was useless. When the Nats broke camp, Yost seemed doomed to the club's bench. Cecil Travis was playing third base with new vigor, and the Nats couldn't send Yost to the minors unless they got waivers on him. The Phillies wouldn't waive, and Yost, and Griffith ranted at the irony of the workings of the rule designed to protect the boy.

MANAGER OSSIE BLUEGE, an old third baseman himself, the best of his time, in fact, was not quite smitten with Yost's ability to make the team in training last spring. "It's a pity he isn't a shortstop," said Bluege, who was envisioning Travis as the club's regular third baseman, and was skeptical of Yost's hitting ability. If the kid could play shortstop, Bluege was ready to gamble on him, but at third base, no.

It was in desperation that Yost finally got his chance. Travis was playing third base well enongh, but, of all things, he wasn't hitting. Bluege was ready to try anything, especially against left-handed pitching, and Yost got the third base job six weeks ago. He was saddled, too, with the tough lead-off spot in the batting order. How well he has succeeded is seen in the figures which show only Stan Spence and Buddy Lewis outhitting him.

Yost's success is one of the more romantic stories of the big leagues, because the boy stepped squarely into a regular third base job with no more baseball background than is offered by the Queens A. C., a glorified corner-lot team in New York. It's something of a tribute to Joe Cambria, the Nats' scout, who watched him in only three games and whipped out a Washington contract for Yost to sign.

BLUEGE SAYS Yost hasn't done anything wrong yet, except lay back too far on one bunt by Hal Peck of the Indians, "and that was as much my fault as his. I should have moved him in, but he'll learn those things for himself, I'm sure. He does everything else well, and I haven't seen him flinch yet on the hardest kind of a ground ball. I'd say he's in the big leagues to stay a long time."

From Bluege, that's a tribute. The Nats' manager has ever been critical of his men. Forgiveably enough, he'd like to see them in his own image, but the fellow who has come closest yet is Yost. At 20, he hasn't reached his physical peak as yet, and in a couple of years will have 10 more pounds of weight going for him which should produce the long ball all hitters like.

Speaking of that long ball, a champion is coming home Thursday. It's Lew Worsham, the former Washington caddy who now wears the United States Open Golf crown, and Washington will pay him honor with a parade up Pennsylvania ave., ceremonies in Post Square, a visit to the White House and a banquet at the Congressional Country Club. It's a deserving tribute to a nice guy and let's whoop it up.

Cubs Drop Giants to Third Place

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—Mort Cooper failed for the second straight time as a New York Giants' starter today when the Chicago Cubs belted the verteran right hander out of the box in a four-run seventh-inning rally for a 6-3 victory. The loss dropped the Giants into third place back of idle Brooklyn.

The first of Clyde McCullough's two doubles, followed by an intentional walk to Eddie Waitkus and Bob Sturgeon's triple brought home a pair of Chicago runs off Cooper in the second.

Griffin Bags 1st Round 75

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 23 (AP).—Bill Griffin of George Washington University shot a 38-37—75 today to trail the leaders by three strokes in the National Collegiate Athletic Association golf championships on the University of Michigan course.

An annoying cross-course wind sent scores skyrocketing but not for a couple of freshman club swingers who managed to stroke out par 72s to pace the field for the opening 18-hole play in the 36-hole qualifying round.

Oklahoma A & M's Bo Wininger, 24-year-old veteran of more than three years of Navy service, and San Jose State's Bob Harris, an 18-year-old, matched standard figures for the University of Michigan's none-too-easy course to take command over a record field of 303.

Earlier, Wininger's teammate, Loddie Kempa, sophomore southpaw competing his first season in big-time college play, caused a minor sensation by negotiating the outgoing nine in a 2-under par 34. But the best he could do coming in was a 39 to post a 73-stroke total.

Tied with him were: Denver University's Charles (Babe) Lind, last year's NCAA runnerup, who ran into trouble on the trip out but duplicated Kempa's 34 on the home leg, North Carolina's Harvie Ward, and Stanford's Bob Rosecrance.

Three University of Virginia players were far behind the leaders. Caroll Cooper and Raymond Loving, jr., went around in 84 and A. Patton Janssen scored an 82.

Ferrier and Harbert In PGA Finals Today

Detroit, June 23 (AP).—Leisurely Jim Ferrier of San Francisco and strutting Melvin (Chick) Harbert of Northville, Mich., blazed their way with a trail of birdies today into the finals of the twenty-ninth national PGA championship.

The two newcomers to the doorstep of the throne room of big time golfdom battle it out tomorrow over Plum Hollow's rugged terrain for the title surrendered in the first match play round by little Ben Hogan.

Ferrier, playing with almost maddening deliberation, gave Art Bell of Colma, Calif., a 10 and 9 beating, and whipped par by nine strokes in the semifinals today.

Harbert, although scrambling much of the time, turned back Vic Ghezzi, the 1941 champion from Kansas City, by 6 and 5, ripping five strokes off even figures.

Ferrier's huge margin tied the tournament record for semifinal play, Hogan having eliminated colorful Jimmy Demaret, this year's medalist, by the same score in 1946.

This is the second try for both Ferrier and Harbert in the play-for-pay classic. A year ago the Australian-born Ferrier set the qualifying record at Portland with 71, 63—134, and batted Lawson Little and Sam Schneider of Houston, Tex., out of the match play before succumbing to Demaret, 3 and 2, in the third round.

Worsham Shoots in Exhibition At East Potomac Friday

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Lew Worsham, who returns to Washington Thursday to receive the plaudits of his constitutents for winning the National Open Championship, yesterday added another local appearance to his schedule.

He will make his first exhibition start as the United States champion at the East Potomac course on Friday. There'll be no charge for spectators.

S. G. Loeffler, operator of East Potomac and the other public courses in Washington, flew to Detroit yesterday and completed arrangements for the match.

Loeffler, who gave Worsham his first set of golf clubs 12 years ago when Lew won a caddy tournament, had hoped to watch Lew play in the PGA at Detroit, but got there a bit late. Worsham was bounced out of the tournament by Vic Ghezzi Sunday in a quarterfinal match, 3 and 2.

Three public links pros, Cliff Spencer, of East Potomac; Al Treder, of Anacostia and Jerry Long, Rock Creek, will team with Worsham in the match which will start at 4 p. m.

Meanwhile, Worsham was mapping plans for future exhibitions and tournaments. Just now, he isn't decided whether he'll play in the rich Tam O'Shanter at Chicago next month.

Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret told George May, sponsor of golf's three-ring circus, that they will skip the event in order to play a series of exhibitions in Colorado that week and they want Worsham to join them. Byron Nelson may become the fourth member of that all-star quartet.

Worsham wants to cash in on the Open title as quickly as possible. He and Sammy Snead and Demaret the Eastern Seaboard may form a threesome and tour

First off, however, Lew goes to his new pro job, at Oakmont, Pa., where he hopes to make arrangements for his kid brother, Buck, to replace him during the summer tournament season. Worsham

Chisox Get 7 in Ninth, Lead 10-3

The Chicago White Sox came up with a seven-run rally in the first half of the ninth inning to lead the Nats, 10-3, last night at Griffith Stadium.

Early Wynn was chased after pitching eight full innings.

Wynn staked himself to a 3-0 lead in the second inning when, with two out and the bases full, he whaled a two-bagger to deep left that moved three home runs.

McBride Starts It

McBride singled to open the inning, but was snuffed out when Spence hit into a double play. Priddy restarted the rally by drawing a walk, Christman doubled to right and Evans was given an intetnional pass by Thornton Lee to set the stage for Wynn's blow.

With two out in the third, the two runnenrs stranded. After Evans singled and Yost walked with two out, Lee got out of another jam by fanning Lewis.

Wynn had two out when the White Sox tied the score at 3-3 in the fifth with a cheap run that stemmed from Philley's infield single. Appling followed with a single to left, and Philley who had stopped at second raced all the way home when the ball got away from McBride for an error.

A mild threat marked the White Sox seventh when Baker walked, with one out and reached second with two out, but Wynn retired the side on Appling's fly to Lewis.

The Nats muffed a better scoring chance in their own half of the inning when Vernon walked with one out and took second on McBride's single to short right. Lee averted damage when Spence grounded into a double play for the second time during the game.

White Sox bounced back with two runs of their own after Baker singled to right and Philley singled through the box. Appling scored them both with a long double to center.

Lee averted trouble for himself in the Nats' third after Vernon singled and Spence walked with two out. He fanned Priddy.

Cecil Travis Day Gets Griff's OK

Clark Griffith has given his approval to plans for a Cecil Travis Day at Griffith Stadium on July 26. Long a Washington favorite, Travis has been unable to regain his prewar effectiveness due largely to injuries suffered during the Battle of the Bulge. Committees are being set up to handle the details of the ceremonies, which will take place before the game with Cleveland.

Cards Lead Braves

Enos Slaughter's home run with two on base gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 lead over the Boston Braves at the end of three innings of their game at St. Louis.

Keep Name Alive

Worsham Must Win to Cash in Title

By Whitney Martin,

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP).—We have been wondering a little just what his newly acquired National Open championship will be worth to Lew Worsham in dollars and cents, and although we might be wrong we have come to the conclusion it won't be worth a fraction of what such a title was worth a score of years ago.

There probably will be a quick return from indorsements, and a few exhibitions, but the exhibition business isn't what it used to be and, unless Worsham continues to win consistently, the demand for his services will fade rapidly.

Worsham has the added disadvantage of being a comparative unknown. Were he Sam Snead, or Ben Hogan, or Jimmy Demaret, or Byron Nelson, the Open title would bring a much greater financial return, as those players have established and maintained their reputation over a period of time.

IN THE GALA 20's, when colorful figures such as Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour held a spotlight second only in brightness to that focused on the peerless Bobby Jones, the Open title was more than just a great honor.

It was worth up to $100,000 to the holder, if he happened to be a man of some color and consistency in performance.

Tour tournaments were comparatively few in those days, in comparison with the almost weekly schedule in effect in recent years. The golf-hungry fans, without the opportunity of seeing big fields of top-fighters competing, settled for exhibitions involving the stars, chief among them being the current Open titleholder.

NOWADAYS TOURNAMENT sponsors don't want primarily the Open champion. They want first Hogan, and Snead and Demaret, and Nelson, if Lord Byron is available. If the open champion is available, so much the better, but unless he is a "name" player he is not considered indispensable.

Mangrum, the 1946 champion, had something of a head start in cashing in on his crown, in that he was a former GI who had seen active service overseas. He made a quick "take," but he did not have the color or reputation of some of those he had bested, and he gradually faded from the spotlight.

Of the Americans, Snead probably would have profited most by an Open victory this year. He already held the British Open championship, and in addition he packs tremendous crowd appeal.

Galehouse Wins First Start for Bosox, 8-2

Boston, June 23 (AP).—Right Hander Denny Galehouse celebrated his return to a Boston uniform by giving up only six hits today as the Red Sox whipped the faltering Detroit Tigers 8-2.

An estimated 10,000 women were turned away from packed Fenway Park as the Tigers lost their tenth game in a row before 20,652 paid fans and 9813 women who got through the "Ladies Day" gates before they were closed.

The only two Tiger runs were driven home by starting and losing Pitcher Virgil (Fire) Trucks in the second inning.

After that Galehouse and his team mates shut the door.

The winners made eight hits and seven of their runs off fireballing Virgil before the end of third inning when Hal White took over. They added their other run at White's expense and were scoreless against Freddy Hutchinson over the last two frames.

The hustling Ted Williams doubled to the left center field barrier in the opening inning to score Don Gutteridge and Johnny Pesky, who had walked.

Pesky's bases-loaded single was good for two runs in the second and an additional Boston run tallied in that frame as Roy Cullenbine dropped a throw from Eddie Lake.

Four hits were good for two runs in the third and the eighth and final run came in the fifth when Gutteridge singled, stole second and sped home on Sam Mele's right field hit.

Yanks Hammer Cleveland, 8-5

New York, June 23 (AP).—Tommy Henrich's second double of the day, coming off Bob Lemon with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth inning, capped a four-run New York rally today to defeat Cleveland, 8-5. As a result, the Yanks' American League lead remained intact at two full games over Boston.

Joe Page was credited with his fifth win. He replaced Charley Wensloff who was spiked on the right ankle by Manager Lou Boudreau of the Indians in the sixth inning. Boudreau, who turned his ankle on the play, also left the game. Ed Klieman, the second Cleveland pitcher, broke his glasses and had his right eye cut in a collision with George Stirnweiss at first base.

Budge, Riggs Take Doubles

Forest Hills, N. Y., June 23 (AP). The second-seeded combination of Bobby Riggs and Donald Budge unseated the defending champions, Frank Kovacs and Fred Perry, today to win the national professional tennis doubles title as the week-long champion tournament came to a close.

Riggs held on to his crown as singles champion by outlasting Budge in yesterday's finals.

Riggs and Budge wrested the doubles title from Kovacs and Perry in four hard-fought sets, winning 7—5, 9—7, 4—6, 11—9. Second-seeded in the doubles, it was the first time the victorious combination had played together since 1942.

Riggs, now playing for a Ferndale, N. Y., club, and Budge, who hails from Oakland, Calif., got into the finals by surviving a drawn-out semifinals match with Wayne Sabin of Reno, Nev., and Welby Van Horn of Chattanooga, Tenn.

After their long singles battle yesterday, Riggs and Budge started their postponed semifinal against Sabin and Van Horn, but it was interrupted after it took 28 games to decide the first set in their favor. They completed the match this afternoon, winning 13—15, 2—6, 10—8, 6—3, 6—1.

Ingram Lauds Rival League

By John Chandler

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—Admiral Jonas H. Ingram, All-American Conference commissioner, said today there was "plenty of room for two major professional football leagues in this country," and spoke in warm terms of the rival National Football League.

Ingram and the vanguard of conference owners and coaches attended a Baltimore Touchdown Club luncheon and closely-guarded reports of several impending player deals.

Obviously referring to the much-talked of rapprochement with the National circuit which has refused officially to recognize existence of the year-old-AAC, Ingram told the gathering:

"Men of the National League have done a grand job of pioneering professional football over the past 20 years.

"I've never said one bad thing about the national league, and I never will.

"But this conference is here to stay. We have eight grand teams, and we have four outfits today better than the Washington Redskins." He did not name the AAC teams referred to.

Chesapeake Bay Fishing Goes Into High Gear

Fishing on Chesapeake Bay, spotty this year, finally went into high gear over the week-end. Sea trout, hardheads and rock were striking with vim and vigor, particularly in the vicinity of Solomon's Island.

Despite strong winds, and high seas that kept many boats away from the deep water, Captain Rody Langley guided a party into 42 rock weighing up to 3½ pounds, 22 sea trout up to 4 pounds, and 51 hardheads up to 4 pounds. The trout and hardheads were taken still fishing with the rock coming in the the boat through trolling with small white feather and no sinker.

Mark Cresap, Bill McCormick, Dick Paget, Herb Goodman and Ralph Murdock were in the party.

Out most of the season with a sore shoulder, Harris has appeared in only two games, both recently. He was credited with one victory and the decision in the other contest, which lasted 15 innings, went to another pitcher.

Harbert, Ferrier in PGA Finals round, 3 nd 1, to Newton Bassler of Carmel, Calif.

Both finalists are 32 years old, and made names for themselves as amateurs before turning professional, Harbert in 1939 and Ferrier in 1940.

While Harbert has never won a major fixture, Ferrier won the Australian Open twice and the Down Under Amateur four times, all before coming to this country in 1939 as a Simon-pure.

Ghezzi, usually one of the finest short iron players in the game, and an excellent putter, fell out of contention when he lost his touch.

Harbert, one of golf's longest drivers, was usually 30 to 60 yards ahead of the Kansan off the tees and generally inside him on the greens.

Time after time Ghezzi left long putts after short chip shots and then failed to get them down. The handsome favorite of the feminine galleryites, who tied for the National Open last year, missed putts ranging from 2 feet to 8 feet often enough to wreck his hopes.

Harbert, firing an outgoing 33, three under par with birdies on the sixth, seventh and eighth, held a four-up edge over Ghezzi at the morning turn, and was never threatened thereafter.

Harbert, who lives just six miles up the road from Plum Hollow and knows this tricky course like a book, was five up at the end of the morning round, and still three under par with a 69.

Ghezzi birdied the first hole after lunch, but lost the next two to birdies to go six down. On the 23d 24th and 25th, with Harbert in trouble and scrambling, Ghezzi three-putted from 30 feet, and then missed a couple of five-footers to allow Harbert to hold his margin.

On the 27th, Harbert needed two to get out of a trap, but Ghezzi fumbled that chance, too, to halve the hole in over-par figures.

The end came on the 391-yard 31st, where Harbert pitched 18 inches from the stick from 40 yards out for a birdie, while Ghezzi hit his second over the green and barely got on in three. He missed a 30-foot putt, picked up his ball and conceded the hole and match with a wide grin.

Up to that point Ghezzi and Harbert had been as cool and aloof toward each other as a pair of U. N. delegates.

Fellow-Californians Ferrier and Bell, however, chatted like old friends playing an afternoon twosome, despite the shellacking the former Austrailian handed out.

The tipoff on that match came on the first hole when Ferrier canned a 7-foot putt for an eagle, and then followed with winning birdies on the third, sixth and seventh to take a four-up edge at the turn.

Ferrier, putting like a champion, needed only 41 shots on the 27 greens, as he carded 9 birdies and an eagle. Harbert, in winning the bout with Ghezzi, had 53 putts in 31 holes.

Brown Beats Sturgess in 5-Set Match

Wimbledon, June 23 (AP).—Californian Jack Kramer set the pace by dropping only one game in a straight set victory as all eight seeded men's singles players marchade through the first round of the Wimbledon Tennis championships.

Kramer, top-seeded favorite, disposed of Bill Moss of Britain, 6—0, 6—1, 6—0, losing only the fifth game in the second set when he netted three balls.

The Los Angeles ace had been expected to have such an easy time that his match was moved to the No. 2 court while defending champion Yvon Petra of France, Czech Jaroslav Drobny and Tom Brown, jr., of San Francisco drew stiffer opposition on the showplace center court.

Brown, who was ranked third in this ancient competition, just squeaked through against Eric Sturgess of the South African Davis Cup team, 7—5, 5—7, 6—2, 2—6, 8—6.

John Bromwich of Australia, seeded second, lost seven games in his straight-set triumph over Jost Spitzer of Switzerland, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

Dinny Pails, the Australian champion, showed impressive form in breezing past L. E. Carter of Britain, 6—1, 6—0, 6—1 and Geoff Brown, the other seeded Australian, was never extended in stopping Bill Robertson of the United States, 6—1, 6—0, 6—3.

Petra, whose form had been uncertain because of a recent foot operation, showed no evidence of his injury in smashing Don Butler of Britain, 6—2, 7—5, 6—0, and Bob Falkenburg of Los Angeles, who won the London championship last week, trounced Philippe Washer of Belgium, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

Drobny, who eliminated Kramer last year in this same tourney, knocked out Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Ecuador, in one of the opening day's feature matches, 7—5, 7—5, 6—3.

Budge Patty of Los Angeles, an unseeded American, conquered Australian Billie Sidwell, 4—6, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3, breaking through service in the fifth set for a 4—2 lead that eventually meant the match.

J. A. Barry, a 19-year-old lad from New Zealand, scored the only upset of the day by outlasting G. L. Paish of Britain in a sizzling match, 0—6, 4—6, 8—6, 6—4, 6—4. Paish held a 6—5 lead in the third set before Barry made his comeback.

Lennart Bergelin of Sweden, playing easy, graceful tennis, had little trouble disposing of R. Guise of Britain, 6—2, 6—3, 6—1.

Maryland Officials Study University Stadium Plans

Annapolis, Md., June 23 (AP).—The State board of public works today directed a study of a plan submitted by President H. C. (Curley) Byrd of the University of Maryland for a $2,350,000 construction program to be undertaken at no cost to the State government.

The study will be made by Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman and Joseph McCusker, deputy comptroller. They also will confer with Attorney General Hall Hammond on legal aspects of the proposal.

The two biggest items in Byrd's College Park program are a stadium and physical education building. He suggested $900,000 for an auditorium and physical education building, $800,000 for a new stadium, $350,000 for a university chapel and $300,000 for a swimming pool.

University officials have been anxious to get going on a stadium so that it can be ready for use in the 1948 football season. President Byrd proposed that $360,000 be made available at once so work on the stadium could begin this summer.

Under the plan outlined to Governor Lane and other members of the board, the university would use $350,000 now in the treasury of the athletic board, and would utilize about $1,160,000 expected from the Federal Government in GI tuition fees.

The rest would be borrowed, Byrd reported to the board, to be repaid from athletic board receipts and by an increase of $20 in student general activity fees for the next two years only.

The board will make its decision on Byrd's proposal after Kirkman and McCuskey have completed their survey.

Lawless Miss and Annie's Dream Score Victories at Charles Town

Both After Boston Man As Top Horse

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 23. Two rivals of Boston Man for the title of "Best Horse of the meeting," were in action today in separate races and each operated with distinction.

G. Y. Booker's Lawless Miss, a filly who was on top of The Doge at Delaware Park for a quarter, proved a five-length winner of the Franklin Manor Purse, featuring the Monday program.

Annie's Dream, owned by H. N. Warren of Alexandria, Va., won the secondary feature, the fifth race, by two and a half lengths to add spice to arguments as to the merits of the three "Big Horses."

5-Length Winner

Lawless Mis won at a mile and a sixteenth by the comfortable margin of five lengths. Annie's Dream's victory was at four and a half furlongs, geting home two and a half lengths in front of the closest opposition.

Both were odds-on favorites. Lawless Miss paid $3.40 and Annie's Dream $2.60. Both flirted with track record time, the former being clocked in 1:45 3/5, only the fraction over the mark set last Friday by Boston Man. The Warren mare stepped the short sprint distance in :49 4/5. She holds the mark for the oval of :48 3/5.

Jockey Emilo Carrillo had some trouble keeping Lawless Miss under control early. She bumped Lady Romery, but, once in front, she had things her own way. Fitz Mede and Flags rallied in the closing stages but they only achieved money positions.

Horse Destroyed

The race was costly to W. V. Keegan, who lost his filly, Hot Pole. This four-year-old filly was making a move when she broke a leg and had to be destroyed.

Annie's Dream, ridden by Apprentice Jimmy Baird, had to hustle to get to the front in her test. Once in command, she took the shortest way home. There was rough work behind her. Sure Footed and Flying Raid chased the daughter of Gino into the wire.

Baird also had a hand in the $37.60 payoff on the daily double. He won the second race with F. Spinelli's Border Pat at a $10.20 mutuel after Jockey Willie Nertney turned in a nice job of getting Elmer Kratz' Ingerfire home on top in the first event at $10.

DEAR FOLKS:

Jockey Willie Kelly, injured Saturday during training hours, underwent an operation today. Trainer W. G. Whitney, kicked while in the paddock, is still in the hospital. Mrs. L. A. Whiteley's Lalli Rose, a 5-year-old daughter of Dauber and Twilo, died this morning after contracting fever after her race several days ago. Jimmy Baird tops the riders with 23 winners in 22 days. Sammy Palumbo has 18, Stanley Austin and Emilo Carrillo, 11, and Willie Nertney, 9. Trainer Marvin Greene has shipped Lou Hurwitz's Dark Cloud to Delaware Park where his brother Stanley will take over the training. Purses have been gathered by 148 different horses since the meeting began. The old age championship around here goes to J. G. Curran's Careless Knight. He is 14 years old. Jockey Sammy Palumbo took a day off and will resume action tomorrow. R. A. Chapman has purchased Bail Me Out from L. McCurry and Johnny Morris will do the training. Favorite players have collected on 55 choices in 176 races to date. The 9-year-old Donald C., almost wrestled three assistant starters into submission getting him into the gate but he knew what he was on the track for and ran away with the race. See you on the rail . . . BILL.

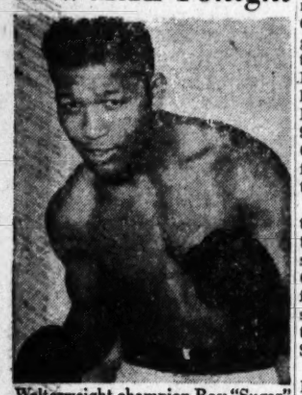
Welter Title "Go" on WMAL Tonight



Welterweight champion Ray "Sugar" Robinson (above) tonight for the first time defends his title at Cleveland Arena, Cleveland, Ohio. Hoping to ascend the throne is Jimmy Doyle, classy Californian.

Robinson won his crown by defeating Tommy Bell in New York last December. Since then the "Sugar" has confined his ring activities to overweight contests. Ray is as elusive as a phantom and hits like chained lightning.

Meeting Doyle, however, may prove tough for the champ. Jimmy possesses plenty of courage and a good left jab. His extraordinary skill at picking off punches in mid-air, his feinting, make it hard for an opponent to sink a solid shot. Also he boxes right out of the book.

Enjoy the excitement, blow-by-blow, on Gillette's Cavalcade of Sports over American Broadcasting Co. and WMAL (630 on your dial) at 10 p. m.

Mrs. Cralle Shoots 81 to Trail Champ

By Robert L. Moore

Staunton, Va., June 23 (AP).—Mrs. James W. Reynolds of Richmond's Glenwood Country Club gave a brilliant exhibition of her golfing craftiness today when she toured the par 76 Ingleside Country Club layout in 78 strokes to romp off with medalist honors in the annual State Women's Championship Tournament of the Virginia State Golf Association.

The blonde defending champion's performance over the 6394-yard course easily established her as the favorite to win this twenty-second renewal of the State classic since the closest anyone else came in the 18-hole medal play qualifying round was the five over par 81 carded by Mrs. J. B. Cralle, jr., representing the Monterey Country Club of Roanoke.

Trailing Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Cralle in the medal competition were Mrs. H. N. Allen of the James River Club in Newport News, who came in with an 82; Mrs. C. G. Quesenbery of the Farmington Club at Charlottesville, 83, and Miss Francis Rand of the Hermitage Club in Richmond, 85.

Par out	454	355	435—38
Mrs. Reynolds out	454	355	435—38
Mrs. Cralle out	474	355	535—41
Mrs. Allen out	564	455	545—43
Mrs. Quesenbery out	365	355	545—41
Miss Rand out	454	366	545—42

Mrs. Quesenbery in	565	553	544—42—83
Miss Rand in	855	533	653—43—85

The others among the 16 qualifiers for the first round of match play Tuesday in the championship flight were Mrs. G. S. Hall of Amelia, and Mrs. S. R. Hall of the Country Club of Virginia, Richmond, who finished with 86; Mrs. C. B. Walden, Country Club of Virginia, and Mrs. Ruth Rhodes, of the host Ingleside Club, 88s; Mrs. R. C. Hockaday of James River and last year's runner-up, 89; Mrs. Llewellyn Miller of Farmington, 90; Mrs. Gordon A. Griffin of the Commissioned Officers Club, Norfolk, and Mrs. Julia Bailey, Country Club of Virginia, 90s;

Mrs. Smith fought her way into the select 16 the hard way. When today's qualifying round was over, she and Mrs. Basil Coale of the Country Club of Virginia were tied for the 16th place in the championships flight with 93s. They decided things on the 19th hole with Mrs. Smith winning with a par four.

To become this year's medalist, Mrs. Reynolds shaved off four strokes from the 82 fired by Mrs. Quesenberry in the 1946 classic for the same period.

Mrs. Reynolds was paired for Tuesday's first round of match play with Mrs. Smith, the twosome being scheduled to tee off in the first match of the championship flight at 9:45 a. m.

Three players who made last year's championship flight couldn't get their puts to dropping often enough out there in the mellow sunshine today. Tumbling to lower flights were Mrs. E. J. Keffer of Roanoke, who had to be content with a 96; Mrs. R. C. Welton, Country Club of Virginia, who soared to a 101; and Mrs. J. C. Devilbiss, Hermitage, who finished with a 102.

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, JUNE 24, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Kluttz

Civil Service Commission has ordered replacement of 2259 war service or temporary union professional assistants in the Washington area with permanent status personnel.

The CSU said, however, only "a few hundred" will actually lose jobs, since many of the temporary P-1 employes qualified for permanent status on an examination given last December.

The CSU directed the agencies involved to make the replacements by August 20. Approximately 1800 field employes, in addition to the 2259 in the Washington area, are affected.

AGRICULTURE: Its big Production and Marketing Administration will recall lay-off notices it gave to about 350 of its 1700 employes here. In addition, a thousand or more notices will be canceled for employes in the field service.

The cancellations will stick unless the Senate unexpectedly cuts the agency below its House-approved budget. On the other hand, additional notices will be withdrawn if the Senate gives the agency more money.

To protect itself, the agency was forced to send out an excessive number of dismissal notices to get within cuts proposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS. This agency is making a big lay-off in its maintenance force for Federal buildings here and outside the District. Between 1700 and 1800 employes in the char, mechanic, elevator operator, and guard force will be fired. About 1100 of these employes are in this city.

The dismissal notices now going out will become effective on July 26. And they will be "final." PBA officials say they will not appeal the 10 per cent House slash to the Senate.

The House cut was made on the basis that there would be fewer Federal workers and less office space to be cared for, particularly in this city. In anticipation of this, PBA has begun a new survey looking toward the cancellation of a big bloc of rental office space here.

CAPITOL HILL: The House has approved these bills: To allow each permanent or temporary indefinite employe in a military reserve unit up to 15 days military leave annually . . . To deny veterans preference to members of the temporary Coast Guard reserve . . . And to make it mandatory for any agency to follow Civil Service decisions in cases of appeals by veterans.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS.: Metallargist, $3397 to $9975; radio engineer, $2644 to $3397, and mathematician, $3397 to $5905.

NOTES: An institute on efficiency ratings will be held today and tomorrow by Civil Service in the Interior Auditorium . . . Charles Potter, a legless veteran who was treated at Walter Reed Hospital here, is in the race for the seat of the late Representative Fred Bradley (R., Mich.) . . . William V. Reed has resigned as director of National Housing's technical office to join the Southern California Homes, Inc. Leonard Haeger is his successor.

EXAM NEWS: Only 5100 of the 13,900 applicants passed the recent test for guard and patrolmen. However, enough passed to require the eventual ouster of temporary and war service people in these jobs who either failed or didn't take the exam. The test was limited to veterans . . . In the budget examiner exam, 448 of the 1450 applicants received passing marks. And 882 of the 1700 applicants passed the recent test for organization and methods examiner . . . More than 450 applied for the draftsman exam to be held soon for jobs at the Army Map Service.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: The commission now has on hand the job applications of about 1500 career employes who have been fired in the economy wave. Special tests will be given to 250 of them who are interested in jobs for which they have not qualified through competitive tests . . . Mahlon C. Ward will represent Civil Service Commission employes on the efficiency rating board.

OHE: The Budget Bureau this week will ask Congress to appropriate funds to continue the Office of the Housing Expeditor as proposed in the rent control bill now before the President . . . WAR: Its Ordnance Bureau has asked its employes for detailed information on when and where they eat lunch, time spent in line, time it takes to eat, etc. Employes fear a longer lunch hour and a longer work day is in the mill.

AGRICULTURE: In the urgent deficiency bill, the Senate struck out funds to pay terminal leave to its sugar rationing employes. However, the request made by the department, which said it could use other funds for that purpose. All of which points up the fact that there was no need whatever for abrupt and arbitrary dismissed notices to rationing employes.

JOBS: Yes, the State Department has openings for qualified employes in its foreign service. In fact, it's anxious to contact high-level people who are being laid off in other Federal agencies. You can get full information at the foreign service personnel office.

Hough Move To Dismiss Denied in GI Housing Case

Arlington Builder Faces 4 Indictments, Possible $4000 Fine And 20-Year Term

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A Federal judge yesterday rejected a move to dismiss charges that Stanley P. Hough, Arlington builder, used the mails to defraud home-hunting former GIs.

Judge A. D. Barksdale, conducting the trial in Alexandria District Court, turned down a defense motion for a directed verdict, but did reduce the grand jury indictment from five counts to four.

If found guilty of the four remaining counts, Hough faces a $4000 fine, 20 years in prison, or both.

Prosecution Ends Case

The prosecution, directed by Assistant U. S. Attorney George R. Humrickhouse, completed its case late yesterday afternoon. The trial was recessed at 6:30 p. m. and will be continued at 10:30 a. m. today.

Through the testimony of a dozen witnesses, Humrickhouse yesterday sought to prove to the 12-man jury that Hough had "devised a scheme and artifice to defraud and obtain money" from former servicemen desperately seeking a place to live, by means of a proposed housing project at Hough Park, Oxon Hill, Md.

The 28-home development, located in nearby Prince Georges County, has started early last year, but did not reach completion of a single home.

They are Walter A. Penfield, jr., 2304 North Columbus st., Arlington, who put up $1450; Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. Leer, 4200 Rusk st., Kenilworth, D. C., $1450; and Col. Fred L. Green, 3640 Greenway dr. se., who deposited only $65.

Witnesses Questioned

The defense, handled by Attorneys John Donovan and John Turnbull of Falls Church, closely cross-examined most of the government witnesses, seeking to show that Hough in effect had carried out all written contracts.

Attorney Donovan, in his opening statement to the jury, said that the defense will prove that Hough, far from trying to defraud the veterans, had actually shown "good old American" initiative in bucking Government red tape to try building houses for them.

"Hough may have been overanxious," Donovan declared, "but he acted in good faith."

The testimony brought out that Hough was unable to obtain a construction completion loan satisfactory to the Hyattsville Building Association, which was undertaking to make the GI loans to the individual veterans. As a result, the development came to a halt.

Reed Charges Rail Bill Was Misrepresented

Charges that the Justice Department's anti-trust division has "misrepresented" the Reed-Bulwinkle railroad rate bill were made last night by one of its authors, Senator Clyde M. Reed (R., Kan.).

Who who predicted the measure would "doubtless pass both houses of Congress" this session, shared a radio program over Stations WINX and WINX-FM with William L. McGovern. McGovern, counsel for the State of Georgia and former Governor Arnall in the anti-trust suits against the railroads, assailed the measure as "special privilege."

The bill would exempt railroads from prosecution under the anti-trust laws when they collaborate to fix rates with sanction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Too Much Income

Mrs. Alice Smith, 39, mother of five children, was released under $1000 bond yesterday for grand jury action on a charge of illegally accepting $180 in 1945 from the Board of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Smith, who lives at 1610 11th st. nw., waived preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. According to the charge, she accepted three months' compensation from the welfare board while she received $100 monthly from a serviceman, money from Social Security benefits and had a part-time domestic job.

Polio Virus Test Works On Monkeys

By Huell Warren
Associated Press Staff Writer

Baltimore, June 23.—Three Johns Hopkins scientists reported today they have successfully vaccinated monkeys against infantile paralysis.

It is the first time the "microscope corps" in the fight against poliomyelitis has ever achieved what the Hopkins people call "solid immunity."

The time when you can have the family doctor give your children "shots" against polio still seems far off. However, the work by Drs. Isabel Morgan, Howard A. Howe and David Bodian at the Hopkins poliomyelitis research center may have been brought a step nearer.

They used an "active" polio virus to immunize the monkeys, injecting it into their muscles.

Too Dangerous for Child

On the basis of what they know now, the doctors figure it would be dangerous to give a child a shot of live virus. It might bring on a deadly attack of the disease.

Ordinary vaccines do not use such powerful infectious matter. They excite the system into producing "anti-bodies," which fight the virus of a disease, without causing an attack of the disease itself.

They vaccinated 25 monkeys with muscle injections at least four times. Some had as many as 15 shots in four months. Others were vaccinated just three times. Others received shots just under the skin. Some got the dosage in their veins. Some weren't vaccinated at all.

Injected Into Brains

After the monkeys had time to work up anti-bodies in their systems, the doctors injected live polio virus into their brains.

The doctors estimated these brain injections were thousands of times more deadly than any infection a man might pick up naturally.

None of the monkeys that had at least four muscle vaccinations developed paralysis after their brains were infected. All the others showed "no significant resistance." The 21 not vaccinated all developed paralysis.

It has taken the Hopkins center five years to get this far along in the search for ways to prevent and cure polio. The specialists already have used $732,000 in "March of Dimes" money.

House Votes 5-Day Week For Firemen

Washington firemen would start a five-day work week July 1, 1948, under a bill approved by the House yesterday.

The bill cleared the House without debate and now goes to the Senate. Washington firemen now work a six-day week. The new plan would not change the present 10-hour day shift and 14-hour night shift.

Two other bills, already through the Senate, were given final approval in the House and forwarded to the President. One would let the Marine Corps League build a memorial in the District for the Marine Corps dead of all wars. The second gives policemen and firemen promotion seniority rights which were lost because they went into military service during the war.

One bill, setting up a five-member board to regulate undertaking and embalming in the District, stirred brief debate on the House floor. Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) said the bill would mean that some 300 of the 410 persons employed in 82 undertaking firms in the District would each have to pay the proposed $20 annual license fee.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said he believed the $20 license fee applied to the owner of an undertaking firm. He pointed out the bill also permits a $10 fee for apprentices in the business. The bill was approved by a voice vote and sent to the Senate.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirkson (R., Ill.) also won approval for two other bills, both of which go to the Senate. One changes the District unemployment compensation law to protect the rights of employers who served in the armed forces. Under the bill they could re-enter business and recover at once the benefit of a lowered contribution rate to which a stable employment record entitled them before entering the service. The other bill permits the B. & O. Railroad to build a siding under the Franklin st. ne. viaduct to service proposed warehouses.

Housebreaker Sentenced

Charles C. Mitchell, 25, who police say is implicated in 51 burglaries here, was given three to nine years in prison yesterday after he pleaded guilty to four cases of housebreaking and larceny.

Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz quoted Mitchell as saying, "I can't rightly remember the location of all the places I broke into." The larcenies all occurred between January and April in Northwest Washington. Schwartz estimated that Mitchell took $5000 in money, jewelry, clothing and food.

"REFRESHER COURSE"—This is the Second Platoon, Company B, which is taking ROTC training at Fort George G. Meade. About half of the platoon are VMI students, and the rest are from the University of Maryland and Dayton University. Platoon leader is Charles C. Hartment, jr., of 6112 Park Heights ave., Baltimore. He served two years in the Army. Many of the future officers are veterans of World War II

Meade ROTC Bears Veteran Warrior Look

Most of 753 Future Officers in Training Have Service Records

There was a time when members of an ROTC outfit beginning their summer training camp were easy meat for the traditional tough sergeant.

But most of the 753 future Army Reserve officers who began their summer course at Fort George G. Meade, Md., yesterday, the first ROTC summer group in the area since the war, are service veterans, many with battle experience overseas.

One such veteran, Herbert E. Clark of Aberdeen, Md., will be receiving instruction from some of the buddies he served with in the 325th Glider Infantry of the crack Eighty-second Airborne Division. The 325th was taken to Fort Meade from Fort Bragg, N. C., especially to aid in the training.

Since Saturday morning, students representing 37 colleges, military schools and universities—including Georgetown University, Western Maryland, Virginia Military Institute, University of Maryland, Virginia Polytechnic, Johns Hopkins and Howard University—have been converging on the camp. Yesterday they were assigned to six infantry companies and a cavalry troop.

They will have, under the supervision of Col. John C. Whitcomb, ROTC camp commander, and his staff, 130 hours of general subjects and 110 hours of instruction and practical work in specialized phases of modern warfare.

Dent to Take Office

Theodore W. Dent, Hyattsville, Md., tax consultant, will be installed as new president of the Hyattsville Lions' Club at dinner tonight at the Prince Georges Country Club, Landover, Md. He was elected to the post June 10.

The dinner will also feature the awarding of service pins to 33 members for 1946 attendance records. Four members, Roland Berger, Carroll Beaty, Hazen McLeod and C. F. Orton, will receive five-year perfect attendance pins, and two charter members, Chandler Hoffman and Joseph Sullivan, will be honored with 10-year pins for not missing a meeting since organization of the club in 1937.

Liquor Sales Drop

Consumer resistance to prices reduced liquor sales 30 per cent under the first four months of last year, the Distilled Spirits Institute indicated yesterday.

The Nation drank 53,968,176 gallons of distilled spirits in the first four months of 1947, compared with 77,325,122 gallons over the same period last year. The Institute blamed the decrease "principally" on consumer resistance and partly on continuance of the emergency Federal excise tax of $3 per gallon.

Acquitted in Stabbing Ca

Ralph Flint, 42, 2382 Champlain st. nw., was acquitted yesterday of a charge of manslaughter in the fatal stabbing April 12 of Willie Green, 31, 70 Massachusetts ave. nw. A District Court jury returned the not-guilty verdict after Flint pleaded self-defense.

NOTHING NEW TO THEM—These three ROTC trainees have been there before. Left to right: Richard Dent, 4103 33d st., Mount Rainier, Md., a former sailor in submarine service for three years, now a University of Maryland student; Howard J. Federal Loan For Schools Planned Here

7-to-10 Million Fund Would Be Used For Construction

A triple play aiming at a 7- to 10-million-dollar Federal loan for school and other District construction was executed at the Capitol yesterday.

House District Appropriations Chairman Walt Horan (R., Wash.) passed on a loan plan to the Commissioners and announced he told the Commissioners to take it up with the House District Committee which would have to write legislation authorizing the loan.

Commissioner Guy Mason was reported to have taken the plan to House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.).

Dirksen said he had talked both to Horan and Mason, but added he could not comment until the plan is formally presented by the commissioners.

Earlier Horan's appropriations subcommittee conferred in executive session with District school officials, headed by Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, about school construction needs.

School officials, with powerful support from Horan, have proposed a plan to eliminate part-time classes in 20 schools, and avoid it in other schools. The plan would add some seven million dollars to next year's budget, and require an additional 13 million dollars in future years.

Washington's new revenue bill calls for a budget cut of at least two million dollars. Horan has declared funds are inadequate, and that the District needs a sales tax.

Horan said he could not complete action on the District's budget bill until the school issue is met. He has said the District needs a 100-million-dollar budget at least, instead of the 95-million which the revenue program permits.

Dr. Corning declared, "We've been given an average of two million dollars a year for the past 10 years, and in next year's budget, and we need 25 million to eliminate and avoid part time classes in the schools."

Corning and the Board of Education last month proposed to the Commissioners that school construction needs totaling some 50 million dollars be met with a Federal interest-free loan, to be used over the next five years, and then repaid from revenue in later years.

District leaders indicated it was unlikely loan legislation could be cleared through Congress before it adjourns next month.

Another Year

House Votes Extension Of Child Care

The House voted yesterday to continue Washington's child day care centers through June 30, 1948.

House approval sent the bill extending the day care program to the White House. The bill authorizes $150,000, but the actual funds must still be written into the District money bill for 1948 and cleared through Congress.

As cleared by Congress, the day-care program will be trimmed below what it was this year.

Sponsors estimated 60 or more of the nearly 400 children who have been using the centers would have to leave.

Senator John S. Cooper, R., Ky.), who steered the bill through the Senate, said the first to go would be children who have both parents holding jobs.

He estimated the District would have to pay about $110,000 for the next year's operation, and parents' fees would total $40,000.

Tourist Flow Makes Lincoln Man of Month

Influx Shows Great Gain Over Number of Visitors in May 1946

Abraham Lincoln was man of the month of May for Washington tourists, submerging Thomas Jefferson by close to 100,000 votes. George Washington, "the Father of Our Country," was second best.

A popularity poll is conducted by National Capital Parks counters who keep track of the number of visitors to memorials here. Their records show a tremendous spurt in tourist flow here last month over figures for May, 1946.

Last month, 162,751 persons visited Lincoln Memorial, in contrast to 70,415 visitors during May of last year. The Washington Monument accommodated 92,711 tourists last month to 73,443 in May, 1946.

And Thomas Jefferson, post-war tailored, attracted a mere 65,532 visitors at his memorial. The new Jefferson, in bronze and replacing his wartime plaster cast, was installed April 22. In May, 1946, the nonmetalic Jefferson was viewed by 39,191 persons.

National Park Service revealed yesterday that tourist travel last month in national parks, monuments and historic sites was 29 per cent ahead of last year. Visitors last month totaled 2,058,612 in contrast to 1,595,132 in May, 1946.

Visitors to national parks alone totaled 746,379, a 34 per cent increase over the 555,184 tallied for May, 1946. Many of the service's hotels, lodges and camps in the major parks are already booked solid until after Labor Day, a spokesman said.

Crowd totals at National Capital Parks memorials, which include the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials and the Washington Monument, were 334,773.

D. C. Trails As St. Paul Moves for Mass X-Ray

Council There Votes Funds for Survey on Tuberculosis While District Heads Delay

Sponsors of a mass chest X-ray survey to determine prevalence of tuberculosis in the District helplessly watched developments yesterday as another major city stole the lead.

From St. Paul, Minn., came word the city council there had voted authorization of funds for a tuberculosis survey similar to the contemplated one here. The St. Paul project would further the up facilities of United States Public Health Service needed for the District program.

District Commissioners were blamed by local sponsors for delaying budgetary request for funds to finance the District's contribution to the proposed drive to seek out tuberculosis in its native habitat, almost anyone's chest.

Dr. James J. Feffer, vice president of the Washington Tuberculosis Association, said last night he was tsill awaiting word from Commissioner Guy Mason on a formal request for $66,928, the District's share of approximately $188,000 needed to finance the drive.

The tuberculosis association has agreed to underwrite by $33,400 the expenses of educating the public to the value of the mass X-rayings. USPHS has agreed to spend $88,507 on the project and to furnish mobile X-ray units.

Spokesmen for USPHS, however, said the service must make use of its units "on order" and that the District's "order" awaits authorization of the delayed congressional grant. St. Paul's "order," they said, is expected "any day now." And Tacoma and Seattle, Wash., are reported "interested."

Commissioner Mason has spoken out against the survey lest it "frighten hundreds of persons with previously unsuspected tuberculosis and for whom there is no hospital space in Washington."

District Health Officer George C. Ruhland likened the Commissioner's view to not telling a man his house is on fire. He said a survey would turn up many cases which could be cared for at home, obviating future hospitalization.

Final approval of use of Public Health Service's expensive mobile X-ray units in St. Paul will make that city the second major city to get ahead of Washington, leaders here said. St. Paul's twin city, Minneapolis, is now conducting its survey.

Bus Line Head Tells ICC of $360,000 Loss

An annual loss of $360,000 was reported yesterday by the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., as the firm launched a fight to boost interstate fares from 2½ to 5 cents.

"All of our creditors are after us daily," Howard H. England, vice president and general manager, testified at the opening of a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission. The hearing will be resumed at 9:30 a. m. today.

England, sole witness today, attributed the company's financial worries primarily to a sharp post-war slump in business. Since last year alone, he stated, the firm's passenger rolls have declined by almost a million.

He cited a $94,794.91 decline in revenue in the first five months of 1947 compared with 1946.

Furthermore, England testified, operation costs have risen 200 per cent since the present rates became effective in 1932. Approval of the proposed rate hike, he said, would give the firm a $270,000 increase in intake, less than enough to meet the current deficit.

Discussing the firm's alleged disintegrating credit position, England testified outstanding accounts include the one for rental of Capital Transit Co. buses used in the Pentagon service. He said the Virginia company has been unable to pay anything for these vehicles to date, although it has been using them since April 1.

"If they should withdraw their buses we would not be able to serve the public at the Pentagon," he asserted.

Only interstate riders would be affected by the proposed fare boost. Should the firm's petition be approved, it would mean an increase amounting to five cents in cash or 2½ cents through token payments for some 30,000 daily riders.

ICC Examiner Tobias Naftalin said the utility's case will be subject to cross-examination today, followed by testimony from persons opposing the rate hike. Opponents include the Arlington Public Utilities Commission, Arlington Bus Riders' Association and the public utilities committee of the Arlington Civic Federation.

Meanwhile, Virginia Governor Tuck received formal notice yesterday that union employes of the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. plan to strike at 4 a. m. July 26.

R. Walter Scott, president of Local 1131, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL), wrote the Governor the company had refused to arbitrate the issues and that the union membership had voted "overwhelmingly" in favor of a walkout.

Witnesses Urge Delay in Enforcing D. C. Fire Safety Code

Enforcement of Washington's new fire safety code should be postponed beyond July 1 to permit the Commissioner's Committee on Fire Safety to prepare modification proposals.

That was the concensus yesterday among 17 witnesses who testified at a Commissioner's hearing at District Building.

Only witness who didn't advocate more enforcement delay was C. F. Preller, president of the Washington Building & Construction Trades Council. He took no stand on the issue but insisted that the labor supply here was sufficient to handle any building changes needed by comply with the new code.

Those testifying in favor of further postponement were John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade; Morris R. Clark of the Building Owners and Managers Association; Frank E. Weakly, Washington Hotel Association; Ringgold Hart, representing both the Washington Restaurant Association and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Julian Brylawski, Motion Picture Theater Owners; A. Hamilton Wilson, Washington Building Congress; Walter B. Jarvis, Washington Real Estate Board; Paul J. Miller, Washington Guest House Association; Alvin L. Aubinoe, Home Builders Association;

Francis J. Eisenman, administrator of Garfield Memorial Hospital; Teunis F. Collier, Georgetown Citizens' Association; Sol Kann, vice president of S. Kann Sons Co.; Ralph W. Foster, Assistant General Secretary of the YMCA; O. A. deLinna, president of the Roger Smith Hotels Corp.; W. D. Nixon, vice president of the Federation of Civic Associations.

Meanwhile, R. D. Kinney, engineers in charge of a 14-man District inspection team, said a six-month survey of 2089 local buildings indicated that 97 per cent would need changes in order to comply with the new code if it is enforced July 1. Many buildings would need costly major structural changes like new fireproof stairways and the relocation of heating plants, he said.

Frederick Lays Ban On Bridal Route Din

Frederick, Md., June 23 (Spl.).—A Frederick custom of long standing seems destined for antiquity.

It's the time-honored policy of drawing attention to newly married couples by noise-producing tin cans on the rear of bridal procession automobiles, accompanied by promiscuous horn tooting.

Chief of Police Frederick M. Straley today notified all members of the department to put a stop immediately to horn-blowing and dragging of tin cans by automobiles of wedding parties through the streets.

Locally, the official eye has been "winked" at merrymaking of this nature, but there have been instances, Straley pointed out, when groups have taken advantage of the law's good nature. Traffic tie-ups have resulted, tempers have become frayed and remarks have been uttered to the extent that there "ought to be a law."

According to Straley, Frederick public wedding cavalcades will be no less merry, but surely more sedate in the future.

Cultists' Hearing Set

Stone Creek, Va., June 23 (AP). Stone Creek snake cultists expect a prompt test of Virginia's new State law banning snake handling at religious demonstrations.

When cultists carried the reptile to their altar, State troopers promptly stepped up and clubbed it to death.

Why Road Is Sign-Free

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—The reason why the Ritchie Highway between Baltimore and Annapolis is free of advertising signs came out today.

Mrs. Edward H. McKeon, co-chairman of the newly established Citizens Roadside Council of Maryland, made public a letter from Dr. Amos Hutchin, Baltimore surgeon and spokesman for the landscape committee of the Severn River Association.

It was all voluntary, said Dr. Hutchins, since there have been no laws enacted to ban signboards along State highways.

"It is pleasant to be able to relate that business and industry gave us their entire support," wrote Dr. Hutchins in explaining that his association and others had appealed to business groups to keep the memorial highway "clean."

Truck Loading Okayed

Richmond, Va., June 23 (AP).—The State Highway Department said today that reports from the Hampton Roads area last week of overloading of trucks proved to be a "well-intentioned" false alarm.

Burton Marye, jr., chief of traffic and design, returned to his office today after an inspection of the situation and said that "no disproportionate amount of overloading was found."

Marye went to Hampton Roads after the Tidewater Automobile Association charged that part of a heavy tieup of traffic at the Cape Charles ferry was caused by potato trucks using Route 13 through the Eastern Shore to avoid the highway department's truck-weighing station on Route 1. A spokesman for the TAA said many of the northbound trucks were two to four tons over the 40,000-pound gross limit on Route 13.

State Senator M. M. Hillard, appearing in opposition to the proposal for the City of Portsmouth, challenged the company's figures as approximations and sought to show that some main line operations were figured in the estimates on the Portsmouth-Wilmington run.

The trains operate north and south between Portsmouth and Wilmington.

Youths Debate Cause of Child Delinquency

The question of who is responsible for juvenile deliquency—youths or parents—brought lively debate by high school students here yesterday.

One student, Sydney Crown, who acted as moderator of a forum on youth leadership, placed the blame for juvenile deliquency on the shoulders of the youngsters themselves. He declared that trying to heap the blame on parents was "very much overplayed."

Another member of the panel, Charles Joly, disagreed, and several members of the audience sided with him, blaming parents. The audience consisted of 100 boys from Washington, Maryland and Virginia attending the "University of Citizenship" at American University.

Eastern High Students

Other members of the forum were Paul Merola, Robert Mulligan, and Raymond Bancroft. The five are students at Eastern High School.

In discussing youth leadership, the youngsters got off on several subjects, ranging from passing red lights to Russia.

Durin gthe day, the teen-agers attended chapel services and heard addresses of welcome by James H. Stout, director of the program for the Optimist Clubs of Greater Washington ,and Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University.

Reynolds Conducts Class

The first class in the three-day program was conducted by Cedric C. Reynolds, assistant principal of Eastern High School, who spoke on "The Need for Leadership."

In the evening, the boys cheered the Washington Senators in a game with Chicago at Griffith Stadium. Today, the boys will hear George L. Carroll of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, and Herbert D. Bosley of Western High School.

In the offing, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily, will be sports, games, singing and dramatics as well as courses in metal and wood working. Clay instruction has been added this summer for the first time.

Vice Chairman E. Brooke Lee, of the planning commission, said yesterday it is hoped to organize several bus routes to deliver the children to and from the playgrounds.

He asked that interested civic groups or parents contact his office and arrangements would be worked out.

In addition to the 26 playgrounds opened yesterday Colonel Lee said, it is hoped that three or four more will be opened soon.

Summer Slimming Schedule

What Will It Be, Girls? Pie or Figure a la Mode

This is the second of a series of 10 articles on summer slimming.

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE is no better time for slimming than summer . . . this summer. To keep in a gay mood about the whole thing, substitute psychology for will power. It helps enormously!

Psychologists assure us that will power is nothing more or less than a set of habits, influenced by desire. So a weakness for fattening foods is obviously nothing but wrong food habit, and once you get the knack of eating to slim down, it will be a pleasure.

Habit has tough fibers, so keep in mind how wonderful it will be to get rid of the hateful fat, and remember that you really would rather have a nice figure than strawberry shortcake with whipped cream. Then it's surprisingly easy to pass up the shortcake and have luscious whole berries with powdered sugar.

Get over the notion that a diet takes all the joy out of life. It's overeating that does that, in a roundabout way. Which would you rather have, an exciting date or pie a la mode? Then cut out the pie and get your figure back. This slant on fattening foods makes it suddenly crystal clear, and the fatteners are no longer a temptation. Honestly it works that way.

Morale High, Weight Low

And eating to reduce boosts the morale with each low calorie meal. Scientific slimming deletes the calories where they are least missed, both from the nutrition and taste standpoint. A deviled egg, for example, is delicious fixed with mustard seasoning and a bit of chopped celery in center. Fattening mayonnaise isn't missed. A sandwich spread with boiled dressing made with skim milk and a bit of mustard added to bread—delicious! Such foods taste even better because you know you don't have to worry about which meal the next pound is coming from!

The 1100-calorie menus contain a generous serving of protein to stick to the ribs and hasten reducing. Of course the fat is trimmed off, it's an easy way to cut calories in hunks. Science shows that sugars and starches not only burn better than fats, but are actually needed in a reducing diet to help burn fatty tissue, and the reducer can have bread every day, a simple dessert and ample servings of all the fresh fruits and vegetables made to order for low calorie menus.

Always order the low calorie foods today, for tomorrow's diet. To vary the menus, send for the Complete Calorie Chart, enclosing a long, stamped, addressed envelope to Ida Jean Kain, Room 408, care of The Washington Post.

Your Questions On Homemaking

By using the varnish which has a synthetic resin base as suggested above, your piece will have a hard finish that is resistant to heat, water and alcohol and will be almost scratch proof. This varnish should never be thinned with oil, use turpentine if thinning is necessary.

I have a large blocked fiber rug in beige and dark red. I would like to paint it as it is faded and soiled. Can you give me the name of several products that can be used for this type of rug? And where can I find the paint? W. W.

Sorry, I cannot mention trade names in this column, but you will be able to use any good quality house paint to brighten your rugs. Thin it with turpentine using one part turpentine to 3 parts of paint. Work the paint thoroughly into the fiber with a paint brush. Before starting to paint protect the surface underneath the rug with a thick padding of newspaper. The paint is available at any good paint store.

Can you tell me if there is a way to treat mattresses and upholstered furniture left at a summer cabin so that mice will not get in them? V. L. R.

There is no way to treat mattresses and upholstered furniture to prevent mice from getting into them. However, there are several things you could do before leaving your cabin to lessen the chances of such damage.

Rats and mice seldom haunt houses where the food supply is well guarded and the premises kept free of refuse, so be sure to see that there is no food to which they might have access anywhere in the cabin.

To prevent field mice from seeking shelter while foraging outside, block all suspected ways of entry.

I have a hand carved teakwood salad fork and spoon. Is there any special care they will need? Also, what is the best way to store a black plastic bag and light alligator bag and shoes over the summer months? H. K.

Keep your salad fork and spoon away from heat and wash only in mild, lukewarm suds. If it shows signs of drying, you might rub lightly with a little pure olive oil.

Before storing, be sure that both bags are clean. Sponge the plastic bag with soft cloth wrung out of mild soap and water. Dry well with a clean soft cloth. The alligator bag should be cleaned with a special reptile cleaner and polished. When clean, stuff each bag with tissue and wrap in same. Do not store in an attic which gets excessively hot.

The reptile shoes should be gone over with the reptile cleaner and wrapped in tissue. Put shoe trees into them to keep them in shape.

How often should linens, blankets, towels and such be recamphored after having been in storage for three years? These articles are stored in trunks and mothproof bags and were recamphored about a year ago. Are there other precautions which can be taken to keep them safe? What is the safest method of cleaning a pure down, satin covered crib-size comforter? Is there a harmless cleaner which can be used to clean toy animals such as a Panda bear, bunny, dog, etc? E. B. R.

Unless your blankets are sealed and the seal has not been broken since last camphoring, they should be checked over and recamphored each year. Be sure that such articles are stored in the part of the house where there is the least moisture. In the humidity here, it might be a good plan to place pans of lime in the storage space to absorb excess air moisture.

On a bright, windy day wash the plush toys with a mild suds and a brush. Use a solution prepared in this way: Dissolve ½ cup of mild soap in 1 quart of boiling water. Cool until jellied. Beat the jelly into a stiff lather with a rotary egg beater. Be sure no liquid is left. Scrub the lather over the animals, using a soft brush and a circular motion. When lather is soiled, scrape off with a spatula. Remove last traces with clean cheesecloth wrung out of clear water until barely damp. Hang out of doors to dry, or, if to be dried indoors, turn an electric fan on them.

Tots Enjoy Agin' Moods; Wise Parent Will Ignore Them

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

THERE is a "no" period in childhood that develops as inevitably as do teeth. It is typical of the years from 18 to 32 months, sometimes beyond. It springs up because of the child's experiences.

Ordinarily, he repeats the word because he hears it used to him so frequently. Everything he does is met by a "no." So he uses it imitatively and gets an added thrill at the mother's indignant response.

In such cases he does not mind doing what he is asked to do, he says "no" as a matter of course and to see what will happen. If his mother ignores his noes and goes about doing whatever she has suggested, the child is meekly submissive. He didn't mind drinking his milk, or going to bed, or taking a bath but he says "no" first, just in case there may be fireworks.

Another type of "no," springs from the child's recognition of his own desires. He really doesn't want to do what the parent has ordered and he is old enough to know that he doesn't. This is more typical of the older child and his "no" may be emotional, too. He is the victim of too many taboos and too much frustration and he finds that if he stamps his feet and yells "no," he gets some attention from the parent.

The mother who talks pleasantly and carries out her plans and finds her child carrying them out with her, knows that this "no" is not an important one and can be ignored.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man Tells Bride He Married Her for Money, Doesn't Love Her, Wants No Children; Now They're Divorced and She Has New Problem

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My childhood was extremely happy with understanding parents. In my early twenties I married a man some years my senior, who came from another part of the country.

The second day of our marriage he told me he didn't love me, wanted no children, expected to retain his personal freedom of bachelor days and had married me for social prestige, money and a home.

A little later, I learned that he had been married once before and had three children—each by a different woman. Two were born out of wedlock. I found him dishonest, jealous and selfish. He used everybody for personal gain and refused to accept any responsibilities as a married man.

His recreations were drinking and affairs with women. After we had a child he made no effort to be a decent father and eventually we were divorced, after doctors had despaired of my life. That was three years ago. Today I am in splendid health, have a good position, a lovely home and a robust happy child.

New Love Meets Grave Obstacle

GRADUALLY I started going out, to dinners, dances, concerts, etc., and began dating a man in my social set whom I had known for eight years. We saw lots of each other and one day I realized I was falling in love. Instead of using my head and putting him back on the shelf as a social acquaintance, I continued to accept his invitations.

Now he wants to marry me. We are deeply in love; he and my child adore each other; and we are emotionally, intellectually and socially compatible. But as a divorcee I'm not eligible for marriage in his church. He insists on renouncing his faith for me,—to which my heart says, "yes"; but my head says, "no."

I love him very much; I want him and need him. But I have learned a great deal about his faith this past year. I believe in it and would gladly accept it; but that, of course, is impossible, as I am a divorcee. He says if we don't marry his life will be ruined. In reality of course that isn't quite true. Any of us can do anything if we make up our mind to it.

Because I do love him, I want my decision to be right for him. Should I go out of his life entirely? Or marry him, as I very much want to do? F. G.

Here Is Test Of Sincerity

DEAR F. G.: According to your presentation of the case, the obstacle to marriage exists in your soul, not the man's. You say it exists because the smattering you've learned about his faith gives you to feel (or fancy) a spiritual leaning toward it. Hence you're reluctant to take a course of action that might permanently shut you out of the fold.

I'm not sure this is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about your state of mind. But assuming it is, my advice is to apply yourself to a serious study of the religion until you are thoroughly conversant with its doctrinal teachings and rules of membership,—and then decide with assurance whether it speaks to your conscience with the voice of God.

This recommendation affords a test of your sincerity in professing serious respect for his creed. If you're not really serious, but only emotional about the church that cradled him, you won't undertake such a study, of course. But on the other hand, if you do, there is a chance that you might "come into the light" and find the angels on your side.

Decide for Self, Not for the Man

THOUGH his church is forthright and strict in defining the conditions which establish irrevocable Christian marriage from its view, it remains to be seen whether—in terms of its ecclesiastical laws—these conditions obtained in the tragic mesalliance you made years ago.

The fact that, in taking you to wife, the man in the case concealed the existence of a previous marriage which presumably ended in divorce, might from the church's view render your nuptials null from the beginning. Thus it seems worthwhile to explore the question with fully informed canon authority.

Another thought: If you are devoutly inclined toward his church, why not inquire whether you could be received as an individual in your own right? I hardly think the fact of your being a divorcee would necessarily make you ineligible, though it might invoke a searching examination into the moral validity of your contribution to that status.

In any event, since you would if possible gladly embrace the religion of the man you love, and furthermore feel an obligation in conscience to establish a decision that is right for him, it seems altogether appropriate to review the whole situation with his pastor.

Even Black Market Is Comic

Army Farce Is Blithe Introduction to C. U. Playwriting Festival

By Richard L. Coe

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S Playwriting Festival has gotten off to a happy start with a blithe farce by John McGiver, "All Gaul Is Divided."

Despite its scholastic title from Caius Julius Caesar, the play is farce from stem to stern. McGiver, a former Army officer has drawn on his observations of a postwar service command, pouring mockery on officers and enlisted men alike. How they become involved, willingly or unwittingly, in the black market is treated purely for its fun value. Black market moralizing is left to your own conscience.

John McGiver

Which is, of course, the way to write a farce, however hard it may be for you to look on the black market as a subject for laughs. McGiver's approach recalls Franz Werfel's "Jacobowsky and the Colonel," in which the plight of refugees was made into comedy.

The speech and drama department's production is of real help to the play, smartly paced direction by Walter Kerr and good all-around acting by a cast of 15 working consistently for laughs. Cuts are in order, for there is too much exposition, particularly in the first act.

McGiver's hero is a Jimmy Stewart character, a trusting, easy-going Oklahoman, the very waif of a second lieutenant, putty in the hands of his first sergeant.

The first sergeant is the oily villain of the piece, an aesthete, of all things, who trades canned beans, cigarets, gum and candy for objects that please his artistic sense. As first sergeant of a supply depot he's able to do as he wishes with the warehouse goods and to have his commanding officers sign bad vouchers as well as honest ones.

May Baffle Civilians!

This little facet of military life, whereby the officer must accept responsibility for everything his enlisted and civilian personnel do, will no doubt baffle honest civilians unused to the tortuous channels of la vie militaire. Whether McGiver meant this as a criticism of the armed forces he carefully abstains from stating; the fact remains, it is.

Other COs have been transferred because they've failed to clear up baffling portions of their supply records. Our little lieutenant wants to stay, for he's found a French girl who appreciates him. But the first sergeant almost has his hands on a Renoir and an ambitious major, inspecting the command, is wise to irregularities. Then there's the matter of a truckload of turkeys bound for the general's headquarters that turn up missing. At the same time a convent's mother superior has just had her prayers for turkey handsomely rewarded.

There are, you see, all the ifs and buts of farcical situation. The characters are sharply defined, among them further a Brooklyn corporal and a civilian lady secretary on to the ways of the office. Their humor is familiar but still funny.

Runs Through July 12

Meredith Schoonover is fine as the baffled young officer, one of the best acting jobs C. U. has offered in some time. Working with French accents, Teddy Marie Kinsey, the heroine, and Eileen Whyte, the secretary, are doing a good job, too. And Jack Bettenbender's major seems drawn from bitter life, a thoroughly obnoxious eager beaver. The author scores well, too, as the first officer we see who suffers from the conniving first sergeant, though the part is hardly vital to the play itself.

Dick Sykes is properly insinuating as the art lover and Joseph Cunneen is the two-striper with 86 points who can't figure out why he's not back in Brooklyn.

As the first in the university's series of seven student manuscript plays, presented in joint association with the American National Theater and Academy and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, the opening drew a first-night audience which included Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Actors Equity President Clarence Derwent, Col. C. Lawton Campbell of ANTA, Actress Margalo Gilmore and Daniel O'Shea, president of Selznick studios.

O'Shea's evident amusement gave us a hunch that someday you might find all this on the screen, for it has the slick appeal of movie material. You can see it for yourself every night, Sundays excepted, in the university theater on the campus, through July 12.

VICTOR MATURE looks sinister and startled as the hero of "Moss Rose," opening Thursday on the Capitol screen. Peggy Cummins and Ethel Barrymore costar with him in this story of blackmail, with Vincent Price, Rhys Williams and George Zucco in the supporting company

Cotton Doesn't Cotton To Nervy House Guests

New York.—While Joseph Cotten, the screen star, and his wife are working in New York, their California home was lived in by friends who had separated from their wives . . . Cotton put a stop to these temporary tenancies after a servant reported that a songwriter who was living there had been careless about Cotten's household household possessions. The other night the songwriter met the Cottens at the Stork Club and told them how shocked he was at having been asked to leave their house. Cotten was silent. He merely stared at the man's tie, until the man, embarrassed, said: "Joe, this is your tie, isn't it?"

Joseph Cotten

PACT: Gian-Carlo Menotti, who wrote the book and music for "The Medium" and "The Telephone"—the musical plays which are receiving unusual acclaim—lives in Bedford Village, N. Y., with two friends. When the trio decided to set up this bachelors' home they agreed that this wouldn't be a haphazard, temporary residence. They bought the best paintings and furniture they could afford . . . They made a contract that if any of the three should marry, he could take none of the household belongings with him—that his share then would go to those who continue to live in this house, unmarried.

PREROGATIVE: John Barkham, the noted author-editor-reporter, recently returned from a visit to his native South Africa, and told the Overseas Press Club about the ride on the Royal Train in which Britain's Royal Family made its tour . . . King George had a Royal Barber on the train, but insisted upon shaving himself. The King uses a straight razor, the type which Britishers describe as "a cut-throat" . . . From 7 until 7:30 a. m. each morning, therefore, the Royal Train was stopped—so that there would be no jarring motion while the King shaved himself.

SPEECH: During the royal tour, His Majesty's speech writers prepared a series of addresses in which the King had to recite such phrases as "The Provincial Legislative and Administrative Assembly" . . . Because King George has a speech impediment and cannot recite such words without difficulty, the Queen intervened and ordered the speech writers to streamline the speeches and pay particular heed to using short, simple words.

HUNT: When the royal family expressed a wish to inspect Kruger National Park, the South African government sent for Col. J. Stevenson Hamilton to serve as their guide. Col. Hamilton, the world's No. 1 expert on lions, is a former warden of the game reserves there. He was flown from England for the special purpose of showing the Kruger Park lions to the King and Queen and the Princesses . . . the royal tour of the game reserves was made—and not a lion did they see.

CHATTER: The Brass Rail deal to buy the Longchamps restaurant chain may be called off . . . Fannie Ward missed the Queen Elizabeth because of passport trouble. The State Department had sent her a passport made out to "Frances Ward," and she insisted that nobody knows Frances Ward but everybody knows Fannie Ward. She requested another passport. It arrived an hour after the ship sailed . . . After he finishes in "The Red Pony" Louis Calhern will have his neck operated on by a Chicago nerologist . . . Paul Douglas, who is taking a few days off from "Born Yesterday," will spend them in Paris.

WEALTH: Macoco, El Morocco's ambassador to the Argentine, sat with a young lady in El Morocco the other night. They saw Mrs. George Guinle wearing a large diamond brooch. "Why don't you get me one of those?" the young lady suggested to Macoco—who replied: "Because Guinle is a Brazilian millionaire, while I'm only an Argentine millionaire" . . . "What's the difference?" he was asked . . . "The difference," explained Macoco, "is millions."

Drunk Cases Increase in Virginia

Richmond, Va., June 23 (AP).—The State Board of Corrections reported today that the charge "drunk and disorderly" accounted for 47 per cent of the jail commitments during April and that in many counties of Virginia more than two thirds of the commitments were on this offense.

"In those counties and cities in which commitments for being drunk and disorderly make up an unusually large proportion of the total of all commitments, it appears that an investigation of the reasons for this might be in order to determine whether or not any real benefits accrue to the locality and to the individuals and their families who are placed in jail on charges of simple drunkenness."

During the first 10 months of the current fiscal year the number of drunk and disorderly cases increased 4728, or 14.02 per cent, over the same period of the previous fiscal year.

Airport Land Retrial Denied

Annapolis, Md., June 23 (AP).—Judge William J. McWilliams overruled today a motion of Baltimore City for retrial of a suit involving condemnation of land for the municipal airport in the Friendship Church area.

Attorney Noah A. Hillman representing the city contended the judgment of $62,004.20 for the 111½-acre tract owned by Gilbert H. Clark, C. Roe Clark and Ogle M. Clark was excessive.

The award was one of a series handed down by Anne Arundel county juries.

4 Maryland Teacher Colleges Get Funds for Improvements

Annapolis, Md., June 23 (AP).—The Board of Public Works today gave the green light to the department of education on new construction and repairs at four State teachers' colleges.

At the same time, the board put all departments on notice that any proposal of an architect to draw up plans under the emergency construction program would have to bear the approval of Chief Engineer John B. Funk and the department of budget and procurement.

The teachers' college improvements approved by the board today included $75,000 for dormitories and $5000 for deferred maintenance at Salisbury; $31,000 for a boys' dormitory and $50,000 for maintenance at Towson; $15,000 for deferred maintenance at Frostburg; $35,000 for reconstructing a dormitory and $17,000 for maintenance at Bowie.

Early Action Asked

The board of education had asked early action be taken so that work could start before the schools reopen in the fall.

Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman will inspect the deferred maintenance items for compliance with the bond issue act.

Another item approved by the board was $48,000 for deferred maintenance at Montrose Training School for Girls.

Approval was given also to constructing a new barn at the Eastern Shore State Hospital to cost $58,655, the lowest bidder being the Cambridge Brick Co. This was approved providing it wins an o. k. from Chief Engineer Funk.

Among other actions, the board approved a scholarship plan for Morgan State College to use up to $30,000 of its funds in accord with a schedule presented by the college.

Jail Request Denied

It turned down a request for financial assistance by the Talbot County Board of Commissioners to fix up the county jail which had been criticized often by grand juries.

It learned that the Department of Employment and Security had $9469 "overpayments" to a total of 323 claimants on its books which it called uncollectible. In a letter to the board, Russell S. Davis, department head, explained the overpayments were made in 1943 for 1942. Claims and the recipients could not be found.

He said, however, their cards had been "flagged" so that if the claimants ever applied for compensation again, they would be caught.

Adjutant General Milton A. Reckford reported Camp Ritchie had been returned officially by the Federal Government with improvements totaling five million dollars.

Virginia Woman Killed Self, Coroner Decides

Luray, Va., June 23.—A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Dr. George H. Long, Page County coroner, in the death of Mrs. Daisy Dodson Fincham, 18, of Washington, Va.

Mrs. Fincham was discovered in the bedroom of her mother's home at Rileyville last Monday morning with a rifle alongside. Her husband, W. R. Fincham, told police she had shot herself.

Driver Convicted

Everett M. Woolard, 44, 9904 Southerland rd., Silver Spring, was found guilty yesterday of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Woolard contended he had nothing to drink but apparently was overcome by fumes leaking out of an open bottle of radiator alcohol in the automobile. He was arrested January 28.

Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court postponed sentence pending a report of the probation office.

State Attorney Resigns Post In Dorchester

Cambridge, Md., June 23 (AP).—Giving the press of private law practice as the reason, W. Calvin Harrington, jr., resigned today as Dorchester State's attorney, an office to which he was elected three times.

Charles E. Edmondson, Dorchester County's only Democratic member of the House of Delegates, was appointed by the Circuit Court to succeed Harrington, effective July 1.

The retiring prosecutor told Judge W. Laird Henry in a letter that his private law practice had grown so much that he could not give proper attention to the office of State's attorney. He is in practice with C. Audrey Thompson.

Harrington was first elected in 1938, reelected in 1942 while serving in the Navy, and elected a third time last November. He retired from the Navy as a lieutenant commander.

Edmondson, who is serving his first term as a legislator, will resign from the House, and Governor Lane will name a successor.

Drama Classes Slated

Classes in dramatics for children, ages 7 to 15, will be offered during July at Silver Spring schools. Elementary groups will work on original plays, song-and-dance acts, and children's plays and operettas. Public performances will terminate the courses.

Registration will be held Monday as follows: Takoma Junior High School, Piney Branch and Ray rds., 10 a. m. to noon; North Four Corners, on Old Bladensburg rd., 1 to 2:30 p. m., and Pine Crest, 3 to 4:30 p. m.

Mrs. Edna Drake, teacher of the Silver Spring section, said plans are being completed to have similar courses in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase section.

Darden Seated As President Of Virginia U.

Charlottesville, Va., June 23 (AP). Former Governor W. Darden, jr., officially took over the presidency of his alma mater, the University of Virginia, today as Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb retired to private life after 42 years' association with the university—the last 14 as its president.

Darden becomes the third president of the 125-year-old school, for until Edwin Anderson Alderman took office in 1904 the university was governed by a chairman of the faculty. Dr. Newcomb became president in 1933 when Alderman died.

The retiring president will take up private residence on Bolling Wood rd., leaving the president's home on Carrs Hill which now is being redecorated for Darden and his family to occupy later this month. Formal inauguration of the incoming president is set for the autumn.

Unviersity Dean Ivey F. Lewis announced the contribution of money by faculty and students for a bust of Dr. Newcomb.

Lack of Funds Closes Down Camp Holiday

Manassas, Va., June 23.—Camp Holiday, a summer project operated by the Prince William County Council of Social Agencies, will not be held this summer because of a failure to secure sufficient support from county organizations.

The camp, one of a group located in the Chopawamsic National Park area in lower Prince William, was reserved for the Council if filled to capacity each week. Comdr. C. M. White, council president, said $6000 was required to operate the camp for a 10-week summer period for 48 children.

This year the cost rose from $12 a child to $16.50 and several local groups declined to participate because of the higher rate. The council will meet to plan for next summer if the National Park Service will authorize use of the camp then.

135 Va. Members Get FFA State Farmer Degree

Blacksburg, Va., June 23 (AP).—One hundred and thirty-five members of the Virginia Association of Future Farmers of America were awarded the State Farmer Degree and 10 Virginia educational workers were given honorary degrees as the FFA opened its twenty-first annual convention here tonight.

Honorary awards went to four county school superintendents, one to a high school principal and five to high school agricultural instructors. Chosen were Superintendents Macon F. Fears of Victoria, Lunenburg County; T. D. Forestor, Waverly, Sussex County; R. Worth Peters, Manassas, Prince William, and Harold W. Ramsey, Rocky Mount, Franklin; Principal L. Crawley of Appomattox High, and instructors J. J. Foster of Front Royal, J. H. Gardner of Rustburg, S. W. Lee of Courtland, J. C. Love of Blacksburg and W. L. Thweatt of Blackstone.

Reports of the State FFA president, executive secretary and treasurer, judging contests and a leadership school will fill the day tomorrow.

Cambridge Gets Radio Station

The Communications Commission yesterday gave the Cambridge Co., Cambridge, Md., authority to construct a new radio station to operate on 1240 kilocycles with 100 watts power, unlimited time.

It also granted the Fort Industry Co., Miami, Fla., permission to increase the power of radio station WGRS from 10 to 50 kilowatts for both day and night transmission.

Tuscaloosa Broadcasting Co., Tuscaloosa, Ala., was authorized to change the frequency of station WTBC from 1450 to 1320 kilocycles.

Watergate Concert Memorable

Mozart: Symphony No. 35 in D Major; Creston: Frontiers; Gould: American Salute; Weinberger: Czech Rhapsody; Rachmaninoff: Piano Concerto No. 2; Chopin: Polonaise in A Major. National Symphony Orchestra, Hans Kindler, conductor, Jesus Maria Sanroma, soloist. Sunday evening, Watergate.

By Paul Hume

Hans Kindler conducted his only concert of the present Watergate series last night, and made much of the evening memorable.

The orchestra played in top form for either summer or winter, and the program sparkled with appropriate choices from the standard repertoire.

Mozart's D Major symphony known as the Haffner began things with fine precision, beautifully shaped phrases, and excellent work from the entire orchestra. It included some of Dr. Kindler's finest conducting, and marked his return to the Washington scene following a serious operation some months ago.

Paul Creston's Frontiers was scored for large orchestra, to which were added last night the sounds of motorboats, bells by which bridges rose and fell, and distant airplanes. Somehow they seemed not out of place. Even more timely was the roar of planes after Morton Gould's American Salute based on rousing tunes of the Johnny-Comes-Marching-Home-variety. In all these as in the Czech Rhapsody of Weinberger the utmost precision and brilliance from the symphony was notable.

Jesus Maria Sanroma appeared in the popular C Minor concerto of Rachmaninoff, a work which may well have had much to do with the large crowd in attendance.

Sanroma is not by temperament the ideal pianist for the score, nor does he possess the large tone for its ideal delivery. However, he is deservedly known for his musicianship and knows well how to shape the flowing phrases in which the work is rich.

He was most successful in the final movement where the strong accents natural in his playing were most in point. The entire performance would have benefited from more general agreement between conductor and soloist on tempos. More than once the disparaging views created dissension.

Both Sanroma and the orchestra were required to give encores. The pianist chose a highly poetic reading of Schumann's Prophet-Bird, while Kindler added Bach's Air for the G String, which was played with persuasive warmth.

At the beginning of Paul Creston's Frontiers, it was impossible to tell that the solo instrument was a muted trumpet. Again in the Rachmaninoff, balance between piano and accompaniment was far from uniform, and much detail of the orchestral writing was lost.

It is true that reception from the system varies around the audience, but there are still improvements in order, though they seem to be minor matters.

The season has opened well, and looks attractive in prospect if programs can be kept to a fairly high level of quality. It would certainly be hard to find a more agreeable way or place to spend an evening.

Last Trial Opens In Severn Brig Cruelty Charges

Annapolis, Md., June 23 (AP).—Marine Pfc. Roger E. Fontaine, 18, Grand Coulee, Wash., on trial today charged with abusing a North Severen brig prisoner and misconduct, pleaded innocent.

Fontaine is the last of a group of enlisted marines and seamen court-martialed on charges of maltreating prisoners.

At the opening of the trial, the court nolle prossed a specification of a misconduct charge which accused the former brig guard of ordering Steward's Mate 2/c Morris Peay to strike another prisoner.

2 Disqualified In Fairfax Primary Race

Two Democratic candidates for office in Fairfax County have been disqualified from the August 5 primaries, county Democratic chairman George B. Robey announced yesterday.

Robert C. Davenport, candidate for the county Board of Supervisors from the Mount Vernon district, was excluded from the primary race, Robey said, because he "failed to comply with the Democratic plan." He would not simplify the statement.

According to Davenport, Robey refused to certify him because he would not give "unqualified support to potential party nominees." He said he had agreed yesterday to submit to the party practice in order to have his name certified by Robey and had dispatched a special letter to that effect to Robey's office.

Lacked Sufficient Names

Paul J. Keller, board candidate from the Dranesville district, was disqualified because he lacked the required 50 names on his petition for candidacy. Robey said that he actually had 53 names but that they were not all qualified voters.

At the same time, Robey announced certification of eligible candidates to the county electoral board. Since the primary election is an affair of the party, the county chairman tells the electoral board which candidates are qualified. The board then orders ballots printed accordingly.

Three Without Opposition

Robey said that three candidates will be nominated without opposition. They are State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh and County Supervisor Maurice W. Fox, all running for re-election.

On August 5 one man will be nominated for each office from the following list:

House of Delegates: Edwin Lynch, Annandale, incumbent; G. W. McGlincy, Herndon.

Commissioner of Revenue: John W. Ferguson, Clifton, incumbent; Richard M. Smith, McLean.

Sheriff: Eppa P. Kirby, Chesterbrook, incumbent; John E. Taylor, Falls Church; Farmer L. Stubbs, Legator.

Board of Supervisors: Centerville district: D. W. Buckley, John J. McLaughlin; Falls Church district; C. B. Runyon, John W. Brookfield; Lee district: E. C. Sheads, Paul C. Kincheloe, J. Golden Blincoe; Mt. Vernon district: Arthur I. Shaffer, Earl A. Popkins; Providence district: G. Wallace Carper, incumbent, Lisle A. Smith.

2000 Migrant Farm Workers Arrive in Md.

By The Associated Press

Paul V. Nystrom, emergency farm labor supervisor at Maryland University, announced yesterday nearly 2000 migrant farm workers have arrived in Maryland to assist in harvesting the vegetable crops.

An additional 3000 are expected to arrive by the height of the canning season, mostly from the South.

Those already here include 250 Bahamans who have remained since last season, and an equal number imported from the West Indies this year.

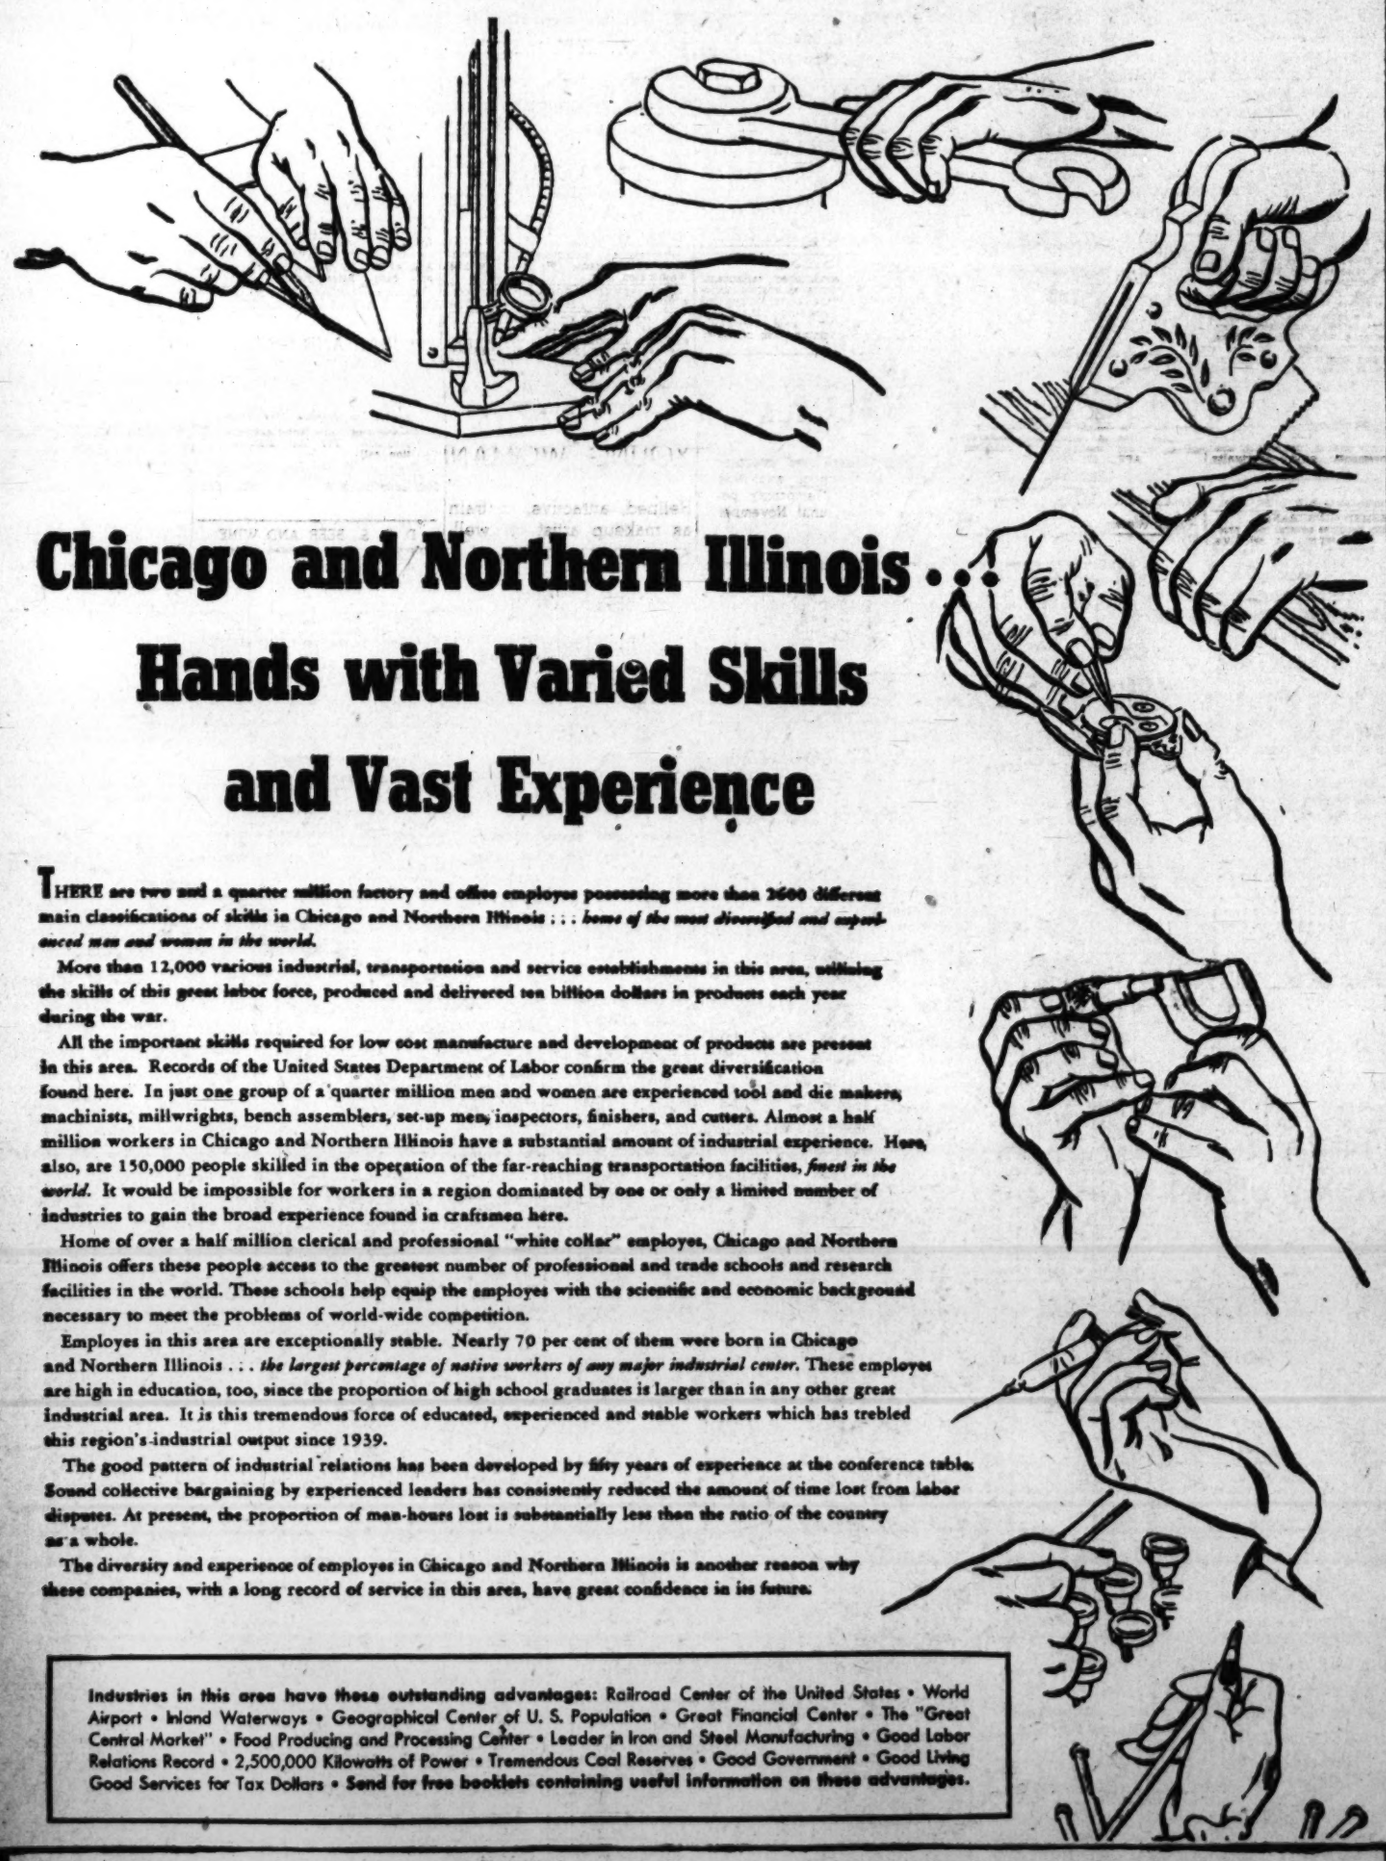
Pocomoke City, 500; Newark, 150; Somerset, 200; Allen, 125; Waddell's Corner, 125.

The sixth camp, for 125 near Preston, is to be opened within a week, he said.

About 70 schoolboys from Baltimore and Washington are now being recruited by Willard Hickman of Church Hill to detassel corn in Queen Anne's and Talbot counties.

They are to be housed in the Centerville High School.

Some Chinese women consider it immodest to display their bound feet, and it is even considered improper to mention feet to such women.



Chicago and Northern Illinois . . . Hands with Varied Skills and Vast Experience

THERE are two and a quarter million factory and office employes possessing more than 2600 different main classifications of skills in Chicago and Northern Illinois . . . home of the most diversified and experienced men and women in the world.

More than 12,000 various industrial, transportation and service establishments in this area, utilizing the skills of this great labor force, produced and delivered ten billion dollars in products each year during the war.

All the important skills required for low cost manufacture and development of products are present in this area. Records of the United States Department of Labor confirm the great diversification found here. In just one group of a quarter million men and women are experienced tool and die makers, machinists, millwrights, bench assemblers, set-up men, inspectors, finishers, and cutters. Almost a half million workers in Chicago and Northern Illinois have a substantial amount of industrial experience. Here, also, are 150,000 people skilled in the operation of the far-reaching transportation facilities, finest in the world. It would be impossible for workers in a region dominated by one or only a limited number of industries to gain the broad experience found in craftsmen here.

Home of over a half million clerical and professional "white collar" employes, Chicago and Northern Illinois offers these people access to the greatest number of professional and trade schools and research facilities in the world. These schools help equip the employes with the scientific and economic background necessary to meet the problems of world-wide competition.

Employes in this area are exceptionally stable. Nearly 70 per cent of them were born in Chicago and Northern Illinois . . . the largest percentage of native workers of any major industrial center. These employes are high in education, too, since the proportion of high school graduates is larger than in any other great industrial area. It is this tremendous force of educated, experienced and stable workers which has trebled this region's industrial output since 1939.

The good pattern of industrial relations has been developed by fifty years of experience at the conference table. Sound collective bargaining by experienced leaders has consistently reduced the amount of time lost from labor disputes. At present, the proportion of man-hours lost is substantially less than the ratio of the country as a whole.

The diversity and experience of employes in Chicago and Northern Illinois is another reason why these companies, with a long record of service in this area, have great confidence in its future.

Industries in this area have these outstanding advantages: Railroad Center of the United States • World Airport • Inland Waterways • Geographical Center of U. S. Population • Great Financial Center • The "Great Central Market" • Food Producing and Processing Center • Leader in Iron and Steel Manufacturing • Good Labor Relations Record • 2,500,000 Kilowatts of Power • Tremendous Coal Reserves • Good Government • Good Living Good Services for Tax Dollars • Send for free booklets containing useful information on these advantages.

This is one of a series of advertisements on the industrial, agricultural and residential advantages of Chicago and Northern Illinois.

Depression Insurance

You keep telling us now is the wrong time to buy. Things are too high. Prices are coming down, etc. Why not buy some insurance against this? Featuring several houses at $11,750; $820 cash for veterans, $2,000 cash for non-veterans. Monthly payments in both instances approximately $80 per month. You couldn't rent the same home if it were available for $130 per month and there would be no return on this monthly rent. Approximately one-half of the $80 each month reduces the principal. About 90% of the other $40, including taxes and interest, can be deducted from your income tax. Too Many Marshals At Potsdam Reception

"The District Line" by Bill Gold is being suspended during Bill's vacation.

Speaking of Truman's Kansas City pals, one inside story of the Potsdam Conference can now be told. When the President left for Potsdam he took with him several old friends, including White House Court Jester George Allen and Fred Canfil, United States Marshal in Kansas City.

Canfil

Canfil was Truman's field artillery sergeant in World War I and his appointment as United States Marshal was one of the first Truman made after he became President.

In Potsdam Truman entertained Generalissimo Stalin one afternoon at tea, in the course of which he introduced his friends and aides to the Soviet chief of state.

"Marshal Stalin," said the President, "I want you to meet Marshal Canfil of Kansas City."

Stalin put on his most charming smile and gave Canfil an unusually big "Hello."

About an hour after the tea, Canfil received a phone call from Stalin's aide inviting him to a special reception at Soviet headquarters, where the United States Marshal was informed he was to receive the Order of Suvorov, the Order of Lenin and the Order of the Red army, in recognition of his services as marshal of the United States.

When embarrased Harry Truman got wind of this, he tried to explain to Stalin that Canfil was not a marshal of the United States Army, but only the marshal serving in the United States Courthouse in Kansas City. Stalin couldn't quite understand the distinction.

"Well, the point is," concluded President Truman, "that we have 125 marshals in the United States. If you give all these medals to only one of them, the other 124 will be highly insulted, and you wouldn't want to do that."

So Marshal Stalin dropped the idea of honoring United States Marshal Fred Canfil of Kansas City.

Dewey on Fence

It was highly significant that Governor Dewey kept his lips buttoned on the Taft-Hartley bill, and here is one factor which may have influenced him: Dewey received some flattering, secret advice from John L. Lewis which carried an inferential promise of labor support in 1948.

Here is the background of what happened:

When it became clear that the Taft-Hartley bill had a fair chance of passing, John L. Lewis and Big Bill Hutcheson, head of the carpenters' union, sent word to Dewey urging him to stay on the fence regarding the Taft-Hartley bill. Lewis warned that if Dewey suported the bill he would be cutting his own throat with labor; and the implication was that if he kept quiet Dewey might have a good chance of gathering labor support.

Note—Lewis' advice may have been superfluous, since Dewey has made it a general point not to issue statements regarding Washington controversies. Only recent exception was his support of the Truman Doctrine.

Filibuster Blocked

Gael Sullivan, Democratic executive director, diplomatically managed to nip a threatened filibuster during the recent conference of Southern Democratic leaders with President Truman.

Joe Blythe, North Carolina's national committeeman, had come to Washington bristling with various gripes against the Administration on labor and other matters. As Sullivan presented Blythe to Truman, he remarked:

"Joe here, had a lot of things on his chest today, Mr. President, but I think you'll be glad to know that he got them all off at a meeting before we came here."

Blythe looked daggers at Sullivan for a moment, but his face slowly creased into an ear-to-ear grin.

"Well, now," he drawled, "you've gone and messed up a good speech I was about to deliver."

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

You are declarer of today's six-spade contract and West opens the king of hearts. How do you play to take twelve tricks?

Today's Hand

SOUTH DEALER

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♣	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ♡.

South wins his slam by end-playing West. He takes the opening lead with dummy's ace, and sees that his only problem is to avoid two club losers. This might be accomplished by a finesse, but a safer line of play is suggested by the opening lead. As West is marked with the heart queen, declarer can throw him in with that card later and receive a favorable return.

Declarer trumps the heart seven, draws trumps, cashes the ace and king of diamonds, re-enters dummy with a spade and trumps; dummy's last diamond. Now he again enters the board with a spade and returns the heart jack, discarding the five of clubs.

West is in with the heart queen, and must return a club up to South's ace-queen or lead a heart, which declarer ruffs in dummy, discarding his club queen. South wins his slam, losing only the heart queen.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Portraits

By James J. Metcalfe

Chairman

A chairman is the chosen head . . . Of some directors' board . . . Whose job it is to stimulate . . . A spirit of accord . . . Or he is one whose duty is . . . To rule a meeting hall . . . And listen to the arguments . . . Advanced by one and all . . . He supervises programs and . . . Proposes certain tasks . . . And tries to answer everything . . . That anybody asks . . . If there is too much noise he pounds . . . The gavel in his hand . . . In order to remind the crowd . . . That he is in command . . . He has to be a patient soul . . . Equipped with common sense . . . And he must be a leader who . . . Inspires confidence.

GO 4th IN JANTZEN SWIM SUITS...

Down to the sea, say The Baker Twins, on your long 4th of July week-end! To the river, the creek, or the pool . . . to wherever you take your swim . . . take a Jantzen! But first make a dive for The Hecht Co. See our collection of these champion swimmers in our Men's and Women's Beach Shops . . . then plunge "4th" gloriously in a Jantzen surf suit.

COOL . . . COOL . . . COOL . . . COOL
